Found Valuable Pearl.

A negro pearl hunter the other day found a pearl weighing 47 grains in the waters of Lake Bioteau, near Shreveport, La., said to be one of the largest gems of its kind in the United States. The finder sold it in Shreveport for $250, and the purchaser in turn received $1,500 for the stone. The second owner was a merchant, but the third a professional pearl buyer. This last values the gem at $10,000.

Ginseng.

The light yellow root of ginseng is highly esteemed by the Chinese as a stimulant. It is used, however, for almost every domestic and medicinal purpose, and specimens resembling the human body often command their weight in gold because of supposed occult virtues. China furnishes almost the sole market for ginseng.

KEEPING SWINE HEALTHY IS OF THE UTMOST IMPORTANCE

There is No Theme Upon Farm That Will So Benefit Farmer as to Keep Quarters and Surroundings in Sanitary Condition Where Hogs are Kept—Guard Against Cholera.

A Desirable Hog Cot.

(By GEORGE W. BROWN, Ohio.)

There is no theme upon the farm that will so benefit the farmer as to keep the quarters and surroundings of the farm in a sanitary and healthful condition where swine are kept. Nowhere will an outbreak of cholera become so disastrous as upon the farm where these animals are kept with dirty, filthy surroundings, and no care taken in the disinfection of the nesting places and slop troughs during the summer time.

Upon our farm we have never practiced the method of keeping a herd of swine in one place very long, and never do we fatten out more than one bunch of animals in the same field in one year, preferring rather to shift our operations about from place to place.

We have no permanent quarters, but rely upon the service of the cot, shown in the illustration.

These bunks can be shifted about easily upon runners, and many times each year are changed from one field to another, or from one pen to another, thus we always have the animals in fresh sleeping quarters, and upon fresh forage. While the animals are located upon a new range, we break up the old range, cropping it in some profitable farm crop, thus getting the benefit of all excrement from the animals, profiting in its enrichment of the soil, and we as well freshening and sweetening the soil by cultivation.

Then swine should be supplied with some shade aside from a board shelter to ward off the heated rays of the summer sun. There is nothing for this purpose quite so nice as clumps of willows, catalpas or poplars grown in some convenient location in each field, preferably along the fence row, in such manner that the animals may have access to the cooling shade during the heat of the day.

USEFUL GUARD FOR A WINDOW

Missouri Man Has Invented Gate That Will Be Found Convenient for Variety of Uses.

The door and window guard patented by a Missouri man has a variety of uses. It comprises a gate made of parallel pickets linked together by short cross bars and sliding easily back and forth on rollers. It can be folded up into small compass against one side of the opening it guards or stretched all the way across and made fast. The uses to which such a gate can be put are both numerous and obvious. It can be attached to home or store window to bar thieves and in that case is made of iron and padlocked in its open position, or it can be made of wood and erected at any opening through which a baby could fall, particularly at the head of stairways in the house or on the porch, in place of the gate of solid construction most used for such purpose. The height of the pickets, of course, will vary with the requirements.

In one of our fields we have such a clump of quaking-asps and it is pleasing to note how contented these animals are during the sweltering heat of the day, as they lie about in the shade of this rustling clump of trees.

If there is not such shade planted along the borders of a field we should not be slow in planting such if we were in the swine growing business, and every wide awake farmer should be, for indeed he should consider himself too poor to be without this profitable animal upon his premises.

Many make a mistake in allowing their swine to run to the creek during the summer for water. We have such a place upon our farm, and we might save much time in getting water to our swine many times if we allowed them to go to this water course, but we are afraid of it. Indeed in this field we never allow our swine to roam, for we do not know what farmer several miles above us in another district might have cholera or plague, and our animals exposed by contamination in the water flowing down stream.

We rather prefer to keep our animals well away from this stream of water, and give them pure water from the well in disinfected troughs, thus doing our part toward keeping down loss from cholera.

We keep down the objectionable and nauseating hog wallow upon our farm and do not tolerate it in the least. We know the swine enjoy it, but we have learned to detect its abominable company, and by changing the animals about, and locating new quarters frequently we keep this mire of mud and filth abandoned. With the advancement along other lines of farm operations, the advancement in this line of work appeals to us as very significant in keeping these animals in a sanitary and healthful location at all times.

PROPER PLACE FOR CHICKENS

Should Not be Allowed to Roost On Top of Harness or Buggy—Should Have Good House.

One of the most important things in the care of laying hens is the house that they are to live in. On most farms it used to be that the hen roosted any old place, and her favorite place was on top of the harness or buggy. And when they could not reach their favorite place, they took to the trees, but I can say that the hen's life on the farm has changed, for now you see nice houses and yards for them, says a writer in the Successful Farmer.

A good poultry house may be defined as one that is dry, warm and ventilated, and fitted to accommodate the kind of fowls that is to be kept. A stationary house suitable for any kind of fowl may be built of stone or brick, but the best house is built of lumber made in a size suitable for moving once a year at least. Lumber is cheaper than brick or stone, and when you find that there is some improvement that you could make to the advantage of the hen and coop, it will be a good deal cheaper remodeling the wooden building.

It is impossible to build a house that will answer for all times of the year. You will find alterations to make in spring and fall, so when wood is used in its construction it can be built in sections and bolted together. In warm weather you can use wire frames in place of the board sections. Give the hens plenty of room, lots of clean straw to be used as scratching material, light lice nine days a week, and see if the hens don't pay their way.

Swindlers Prosecuted.

The mayor of New York is vigorously prosecuting swindlers who sell short weight potatoes. The law requires the barrel of potatoes to contain 100 quarts, and to weigh 174 pounds, but most of the barrels in use are short from 20 to 50 pounds.

Light on Ancient Days.

Until recently the exploration of the Sudan was impossible, owing to the attitude of the natives, but last year the excavations of Meroe, the ancient capital of Ethiopia, was commenced. Perhaps the most important result of the early work will be the addition of Ethiopian to our knowledge of languages which have ceased to exist. A large number of inscriptions in hieroglyphic and cursive writing have been found, and it has been discovered that the unknown language is based on an alphabetical system—a circumstance which will make the deciphering of the inscriptions much easier than was the case with the Egyptian language, which has occupied Professor Sayce 30 years.

Not a Landseer.

"Is that a Landseer, Mr. Croesus?" asked a visitor, pausing before a painting of a cow, executed with great skill and fidelity. "No," replied the host. "Reckon it's a Durham. See how broad it is between the horns, and see the color and curl on its forehead. That's a genuine Durham, sure. That ain't no Landseer."—Youth's Companion.

Harm in Extremes.

Childish Beliefs.

Yes, children believe plenty of queer things. I suppose all of you have had the pocketbook fever when you were little. What do I mean? Why, ripping up old pocketbooks in the firm belief that bank bills to an immense amount were hidden in them. So, too, you must all remember some splendid unfulfilled promise of somebody or other, which fed you with hopes perhaps for years, and which left a blank in your life which nothing has ever filled up.—Holmes.

First Jaunting Car.

The first jaunting car was established in Ireland in 1815 by a Milanese, Carlo Bianconi, who settled in Dublin and drove every day to Caher and back, charging twopenny a mile. From this small beginning in 1837 he had established 67 conveyances, drawn by 900 horses.—National Magazine.

THE USE OF THE COMMA.

The point on which most writers are at odds with the compositor is the comma, says the London Chronicle. It is not that he misplaces it so outrageously, as in that sentence which was the cause of many tears in a Berlin newspaper office some years ago: "Prince Bismarck walked in on his head, the well-known cap on his feet, large, brightly polished top boots on his forehead, a dark cloud in his hand, the inevitable walking stick in his eye, a menacing glance."

No, but he is too fond of this particular punctuation point. He takes a delight in breaking up the flow of sentences with his artificial pauses. We all say: "Why then did you do it?" in one breath. It is the compositor who says: "Why, then, did you do it?" It is possible to be too hard on the comma. It has its undeniable uses.

Recognizing People.

Data have been gathered in Germany with reference to the distance at which persons may be recognized by their faces and figures. If one has good eyes, the Germans claim, one cannot recognize a person whom he has seen only once at a greater distance than 82 feet. If the person is well known to one, one may recognize him at 300 feet and if it is a member of one's family, even at 500 feet.—Scientific American.

Practically Indestructible.

A flight of stairs has been erected in Paris over which 14,000,000 persons have passed without so much as scratching the surface. These steps are almost imperishable, for in the concrete of which they are constructed a generous proportion of carborundum has been introduced, and since carborundum is almost as hard as the diamond, it has given the concrete a wearing quality which no marble or granite could possibly approach.

Origin of the Bath Towel.

A towel manufacturer found that his machinery was not working right and that his towels were suffering a vast tangling of the threads. While adjusting the machine he used one of the damaged towels to dry his hands. He found it pleasantly absorbent, and from the idea to which that gave rise was born the bath towel and a fortune to the patentee.

Explanation of Colors of Leaves.

In extremely moist atmosphere the color of the leaves are not usually very bright, as in England. And in very dry climates the leaves dry up suddenly, and their skin, which is very thick to prevent the escape of moisture, is not sufficiently transparent to allow the color to be seen beneath. In regions where the autumn foliage is most vivid we find that an average season produces the most exquisite colors. Neither a very dry nor a very wet summer will result in much brilliancy.
