Wheat has taken a tumble and it is likely that by the time of harvest the farmers will have to accept the usual price of 60 cents a bushel. Isn't it surprising that these big flurries always come before harvest time? But the consumers have to pay fancy prices for flour, just the same.

The Livestock Sale at the Portland Country Club this week means a great deal to everyone in Oregon. Saturday and Sunday witnessed thousands of people visiting the grounds to inspect what is universally conceded to be the greatest gathering of blooded horses ever collected in the Pacific Northwest to be sold to the highest bidder. The sale at Portland has uniformly been more successful than ever those in Chicago, in proportion. The sale will continue up to Friday night at the Country Club, Saturday being devoted entirely to cattle at the Union Stock Yards. Oregon is making a wonderful showing, and there is assurance that buyers will be here from all neighboring states and British Columbia.

With the two splendid vessels, the steamer Independence and the launch Louise, belonging to Claud and Frank Skinner, and the Victoria of Independence, now under construction, there is every reason to believe the upper Willamit will receive more attention from the government dredger. It is believed on competent authority that with the attention now being given to upper river navigation, within the next few months navigation will be opened between Eugene and all lower river points. This is of more than passing importance to every resident of the valley tributary to it, when it is remembered that through the opening of the Willamette river to navigation railroad rates will be more uniformly adjusted to the minimum than through any other influence. Then, too, the acquirement of the locks at Oregon City is also of paramount importance. It should be remembered that as long as the locks are operated as they are today the consumers pay for their operation

A party of Illinois investors recently clubbing together and sent one of their number, who had visited Oregon during the Exposition, for a trip through the state. Upon his return to Portland, this gentleman said that he found Oregon people much changed. At that time they were intensely conservative, today they are enthusiastic, optimistic, and unanimously predict a great future in fact many communities are growing so rapidly that they imagine they have all the growth, but those who have seen the houses and other improvements taking place everywhere, know that the next decade will see record-breaking advancement along every line. Asked if he was satisfied, he replied: "I would n't return to Illinois, but shall remain here to receive my friends who are coming in parties of three, five and ten."

As an instance of the result of abuse of prohibition in the city of Eugene a young man lost his life through being sold adulterated liquor. Arnanaldo Nye, a boy of fourteen years of age came into possession of what purported to be whiskey. A few hours after its drinking an inquest was held over his corpse. Attachment of blame has not been placed. The case is a sad one. From the effects of his death a recent report from Eugene gives account of the death of the mother of the young man. Mrs. Nye's death is explained by the doctors as auto-infection, the outgrowth of her grief over the death of her son.

Swift and Company announce that they plan to begin actual packing operations in their new plant at Portland in July. This brings to the surface the necessity for the farmers of Oregon to grow more hogs. Pigs can be raised until they are three months old on vetch or other roughage. A fat 200 pound hog in Portland today is worth $1.50 cash, live weight. The packers will have to get a supply. Must they spend money for the hogs to Nebraska, or will we raise them in Oregon?

Two million dollars for the four hundred and sixty-two acres university known as the "Ladd Farm" put Portland city lots in class with Oregon orchards, and the developers of this magnificent property will certainly be satisfied if it pays dividends equaling those of a well-kept, modern orchard.

While estimates as to the present population of Oregon vary, some men who have the right to be called well posted feel that the state today has upward of three-quarters of a million people. With every county in the state getting new settlers, some have attracted greater immigration during the past year than for five years before.

Recovers Interesting Relic

A. G. Magers, of Salem, recently received a rather interesting relic of Oregon's pioneer days, it being a heavy oak moldboard of the plow used by General Phil Sheridan, at that time a lieutenant, on the Grand Ronde Indian reservation. There were no disc plows those days, and in fact none of the fine plows which the farmers of these days find necessary, and yet do not fully appreciate. The moldboard is from two to four inches thick, made from Oregon oak. It was originally provided with a cutter or front made from a wagon tire, but this has been lost, and only the wood remains. It still has the wooden plugs by which it was fastened to the plow frame and is in a fine state of preservation.—Salem States-state of preservation.—Salem Journal.

WILL BE READY TO OPERATE NEXT WEEK

Formal Launching and Christening Expected to take place early in Week the Run Between Salem and Corvallis Will be Taken Up.

The Steamer Victoria of Independence is now lying at anchor on the Willamette river in ten inches of water fulfilling every expectation of her builder, Dr. Parrish. The formal christening is expected to take place early the coming week then the trial run up the Willamette river will take place. Reconstruction has been in the hands of C. Purvine and he has made the vessel a model of neatness.

The Victoria is 80 feet long with a 17 foot beam and 20 foot deck and is capable of carrying 100 tons of freight at all seasons of the year. Dr. Parrish estimates that the Victoria will not draw more than 16 inches under burden which he believes will be sufficient to run on at all seasons of the year.
