

Smart Styles, Boys and Childrens Clothes

You'll not be able to find more stylish or appropriate spring suits for boys and young men than at this store—The people of Polk county are learning that this is the store to visit first when style and quality are considerations—This spring we are showing the largest stock of boys' clothes outside of Portland—We've so many styles, with so many new and attractive features, that customers get enthusiastic in looking them over. And when a purchase is made, there is no question of the selection being the right one.

One pair of XTRAGOOD

knee pants will stand up against more sliding and kneeling, or climbing and straining than two pair of unlined and flimsily finished Knickerbockers. The trousers with all our boys' suits are lined through—That means practically double wear, besides holding the shape doubly as well and the quality of the material regulates the different prices. WE ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEE all suits at from $5.00 to $10.00.

There is more individual feature in our boys' suits than in any other make. The label means that they must please: if they don't, please us by returning an unsatisfactory purchase. It's easier to replace a suit than a customer.

We invite you to come and examine the Cleverest, the smartest apparel ever planned for Boys and Young men, and shown only at this store.

Every community has its full quota of knockers. Without them we would not know whether we were terrestrial or celestial beings. Does the croakers of today know what "Stewart's Folly" was? It was the purchase of Alaska nearly a half a century ago, at a cost of $7,200,000. At least the act was characterized at that time, what an enormous sum to pay for a wilderness of snow and ice, which can never be made habitable for civilized beings, and which must be as barren as the Sahara desert. Today instead of Stewart's Folly it is Stewart's Farsightedness Alaska has already produced $300,000,000 in value in minerals, fish and fur, besides our annual trade with Alaska amounts to $300,000,000 a year and is increasing by leaps and bounds Agriculture there has a future. Uncle Sam purchased from Napoleon a wilderness and what was the result? The answer is he realized an empire, took a desert from Mexico and found a paradise, acquired a glacier from Russia and happened onto an El Dorado. The idea this short lesson conveys to the reader is this; always look ahead, brush aside the curtain of the future and perhaps you can see something better in store for you than to waste your life away croaking about your country or your neighbors.

Raising Hardy Goats

While goat raising is an important industry in European countries, especially in Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Australia, France, Norway and Spain, it is only within the last eight or ten years that goats have attracted the attention of breeders who have since raised them in any considerable numbers. The enthusiasts say that there is a big profit in raising them for market.

The hardness of the goat and its ability to care for itself renders goat raising a very simple matter. It is not particular in its food, nor is it a gross eater. For this reason goat farming is especially recommended for women. The farmers' wife is learning that she can care for a large flock with little effort or worry. An important source of income is thus made possible throughout the country. Practically any land, no matter how poor, will support a goat herd, provided alone it is not wet or marshy. Goats will thrive and multiply on land which would starve horses or cattle or even sheep. The roughness of the land works no disadvantage since goats seem to prefer hillsides and rocky cliffs to level country.

The principal value of the Angora goat from a commercial standpoint lies in its wool, which is commonly known as mohair, but another strong point in the Angora is its dietetic peculiarity, which makes it one of the best land scavengers in the world. A great many of the farmers who have in recent years gone into Angora goat raising have had the clearings of their brush patches in view rather than the mere production of mohair.

Writing of milk goats recently, a Massachusetts breeder said: "The two breeds which by common agreement seem the most desirable for this country are the Toggenburg and Saanen, both Swiss varieties. Only a few importations of these have been made, numbering in all fewer than 100."

"What are they good for? They are milk producers—milk of a very high quality and with not the slightest strong or unpleasant flavor. They are not so good for cream or butter. The milk is richer in fat than cow's milk, but does not separate readily. At the same time it is the most easily digested milk known, which makes it of the greatest value as food for children and invalids.

"The writer has a Saanen doe that gave three quarts of milk per day at her first kidding and now, six months later, gives two quarts. The milk sells in the cities readily for 25 cents per quart. When mature this doe should give five or six quarts when fresh. She is a healthy feeder and drinker, but, for all that, what is such an animal worth as an investment? To the man familiar with the care of domestic animals and with a small capital here is an opportunity in an undeveloped but extremely promising field first, for some time, in supplying pure bred breeding stock and later in the sale of milk.

"The best way to start is to get a few pure bred individuals and a number of good, active does from which to breed a flock of high grades, in order to meet the demand from the class of people who can hardly afford to pay $40 to $50 for a milk doe. There is no apparent reason why with patience and care there should not be produced a strain which will be large producers. I have heard of a doe giving eight quarts of milk in twenty-four hours and over 1,000 quarts in one year."
