Items of Interest At Oregon Normal

Dr. Charles Woodbury of Oakland, California, gave a most enjoyable talk to the students and faculty in one of the chapel periods last week. He gave at length intimate glimpses of the lives of Emerson, Thoreau and Alcott. Having been intimately connected with the Emerson household for a period of eight years, Dr. Woodbury was able to give his audience a different viewpoint from that of the average lecturer.

Miss Jessica Todd, Dean of Women, who spent the past year abroad, is now on her way to Oregon again. She is in Indiana at present, but is expected in Monmouth soon. Miss Cornelia Marvin, who accompanied Miss Todd, arrived in Salem last Friday night and began her library duties Saturday morning.

Mr. W. E. Buell, an alumnus of the Normal, was a visitor of the school Monday. He is attending the University of Oregon at present. He will be principal of a school in Moro next year.

Extensive alumni plans are being made this year. Many former students are expected to return and plans are being made to entertain them during their stay. Miss Muriel Paul, president of the organization, is working on a definite program of entertainment, and is being assisted by a number of active committees.

May 15th was a day of importance for a large number of students. The critic teachers of Independence training school entertained all their student-teachers of the year in a joint picnic. Games and refreshments seem to have been the most impressive features of the day, and the guests were unanimous in voting the event a success in every way.

Thursday of this week was the day for the Salem excursion which Mr. Butler conducts once each term. As usual, the trip was popular with a large number of students who wished to visit the State institutions.

Memorial Day services will be held in the Normal chapel Sunday morning, May 25th with Reverend Kilpatrick of Salem presiding.

Among those who came from out of town to attend the funeral services of Mrs. A. S. Mitchell were Mrs. R. B. Fisher and son R. B., Jr. of Portland, Cecil Beckley of Eugene, Mr. and Mrs. Williamson of Oak Grove, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edgar of Salem, F. M. and Frank Edgar of Crowley, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Carter of Dallas, Mrs. A. B. Westbrook of Albany, G. C. Fisher of Cornelius and daughter Dorothy of Eugene.

Clubs Unite

P. H. Johnson and Mayor Chesbro are representatives of the Commercial club acting with a committee from the Civic club to handle the housing situation in handling visiting alumni this year. The Civic Club is preparing a Welcome banner on the occasion of the Alumni reunion and a committee of the Commercial Club consisting of Mrs. C. Powell and Ralph Hargett has been appointed to see that the banner is properly placed.

Early Day Resident

Edward Elder, who was born in one of the Doughty houses in the northwest part of the city and who grew to manhood, and received his schooling here was a visitor in this city Monday. He is now located at Niland in the Imperial valley in California and is in the employ of the Southern Pacific as a carpenter. He was traveling to Seattle and dropped off to have a look at the town which he had not seen for some years. He moved from this city in 1883.

Elkins is preparing for the annual community sale which is to be held on Saturday May 31. The following committee has been appointed to look after and make arrangements: C. W. Price, J. H. Bones, J. M. Tedrow.

Governor Speaks Boosts Prohibition

Governor Pierce was the big attraction at a meeting in the interest of prohibition and law enforcement, held in the Normal auditorium Sunday evening. The churches gave up their services to the common cause.

The governor aimed several broadsides at his political critics, especially in reference to an address to the district attorneys of the state in which he is alleged to have said that a man's home is no longer his castle. He explained that this speech was written in advance and in it he said "a man's home is no longer his castle in which to commit crime." He told of the furor which the half statement has made in the country, reaching to the halls of congress, and singled out President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University as a critic who took up several hours of his valuable time to indict an article aimed at the governor of Oregon. As the result of a letter of explanation and remonstrance sent to the university man the governor received a sort of apology. He related also a number of instances which had arisen in his official contact with the penitentiary and its inmates which have arisen out of law breaking through violation of the prohibition laws.

W. J. Herwig of the Anti-Saloon League put on two reels of moving pictures to illustrate the evils and perils of law-breaking in the manufacture and sale of "moonshine." An especial feature of the films was a representation of the killing of Sheriff Kendall of Linn county, who with a minister of the Christian church were both killed while raiding an illicit still. Other pictures showed grafting and lawbreaking among officials and citizens in the handling of booze.

Mr. Herwig explained the nature of the work which the Anti-Saloon League is engaged in and said the next twenty four months were most critical in the preservation of the prohibition law and called for endorsement and financial aid in the prosecution of prohibition enforcement.

Back to Iowa

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lange who have spent the winter at Newport were here a day or two this week and are making plans to return to their home near Dakorah, Iowa. They have a son living there. They plan to spend next winter in the Southern states. They are going back to Iowa in their Star and will take in the Yellowstone park on the way back.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Alderman and three sons were here from Philomath Wednesday. Albert has been working for the Corvallis and Newport road for the past two years.

Splendid Concert By Salem Boy Singers

Dr. H. C. Epley of Salem, a former resident of Monmouth brought to this city Sunday afternoon, a chorus of boys and men who put on a program in the Christian church, under the auspices of the Dorcas society. To say that it was successful is putting it mildly. The church was crowded to the doors and many stood up in the aisles and hallway. The work of training the eighty boys was thoroughly done and their combined voices rose and fell in a harmony that was much appreciated. There were enough men in the chorus to bring the total up to about one hundred.

The chorus rendition of "I'll Stand By" was received with every exhibition of approval. Other numbers which were received with prolonged applause were "The Sailor's Song" and a duet by a couple of small boys.

Paul Brown, the smallest member of the chorus, gave several popular barp selections, and Mrs. T. E. McCroskey gave several delightful children's readings. The Happy Six, the Salem high school orchestra, accompanied the chorus and played a number of selections which were well received.

At the close of the concert Dr. Epley at the request of old friends, sang a solo which was much enjoyed. The boys were invited to the basement before their return to Salem, and treated to a luncheon.

Mrs. J. H. Hawley

It is fitting at the close of the life of our honored and trustworthy friends that we give recognition to the fitness of right living as an inspiration to lift ourselves above the strife of every day life.

The life and influence of the subject of this sketch was such as to be worthy of all that confidence and commendation.

Eliza E. Mulkey was born near Lexington, Missouri June 23, 1840, and came to Oregon with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Luke Mulkey, in 1847, where they became part of the pioneer stock of the early Oregon settlers, living most of her life in Polk County. She was married to John H. Hawley, May 6th, 1857, and died in Portland May 7th, 1924.

She, with her husband, passed their younger and most active years on their Bethel farm in Polk County where the rugged pioneer conditions were coped with in a successful way, and amid these scenes their children were reared to maturity. Mr. Hawley afterwards engaged in mercantile business and later moved to Monmouth where as president of the Polk county bank he won the reputation of a conservative country financier whose institution weathered two panics with notable credit and in this position he served until his death in 1911.

Mrs. Hawley possessed those graces which made her every touch of life and association a testimony to the influence of the Christian's consecration to service. Her crowning act in this community was the gift to her church of a substantial sum which created the Hawley Memorial Fund for the carrying out of a definite purpose which was cherished by her as a necessity to the success of the church life.

The whole community owes a lasting gratitude to the life and memory of such characters.

Club Has Visitors

Many farmers in the vicinity of Monmouth took advantage of the opportunity to dine with the Commercial club at the hotel at the regular meeting of the club last Tuesday evening. A number of impromptu speeches were made after expressing the appreciation of all at the opportunity of meeting and talking over common interests. Among those who responded were Herbert Jones, Wm. Riddell Jr., Mr. Lane, Claude Boothby, A. H. Craven and Ira C. Powell. Dr. Bowersox discussed the farm settlement problem and R. E. Derby spoke in the interest of road maintenance.

Grand Ball

The Odd Fellows are giving a grand ball in their hall this Saturday evening. They will have two orchestras and use both halls. Luncheon will be served by the Rebekahs. Tickets to the dance, $1.00. The proceeds are to be used to pay for a stereopticon recently acquired.

Big Prices Paid for Pure Bred Jerseys

The sum total of bids received for pure bred Jerseys in the two sales held in this vicinity Tuesday and Wednesday was close to thirty thousand dollars. The sale on the S. J. Mc Kee farm south of Independence Tuesday totaled $13,680 and on Wednesday the Loughary herd brought $15,220. Because for this sort of merchandise buyers come long distances and some of the cows were sought for by breeders living as far east as the New England states, it might be thought the hoof and mouth disease scare might have acted as a dampener on business, but apparently it did not. Bids were received by mail and wire and Eastern buyers acted through representatives or in person.

In case the buyer wished to take his stock into a district where there was danger of infection, the local breeders advertised that they would keep the stock until any danger was past. The highest price paid at the McKee sale was paid by a man from Windsor, Vermont, F. A. Kennedy, who purchased Pauline's Raleigh, son of St. Mawes Lad, for $1050.

The highest price paid at the Loughary sale was $1060 bid by Halenback Brothers of Hood River for St. Mawes' Lad's Labelle, greatest proved daughter of St. Mawes' Lad and holder of both gold and silver medals.

There was a large attendance at both sales. About 1,000 people came from all points of the compass to attend the McKee sale Tuesday. Lad's Lots, ex-world's champion butter cow for all time was sold to Allen & Post of Rickreall, Oregon for $950 and P. O. Powell and Son purchased the famous sire St. Mawes' Lad, holder of many medals. Twenty five of this herd sold for an average of $643.

The herd sire of the Loughary farm was sold to Ed Carey of Carlton for $455. Carey bred this bull and sold him as a calf several years ago for over twice as much as he paid for him. At this sale the animals were sold to almost every dairy section of the country. E. A. Ellison of Chippewa Falls, Wis., bought St. Mawes' Rinda Louise; Frank Bastroth of St. Paul, Minn., took St. Mawes' Rinda Nancy, St. Mawes' Olga Rose and St. Mawes' Rinda Lucy. J. K. Conger of Castle Rock, Wash., took two animals and John Todd of Spokane, Wash., took St. Mawes' Olga King, 3-month-old bull. Other bidders bought animals for shipment to Vermont, Montana and other states.

Conducting such a sale as this is an expensive business even though as in this instance two breeders combined to pool expenses. For advertising, a manager, etc. over a thousand dollars was spent. But the returns justified the expense.

A Fine Concert

Seventy-seven performers were seated on the platform when the curtain rose for the combined orchestras' concert in the Normal chapel last Friday evening. Violins predominated, but there were saxophones, cornets, trombones and other instruments, not to overlook the piano and drums. The three orchestras were the regular company and the training school orchestra from Independence and Monmouth. The combined orchestra played the introductory numbers and they were followed by the Independence players, the Monmouth orchestra next and the Normal orchestra last. A number of solos were introduced and the brass quartette from Independence and the string quartette from the Normal orchestra also appeared in special numbers. Special features were piano music by Beryl Ramp of Independence whose small body had difficulty in reaching all the keys and the brass quartette from Independence who in their last number came in as plantation darkies and accompanied it with appropriate music. The playing of Eldon Riddell also found hearty favor with the audience.

The closing numbers by the Normal orchestra were also especially good. Much of the credit for a successful evening is due to Miss Peterson whose patient and effective training is reflected in the results.

Moran & Son have improved their establishment this week by adding a larger and finer back bar for their soda fountain.

KEEPING A GOOD MAN DOWN

Awakened Suspicions

Primary election day did not awaken a great deal of interest locally and a small vote was cast. Perhaps the vote would have been lighter still had not a list of endorsed candidates been left at each doorway in the city in the early morning with lists of the recommended for each party.

This operated to cause a few to imagine that some sort of conspiracy was in progress and caused a few to go and vote who would otherwise have stayed at home. They endeavored to vote as nearly opposite as possible to the recommendations.

The following is the county vote for contested offices on the Republican ticket:
President—Coolidge 1937, Johnson 160.
Senator—Baker 436, Kubli 395, McNary 1581, Stallard 122.
Representative—Hawley 2006, Zimmerman 586.
Treasurer—Kay 1457, Sever 369, Campbell 529.
Justice supreme court—Belt 2171, Knowles 164, Westbrook 116.
