"Ordinary farm milk," says Lieut. Hill (of the Naval Academy farm, near Annapolis, Md.) "contains about 5,000,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter." A cubic centimeter is about 16 drops.

The U. S. Government says: "Bacteria in milk are dangerous to human health." Take no risk. Buy inspected milk of low bacteria count. We produce and distribute the only inspected milk in the city.

Inspected every month by G. V. Copson, Corvallis, milk inspector.

Drop in and let us show you the results of these Analyses. They are also on file at the office of Bacteriology, Agricultural building, Corvallis.

YOUNG BROTHERS DAIRY

TALES OF THE OLD FRONTIER

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(Copyright, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"THE SUDDEN CHANGE OF '36"
IT WAS in December, 1836. For days the weather had been mild, but the early settlers in the Mississippi valley shook their heads doubtfully. "It's a weather-breeder," they said ominously. "It was like this in December, 1830, the winter of the deep snow. Look out for a change!"

Then the change came. First a light snow fell, then it turned to rain and the ground became ankle-deep in slush. Suddenly a cold wind began blowing from the west. Almost instantly the temperature dropped from 40 degrees above zero to 20 below, a change of 60 degrees in a little more than that many seconds.

The whole face of the country was changed from water to ice and in some places the strong wind blew the water in a series of ripples which froze, making a stretch of ridges on the ice. In one settlement a group of boys, going home from school, came to a pond about fifty yards wide. The larger boys started to wade across and reached the opposite side only with difficulty for the water was freezing ahead of them. One little fellow held back for a few minutes and by the time he had started the ice was thick enough to support his weight the whole distance.

The "sudden change" wrought terrible havoc over a wide stretch of country. Deer, elk and other wild animals perished in their tracks. The settlers' live stock seemed to be driven crazy by the sudden cold. Chickens curled up on their roosts and fell to the ground, frozen solid. Thousands of horses, cattle and hogs died before they could be brought into shelter.

A young boy who was riding home from a neighbor's cabin was thrown from his horse, which ran away. His boots were filled with water and by the time he had reached home, only a short distance away, both boots were frozen fast to his feet. One man, riding across the prairie, realized that he would not be able to reach the nearest settlement alive if he tried to push on. So he dismounted, killed his horse, dismembered it and crawled inside the warm body to escape the frigid wind. Weeks later passersby found his frozen body inside its icy tomb.

Later investigations of the "sudden change" showed that the icy blast had struck the Mississippi river settlements about ten o'clock in the morning. By ten o'clock that afternoon it had reached central Illinois and by eleven o'clock Indianapolis was in its grip.

Radio Possibilities

A prominent English radio auditor said recently that he could foresee the day when radio would create an exchange of experiences between the silence of nature and the hum of the city. He said: "I would set up my aerial tomorrow if in the heart of London I could hear the cattle lowing on remote hills or the barking of a fox in Essex, or the scream of an eagle over a Scottish glen. I would gladly summon the roar of Niagara to redress the roar of the Strand; but such things are not yet."

Prolific Sow

A. Clow, Rockwood, Ont., is the possessor of a sow that has broken all breeding records of western Ontario. Although only six years old, this hog has given birth to no fewer than ten litters of pigs, "two litters a year," numbering, all told, 175, of which 140 were raised. On May 16 she brought into the world a litter of 19, 16 of which are living and thriving. Of this number the mother is raising 13, the other three being bottle-fed by their proud owner.

Outlook for Farm Prices

Will prices go up or down, or remain stationary during the next decade? If you knew the answer to that question and knew how to take advantage of the situation, it would mean money in your pocket, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

Dr. G. F. Warren, agricultural economist of Cornell university, has collected evidence on the price trend to be expected. He finds prices are acting in almost exactly the same way they did following the Civil war. The price level following the Civil war continued to fall for 18 years. Dr. Warren believes price levels in the United States will again act in this way.

The present huge supply of gold has much to do with the situation. Great Britain alone has sent to the United States since the beginning of the war more than $1,800,000,000 worth of gold—nearly a quarter of all the gold money in the world. Before long, Dr. Warren thinks, Europe will take her gold back. Then prices will go down.

At This Office

The Village Smithy Up to Date

Under a costly canopy
The village blacksmith sits;
Before him is a touring car
Broken to little bits,
And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Have almost lost their wits.

The village blacksmith smiles with glee
As he lights his fat cigar,
He tells his helpers what to do
To straighten up the car,
And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Stand humbly where they are.

The village blacksmith puffs his weed
And smiles a smile of cheer
The while his helpers pump the tires
And monkey with the gear—
And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Stand reverently near.

The children going home from school
Look in at the open door;
They like to see him make his bills
And hear the owners roar,
And the chauffeurs weep as they de-
-clare
They ne'er paid that before.

He goes each morning to the bank
And puts away his cash;
A healthy balance and big Rolls-Royce
Help him to cut a dash—
But the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Their teeth all vainly gnash.

The chestnut tree long since has died,
The smith does not repine;
His humble shop has grown into
A building big and fine,
And it bears "Garage" above the door
On a huge electric sign.

Coffee Ship More Than Three Years on Voyage

The old Dutch sailing vessels of days gone by were notoriously slow, blunt of bow and clumsy. Their slowness was considered an advantage by importers of green coffee from The Netherlands East Indies to America, since the effect of the confinement of the coffee beneath closed hatches was held grudgingly to improve its flavor. Such "sweated" coffee brought top prices in the market. During the World war one shipment of Timor coffee is said to have taken three and a half years coming from Java to New York. It was aboard the German steamship Brisbane, which cleared from Batavia, July 4, 1914, and, fearing capture, took refuge in a harbor in Portuguese India, where it lay until Portugal joined the allies. Then the Portuguese seized the vessel and turned it over to the British, who moved it to Bombay. Here the cargo was finally transhipped to the City of Adelaide, reaching New York in January, 1918, three and a half years after the coffee left Batavia.
