GROWERS MAY SKIP SPRAY

Scab and Brown Rot Under Favorable Conditions Need One Less Application.

O. A. C. Experimental Station.—Special to the Independence Enterprise.—Because scab and brown rot have had but little opportunity to develop this year on account of weather unfavorable to these diseases, many growers have been able to omit the regular 10-day spray for apples and pears and the June spray for stone fruits. The season opened with minimum infection and the dry spring has made it hard for scab and brown rot to make headway.

"It is well to apply lime-sulfur, 1-50 with the 4-5 weeks spray for control of codling moth on apples and pears, as a precautionary measure," says Prof. H. P. Barass, of O. A. C. "Still if dry weather continues it will hardly be necessary to spray for any fungous disease unless present in the orchard due to local conditions.

"If it should turn off rainy in orchards where the set of fruit is good and not already covered with a protective coating of fungicide summer strength application should be made before the rain or as soon after as possible. It is too late for good control after a period of rain. In regions where fog and mist prevail it is best to hold strictly to the recommended schedule of sprays for brown rot of prunes and peaches."

Many fruit growers have been able to omit part of the regular spray program for the control of fungous diseases this year because of the dry weather. If it should turn off rainy however, where the orchard holds a valuable crop of fruit already covered with a protective coating of fungicide it would be well to apply a summer strength spray before the rain begins or as soon as possible. It is too late for control if applied after an extended period of rain. In regions where fog and mist prevail, it would be well to hold strictly to the regular schedule of sprays.

Let us show you

A wonderful new cream separator that we have just received from "the world's greatest separator factory."

We want to show you this because it is a marvel in the new profit it insures you. And yet, it is more simple and sanitary and easier turned and washed than ever.

THE NEW SHARPLES SUCTION-FEED

Separator gets all the cream even when you turn slowly. Every other separator loses cream when turned below speed.

The women can turn it 35 revolutions, the man can turn it 45 revolutions and every time the milk will be skimmed clean and the cream will be of even richness.

Come in and bring the women folks and let us show you how it works.
