LUTHERANS ANNOUNCE CHURCH SERVICE

Lutherans Announce Church Service. Next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock a divine service will be conducted in the old Odd Fellows hall above the post office in Monmouth, under the auspices of the Lutheran Students Association of Oregon. The Rev. Wm. Schoeler, who is secretary of the Association and pastor of the Lutheran students at Monmouth, will speak on "Things I Have Found Out About the Bible." The public is cordially invited to attend.

The Lutheran Students Association of Oregon was organized in August this year, for the purpose of looking after the Lutheran students at the educational centers of Oregon. The intention is to organize the Lutheran students in each place into units, federate the units, and ultimately tie up with the Lutheran Students Association of America. The Rev. Wm. Schoeler, now a resident of Independence, is to superintend the entire undertaking.

Pastor Schoeler is known far and wide in religious circles as the author of scientific works and historical romances. He has been on the public platform for many years, is a contributor to secular and religious magazines and established a number of prosperous Lutheran congregations. Next Sunday evening he will lecture to the Eugene students on "Our Lutheran Heritage—What it is, and how we may pass it on."

ANOTHER VACATION

Before our next issue is out we shall have closed for the Thanksgiving holiday. Honesty

We owe it to ourselves as well as to others to be honest in all we do. That "honesty is the best policy" is a good principle to go by. It may not lead us directly to happiness but in the end we get the returns. Dishonest people have made fortunes, perhaps, and have seemed to be prosperous and happy. Still, it is not a true happiness and in the course of time may lead to their downfall.

Honesty means to tell the truth and never mind the consequences. Honest means to help people do what is right, so if we do not tell the truth, we cannot get the confidence of people, nor can we help others.

Honesty means to pay one's debts, not only money debts, but whatever we owe in friendship, in truthfulness in kindness, or in other words, to follow the Golden Rule.—V. W.

OUR ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

The advanced classes under the direction of Miss Lillian Schmidt, student teacher, were asked to write descriptions. It was suggested that the pupils might take "The Sunset" as their theme. As a result, there is nearly material enough to fill this space for the rest of the year. No greater privilege is afforded the young teacher than to have a part in the developing of talent, or disclosing the genius of her pupils. The descriptive poem was written by a girl while the other selection was contributed by one of the boys.

"SUNSET" by C. H.

When at last the day is ended

And the birds have gone to rest,

At the sunset in the west.

Then I sit and look and wonder

Oh, the colors in the sunset!

Blue and azure, gold and gray,

I feel I'd like to paint them

Ere their beauties fade away.

Singing birds and trees and flowers,

Mountains, hills with greenest crest

But of all to me most lovely,

Is the sunset in the west.

"SUNSET ON THE PACIFIC"

by R. R.

Last summer at Pacific City I beheld one of the most glorious sunsets that I have ever seen. I was sitting upstairs in a hall when I happened to look out of the window and saw the sun just sinking over the horizon. The sight was so wonderful that at first it seemed like a magnificent painting. The sun, like a huge ball of fire, sank slowly below the horizon and appeared to drop suddenly into the ocean. The sky above, took on a rosy hue, while stretching out across the water was a pathway of gold. Old Hay Stack rock which stood guard like a sentinel, was bathed in a beautiful light. Gradually the lights grew dimmer, until at last, all the glory was gone, and only the dull light of twilight remained. The day was done, and somehow it left with me a feeling of awe at the wonders of nature.

IT WAS ALL DONE FOR HER

By T. T.

Once upon a time there was a lad twenty years of age. He had picked out his "lady love", his wife to be as he called her. But he was having a hard time with Mary's father. He would not even let Theodore, which was the boy's name, see Mary. "I can not stand this," he said. There is no girl like Mary. I dream about her. She is my best picture."

So he picked up courage enough and went to see Mary's father.

"I told you you could not see Mary, Be off."

"I did not come to see Mary, I came to see you," he said coldly.

"What do you wish to see me about?"

"I wish to ask the reason for not

OUR AUDITORIUM WORK

Every boy and every girl thinks a great deal. Those who are resourceful, think for themselves. They are leaders. Those who are imitative build upon the thoughts of others. They are followers. Both types of boys are necessary in this old world of ours. How absurd to imagine a world without these two types of men and women.

Every serious minded individual improves himself within his own environment. He also broadens his horizon continually. It is while he is thus expanding mentally that he learns one of the most important lessons of his life—that of cooperating with those he contacts.

I am happy to say that many of the boys and girls of the Junior high seem to possess the ideas as outlined above. They demonstrate the fact each time they meet me in the auditorium for creative work. Their keenness, their enthusiasm and their accomplishments are gratifying.

I wish to take this opportunity to speak to each boy and girl personally. Using reason and judgment, set your goal. Let nothing come between you and the reaching of that goal. Remember that you will get great joy in working to a purpose will be in proportion to your interest.—R. S. B.

GREETINGS TO JUNIOR HI

—And where are you going my little fellow?

—I am Junior High Way.

—And how old may you be?

—Just going into my second year, sir.

—That's splendid. I am heartily pleased to see that you are in vigorous health.

—Taking exercises are you?

—Oh, yes, and the boys and girls of the M. J. H. S. are very careful about my diet. I must have a variety of foods—humorous stories to develop my diaphragm; local news to keep me well rounded; poems that exercise my heart, and so on. They provide me with a goodly supply, too, otherwise I should die of anemia.

—And how are you, Mr. Rozeboom?

—Quite well, thank you, Junior Hi Way. I like my new work. I am very glad, however, that I still have contact with the boys and girls. But I must be going, Junior Hi Way. Good bye.—E. A. R.

adv.

The student teachers and critics were somewhat dubious as to the effect of a three days' vacation upon the pupils. They were almost certain that because of it, Friday would be a day lost. However, they were happily disappointed in their idle surmise, to find that the boys and girls put in one of the best days of the term. Good preparation, steady application and fine results characterized the day.

BIRTHDAYS

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Robison, the friends of Glenn Robison and Verner Wilson, whose birthdays occurred the same day, enjoyed a pleasant party given in the honor of the boys. Miss Enright gladly consented to chaperone the party. Many interesting and joyful games were played. After the games refreshments were served. A very good time was enjoyed by all.—F. H.

being able to see Mary."

"Bah! Enter!"

As he said this he opened the door and Theodore entered. There was Mary. He was so happy. Mary's father let them be happy.

It was not long before they were married. Theodore found out later that Mary's father had just been testing him.

Guilty or Not Guilty?

Sooner or later you will answer—You to You. If guilty of not making the most of your opportunities—the regrets will avail you nothing. If "Not Guilty" the satisfaction of peace and plenty will be worth all the effort and sacrifice you made in younger years to spend a little less than you made—banking the difference of course.

Why not face the other "you" now? You can see and know now that you and you alone are responsible for your own future. We can assist you in many ways—first with your saving account which will build itself up with a little attention on your part.

MOUTH, OREGON

poem by UNCLE JOHN

Among the words I know of, which is fitted to describe the highest class enjoyments of the super-social tribe,—there's one that ranks superlative, an' suits my fancy best,—the little word is "pleasant," which I reckon you have guessed....

We all love pleasant faces, when we haunt the pleasant nooks; we sing of pleasant wimmin, an' discourse on pleasant looks; a pleasant social function is an easy thing to rhyme—and the little outdoor picnic gives its friends a pleasant time.

We treasure pleasant memories of hours that's past an' gone, which we spent in Pleasant Valley, with our Sunday garments on—And it's nothin' short of pleasant, when we hike to Pleasant Grove,—And Pleasant Hill's the Eden that the itemizers love!

Yes—the little word is pleasant—fer the printer or the scribe, that records the daily doings of Billville's pleasant tribe—And when you're in HER company—with nothin' much to say, you can start the ball to rollin' with—"We've had a pleasant day!"
