

What is it?

-not tea
-not coffee

It's the most delightful Breakfast

Drink you ever tasted

-and the most wholesome and invigorating. You cannot but like its rich "grainy" flavor and spicy aroma. Ask your grocer for

Three G's

(GOLDEN GRAIN GRANULES)

-If he hasn't got it he will get it for you. It's good for you 3 times a day.
And remember that there is no substitute for 3 G's.

HOWARD E. BURTON - Assayer and Chemist, Leadville, Colorado. Specimen prices: Gold, silver, lead, tin, gold, silver, tin, gold, tin, zinc or copper, etc. Mailing envelopes at full price list sent on application. Control and sample work on lot. Reference: Outside National Bank.

Machinery Second-Hand Machinery bought, sold and exchanged: engines, boilers, sawmills, etc. The J. E. Martin Co., 78 1st St., Portland. Send for Stock List and prices.

KODAKS AND KODAK SUPPLIES
Write for Catalogue and Literature. We do Developing and Printing. Mail orders given prompt attention. Burnham Photo Supply Co., 343 1/2 Washington St., Portland

Some Self-Denial Necessary.
We all have to put up with one another; one cannot do that even in our own homes, without conceding a good deal which we should very much like to retain.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Most alarming, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything.
Guaranteed effective.
Sold by dealers or sent prepaid for 5c.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Good Thing Easily Lost.
Jack—"Fred has a snap, but he's foolish to continue abusing his privileges." Tom—"That's so! It takes mighty little to make a secure insurance."—Boston Transcript.

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT

FOR SPRAINS.

G. M. Northrop, Bixbee, Ariz., writes:
"I have been using Mexican Mustang Liniment for a sprained foot with great results.
It is a wonderful remedy for such ailments.
It penetrates quickly, removes all inflammation and reduces the swelling." 25c. 50c. $1.00 a bottle at Drug & Gen'l Stores

Actions a Criterion.
A slender acquaintance with the world must convince every man that actions, not words, are the true criterion of the attachment of friends; and that the most liberal professions of good-will are very far from being the surest marks of it.—George Washington.

HOW GIRLS MAY AVOID PERIODIC PAINS

The Experience of Two Girls Here Related For The Benefit of Others.

Rochester, N. Y.—"I have a daughter 13 years old who has always been very healthy until recently when she complained of dizziness and cramps every month, so bad that I would have to keep her home from school and put her to bed to get relief.

"After giving her only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she is now enjoying the best of health. I cannot praise your Compound too highly. I want every good mother to read what your medicine has done for my child."—Mrs. RICHARD N. DUNHAM, 811 Exchange St., Rochester, N. Y.

Stoutsville, Ohio.—"I suffered from headaches, backache and was very irregular. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of two bottles I found relief. I am only sixteen years old, but I have better health than for two or three years.
I cannot express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.
I had taken other medicines but did not find relief."—Miss CORA B. FORNAUGH, Stoutsville, Ohio, R.F.D., No. 1.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for their daughters have been received by the Lydia E.
Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

PETERS KNEW WHEN TO LEAVE

Suburbanite Pays Evening Visit to Neighbor, But Takes Alarm Clock Along as Reminder.

The Smiths were strangers in a certain Jersey suburb and soon after their arrival Peters, who had some business acquaintance with Smith and liked him, took Mrs. Peters to the Smith home to call, says the New York Evening Sun. They found the Smiths thoroughly delightful and spent a pleasant evening. Time passed rapidly and when Peters reached home he was horrified to discover that it must have been after midnight when he left the Smith home.

Not long afterward the Smiths called at the Peters home and Peters hoped they, too, would stay until midnight to vindicate him, but they went home about 10:30 o'clock. Then Mr. and Mrs. Peters went again to the Smiths, and, as before, had a lovely time. In the midst of a pleasant conversation the ringing of an alarm clock made every one look up. Mrs. Smith seemed embarrassed, but Peters was calm. The alarm was one of the intermittent kind, and after the first blast every one settled down comfortably, only to have the ringing renewed almost at once.

"I am afraid some of the children must be playing with the alarm clock," said Mrs. Smith as she arose to go and stop the racket.

"Not at all, Mrs. Smith," said Peters.

"I brought our alarm clock along in my hat with the alarm set for 10:30 o'clock, so we would have sense enough to go home. I guess it's time for us to say good night."

WHAT HE KNOWS.

Mr. Smith—Rastus, I hear that your employer drinks considerable. Was he driven to drink?

Rastus—Well, not 'actly, sah, but he carries a bottle undah his automobile seat, sah.

How She Figured It.

And now let us insert the infallible anecdote of the day—the one of the biggest bunch that arrives. This is from a clergyman, so it must be new, true and moral.

"A little friend of mine," the domine tells us, "came to me very proudly, the other day, to show me her Sunday school 'good conduct cards.' She had a lot of them. 'I get one every Sunday I don't miss,' said she. 'And I'm going to try not to miss for a whole year.'"

"That will be fine," I answered.

"And what will happen if you don't miss a card for all the Sundays in one whole year?"

"Why, then," she smiled brightly—
'then I'll have a complete deck!'"

Grounds for Divorce.

A Cleveland lawyer overworks the telephone to tell us this one:

"A woman came up to my office the other day and wanted to know if she could get a divorce because her husband didn't believe in the Bible. I told her that unless she had something else on him there would be no use in bringing suit.

"But he is an absolute infidel!" she insisted.

"That makes no difference," said I.

"Doesn't it, indeed?" she cried, triumphantly. "Well, you are a fine lawyer, I must say. Here's the laws of Ohio, and they say that infidelity, if proved, is a ground for divorce?"

Smiles Admit to Theater.

Smiles admitted at a local theater last night, when Peter Knollenburg, a pioneer, celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday by inviting his friends to share the entertainment.

Posters were sent broadcast, announcing that every one with a smile would be welcome.

The house was packed.

At the close Knollenburg was presented with a high silk hat.

Wise Old George.

She—And how did you like the meeting, George?

He—Fine. Especially the talk by that pretty little Mrs. Featherly.

She—Mrs. Featherly! Why, the silly creature hasn't an idea in her foolish head.

He—Maybe not, my dear, but she's awfully cute.

She—On second thought, George you needn't go with me again.

Oh, the Ideal!

"I saw a woman doing the 'jelly wobble' on the street yesterday."

"How shocking! Do you suppose it was because she was intoxicated?"

"No. I suppose it was because she was so fat."

The Wrong Interpretation.

"Is Dibble a man of quick apprehension?"

"Sure. He's afraid of his shadow."

WIT and HUMOR

SHOWING HIM SHE DID CARE

Sweet Girl Accepted Invitation to Amateur Art Exhibition From Grouchy Young Man.

"I have called," said the young man,
"to tell you that I am about to start on a long journey."

"Oh," replied the sweet girl, "how interesting. Tell me all about it.
When do you expect to start?"

"In two or three days. I may never come back alive."

"I'm sorry to hear that. Where are you going?"

"To the City of Mexico."

"Have you business interests there?"

"No, but traveling in Mexico is very dangerous, you know."

"Then why do you go?"

"Well, I have been thinking it over, and it seems to me that I may as well go. Nobody seems to care whether I remain here or not."

"I'm sure it can't be as bad as that. Isn't there any girl that you ever invite to go to the theater or—or anything?"

"Would you be sorry I was going if I ever invited you to go to anything?"

"—I—I—well, I might be."

"I'm so glad to hear you say that.
I've got a couple of tickets to an amateur art exhibition for Thursday evening. Will you go?"

"On one condition."

"What is it?"

"That you will not insist on paying my car fare."

Friendly Solicitude.

"Hello, old man. How are you?"

"Oh, as well as could be expected."

"How's your family?"

"Well, if you refer to my mother, she has lost her alimony in a foolish investment, and I shall have to support her after this. If you have reference to my wife, she has been in Reno for three months and I haven't heard directly from her, so I can't tell you how she is. If you wish to know about father, all I care to say about him is that he married a chorus girl last week and is at present, I suppose, in a fool's paradise."

"Pardon me for inquiring into your affairs. You looked rather depressed, and I feared that something serious might have happened."

Couldn't Miss That Chance.

"In China," said Mrs. Wadsworth.

"They do nearly all things in exactly the opposite way from that in which they are done here."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Dawson, "I have heard that they did."

"For instance, when one person desires to compliment another over there he does not say, 'How young you look,' but 'How old you look,' and when one person is asked to guess another's age he always guesses that the person whose age is under discussion is much older than his or her appearance would indicate."

"Dear me, how curious. It would be rather difficult for them to compliment you in that way over there, wouldn't it?"

HIS IDEA OF QUALIFICATION.

Willie—Say, pop, did you ever kill a bear?

Papa—Oh, yes, I have killed a great many.

Willie—Then I guess you'll be present some day.

Ambiguous.

Temperance lecturer (in impassioned speech)—Perhaps there is some one in this very assemblage who has a bottle of the vile liquid in his pocket!

Deacon Scraggs (a little deaf, who has caught the spirit of the speaker rather than the words)—Hear, hear!— Puck.

It Would.

"Most lazy men console themselves with the reflection that their intellects, at least, are not torpid."

"That's true, but a straw vote taken among their friends and neighbors would often disabuse them of that fond belief."

The Penalty of Riches.

Gabe—Wonder what Ruffin will do now that he has inherited a fortune.

Steve—Why, he'll try to forget the lemjohne and try to learn the dem-onology.

Might Miss Something.

"Do you ever search your husband's pockets?"

"No. He talks in his sleep and I am always afraid to leave the room, even for a minute. I have never been able to get him to hang up his clothes in our bedroom."

Geological.

"She is the finest specimen of the topographical girl I ever saw."

"Topographical girl? What kind is that?"

"She has a level head and an unduating figure."—Lippincott's Magazine.

In Some Doubt.

"Does your husband know anything about baseball?"

"Really, I don't know. He talks a great deal about it, but his remarks seem incoherent to me."

Pleasant Surprise.

A farmer's wife, in the northwest, was rendered speechless with amazement one morning recently, while watching a snowstorm from her kitchen window, for she beheld a young hen which had been missing for several weeks, going through the snow, followed by a fine brood of young chicks. The pullet had hidden her nest in an abandoned cellar, and her setting of eggs had hatched out a fine brood with which, in high feather, through the teeth of a blizzard, she proceeded to "beat it" for the warmer climate of the barn.

FISHING FOR CABLES.

When a submarine cable breaks the following ingenious method is followed in order to pick up the ends. A vessel is navigated over the track of the cable,
with grapnel dragging along the ocean bed. This grapnel is specially designed for the work, our illustration showing the type used over a rocky bottom. The hooks which project from the base of the hollow are held out by powerful springs. When these springs come into contact with rocks or similar obstructions they are forced within the shelter of the cone, but when they grapple with the cable they hold on.

LIKED FRESH MILK.

An Indiana woman who had been missing milk from her crocks every morning, for weeks, finally set a watch for the thief. It came up through a hole in the dairy house, pushed aside the cover of the crock, and in a twinkling sucked up a full quart of its contents, and then wriggled back to its home under the floor—and without saying the courtesy to replace the cover.

SAFEGUARDING YOUR LETTERS.

Here is a new method of stamping letters which is springing up among private correspondents, as well as in many large business houses. The stamp is affixed
at the back of the envelope, in the center, as shown, thus making secure the adhesive flap and preventing any possibility of tampering with the contents.

ANOTHER NOVELTY HAT.

As a companion to the mirror in the crown of a man's hat, a picture of which was recently published, hat manufacturers have now
introduced another novelty—a small
hat brush, which fits tightly, by means of a clip, inside the band of the hat.
The brush, which is quite light, in no way affects the balance of the hat, and has been found to be very handy.

STRANGE FISHING NETS.

On the Congo the native, when catching fish, uses a sort of openwork trumpet, made of wooden withes interlaced together
in basket fashion,
very wide at one
end, and tapering
off to a fine point.
This is placed in the stream. The fish, coming down, swim into the opening, all unsuspecting.

He Had.

"Haven't you any fruit that you can guarantee to be free from worms?"
asked the particular customer.

"Yes, sir," said the dealer; "I've got a carload of bananas. There may be a tarantula or two, but if you can find a worm in any of them I'll make you a present of the entire lot."

PLEASANT SURPRISE.

A farmer's wife, in the northwest,
was rendered speechless with amazement
one morning recently, while
watching a snowstorm from her kitchen window, for she beheld a young hen which had been missing
for several weeks, going through the

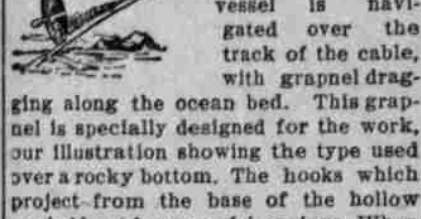

snow, followed by a fine brood of
young chicks. The pullet had hidden
her nest in an abandoned cellar, and
her setting of eggs had hatched out a fine brood with which, in high feather,
through the teeth of a blizzard, she
proceeded to "beat it" for the warmer
climate of the barn.

FISHING FOR CABLES.

When a submarine cable breaks the following ingenious method is followed in order to pick up the ends. A
vessel is navi-
gated over the
track of the cable,
with grapnel dragging along the ocean bed. This grapnel is specially designed for the work,
our illustration showing the type used
over a rocky bottom. The hooks which project from the base of the hollow
are held out by powerful springs. When these springs come into contact with
rocks or similar obstructions they are forced within the shelter of the cone,
but when they grapple with the cable
they hold on.

LIKED FRESH MILK.

An Indiana woman who had been missing milk from her crocks every
morning, for weeks, finally set a watch
for the thief. It came up through a hole in the dairy house, pushed aside the

cover of the crock, and in a twinkling
sucked up a full quart of its contents, and then wriggled back to its
home under the floor—and without saying the courtesy to replace the cover.

SAFEGUARDING YOUR LETTERS.

Here is a new method of stamping
letters which is springing up among
private correspondents, as well as in
many large business houses. The
stamp is affixed
at the back of the envelope, in the center, as shown, thus making secure the adhesive flap and
preventing any possibility of tampering with the contents.

ANOTHER NOVELTY HAT.

As a companion to the mirror in
the crown of a man's hat, a picture of which was recently published, hat manufacturers have now
introduced another
novelty—a small
hat brush, which fits tightly, by means of a clip, inside the band of the hat.
The brush, which is quite light, in
no way affects the balance of the hat,
and has been found to be very handy.

STRANGE FISHING NETS.

On the Congo the native, when catching fish, uses a sort of openwork
trumpet, made of wooden withes interlaced together
in basket fashion,
very wide at one
end, and tapering
off to a fine point.
This is placed in the stream. The fish,
coming down, swim into the opening,
all unsuspecting.

He Had.

"Haven't you any fruit that you can
guarantee to be free from worms?"
asked the particular customer.

"Yes, sir," said the dealer; "I've got
a carload of bananas. There may be a tarantula or two, but if you can find a worm in any of them I'll make
you a present of the entire lot."

Might Miss Something.

"Do you ever search your husband's pockets?"

"No. He talks in his sleep and I am always afraid to leave the room, even for a minute. I have never been able to get him to hang up his clothes
in our bedroom."

Geological.

"She is the finest specimen of the topographical girl I ever saw."

"Topographical girl? What kind is that?"

"She has a level head and an undu-
ating figure."—Lippincott's Magazine.

In Some Doubt.

"Does your husband know anything about baseball?"

"Really, I don't know. He talks a great deal about it, but his remarks
seem incoherent to me."

Pleasant Surprise.

A farmer's wife, in the northwest,
was rendered speechless with amazement
one morning recently, while
watching a snowstorm from her kitchen window, for she beheld a young hen which had been missing
for several weeks, going through the

snow, followed by a fine brood of
young chicks. The pullet had hidden
her nest in an abandoned cellar, and
her setting of eggs had hatched out a fine brood with which, in high feather,
through the teeth of a blizzard, she
proceeded to "beat it" for the warmer
climate of the barn.

FISHING FOR CABLES.

When a submarine cable breaks the following ingenious method is followed in order to pick up the ends. A
vessel is navi-
gated over the
track of the cable,
with grapnel dragging along the ocean bed. This grapnel is specially designed for the work,
our illustration showing the type used
over a rocky bottom. The hooks which project from the base of the hollow
are held out by powerful springs. When these springs come into contact with
rocks or similar obstructions they are forced within the shelter of the cone,
but when they grapple with the cable
they hold on.

LIKED FRESH MILK.

An Indiana woman who had been missing milk from her crocks every
morning, for weeks, finally set a watch
for the thief. It came up through a hole in the dairy house, pushed aside the

cover of the crock, and in a twinkling
sucked up a full quart of its contents, and then wriggled back to its
home under the floor—and without saying the courtesy to replace the cover.

SAFEGUARDING YOUR LETTERS.

Here is a new method of stamping
letters which is springing up among
private correspondents, as well as in
many large business houses. The
stamp is affixed
at the back of the envelope, in the center, as shown, thus making secure the adhesive flap and
preventing any possibility of tampering with the contents.

ANOTHER NOVELTY HAT.

As a companion to the mirror in
the crown of a man's hat, a picture of which was recently published, hat manufacturers have now
introduced another