LABORER MEETS INSTANT DEATH

Ben Roff, a laborer at the Simpson logging camp on the Big Luckiamute river, was struck on the head by a heavy chain and instantly killed late Friday afternoon, says the Observer.

The accident happened at 6 o'clock, just as the men were ceasing work for the day. Mr. Roff was assisting in hauling out a load of logs when the chain holding the load gave way. One end of the chain struck him on the back of the head with terrific force and killed him instantly.

Mr. Roff was twenty-five years old and was married. His wife was at the logging camp at the time of the accident. Their home was in the Alsea valley, from which place they had moved to the camp to work. Mrs. Roff is a daughter of John Miller of Alsea.

The Variations of Love

Into a telegraph office in an Eastern town there recently came a much agitated young woman. She wrote upon one telegraph blank, tore it in halves, wrote a second, which she treated in the same manner, and at last a third. This she handed to the operator, requesting in a trembling voice, that he "hurry it up."

The operator obeyed instructions, and when the young woman had gone he read the two messages that she had torn in halves.

The first was:

All is over. I never wish to see you again.

The second read:

Do not write or try to see me at present.

And the third ran:

Can you take the next train? Please answer.—October Lippincott's.

Murderer is Captured.

Medford—Almost dead from cold, starvation and consumption, Julian A. Mock, the murderer of Jesse C. Smith, was captured at the home of George Trask on Little Applegate Creek, 12 miles from Talent, by Constable J. N. Manning and Clifford and J. L. Garin, father and son, on the ranch.

For sixty hours the fugitive had had nothing to eat but a raw jackrabbit, which he shot.

Mock said that the killing was entirely unpremeditated and that the deed was done in a moment of anger while he was drunk. Immediately after the murder he set out up Griffin Creek to the mountains above the Sterling mines. Automobiles carrying posses passed near him several times and all night he saw their lights running up and down the valley below him.

I. M. Butler went to Portland the first of the week for medical treatment. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Bessie Butler.

WILL RECEIVE MORE BOOKLETS

The voters of the state may now prepare to receive a second pamphlet under that act for the general election. Copy for this pamphlet cannot be filed with the secretary of state's office later than October 9. Under the act only the state executive committee, or managing officers of any political party having nominated candidates, may file matter for the pamphlet and no others except independent candidates. Political parties are awarded 24 pages in the booklet, while independent candidates are given two pages each.

The charge for each page in the pamphlet is $50, which will go toward the expense of printing and mailing. The secretary of state is given two days after he receives the final copy to place it in the hands of the printer, and the printer has until October 23 to produce all of the pamphlets. These must be mailed by October 29.
