The large pole used in supporting the ferry cable broke Tuesday with a load of people on the boat, crossing the river. The steamer, Eugene, happened to be coming from down the river when the accident occurred and prevented the ferry from going down with the current very far. Traffic to and from the east was suspended for a short time.

A drawing of the new hotel building to be erected by A. L. Sperling on Main street, can be seen in Hanna Brothers' show window. The new building will be three stories high instead of two, as was first planned. Work is progressing rapidly in spite of the rainy weather, and the building will be up and completed before many weeks go by.
