Blame Nightmare on Demon.
In some portions of the continent of Europe nightmare is believed to be a spectral creature that comes and takes a seat on the breast of the unconscious sleeper, half smothering him and not permitting him to move. As those who have suffered therefrom say they cannot so much as bend the little finger during those moments of anguish, it is not surprising that the superstitious explained the condition as a malicious demon crushing his victim.

With the Fingers!
Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain
You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn or callous the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callous, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.
Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callous without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or hardened callous. If your druggist hasn't any freezone he can get it at any wholesale drug house for you—Adv.

AID MARKETING FARM PRODUCTS

Extension of Activities Which Have Demonstrated Their Value Is Favored.

MUCH DEPENDS ON FARMERS
Promotion of Proper Storage of Crops on Farm Is One of Points Emphasized in Annual Report of Secretary Houston.

A private or governmental agency of national range to supervise or direct the marketing of the nation's farm products would probably break down of its own weight, in the opinion of David F. Houston, secretary of agriculture. He calls attention, in his annual report, to the fact that measures to this end have recently been introduced in congress and that the present time is especially fruitful of proposals of a large and novel nature designed quickly to solve marketing problems.
"In the field of distribution, as well as in the field of production," says the secretary, "the farmers of the nation must assume the main tasks of Improvement. The government should furnish all possible aid in the way of information and suggestion, create favorable conditions under which production and distribution may take place, and especially see that the channels of trade are open and that abuses do not exist.

"There is no question," continues the secretary, "that everything which can legitimately be done to eliminate waste in marketing and to promote orderly distribution should be done. But the views of the most experienced students of the matter seems to be that we must approach the problem in simpler terms, work along lines which have clearly proven to be feasible, and promote existing tendencies and practices.

A Field for Work.
"Certainly we can proceed further by state, federal, and individual action in standardizing the production, the handling, and the packing of farm products and in promoting the use of standard containers and proper storage on farms, in transit and at market centers. We can continue to furnish assistance in the preparation and installation of accounting systems and more extensively and accurately gather and furnish to the farmers of the nation all pertinent statistical information. I need scarcely emphasize the paramount importance of making available daily to producers facts as to market prices, supplies, and demands. The market news services of the department of agriculture have already clearly proved their value. The department now conducts and operates an inspection service on fruits and vegetables covering 164 markets.

Help Co-operative Associations.
"Particularly must the federal and state agencies omit nothing to promote farmers' co-operative associations along right lines. Already, within a generation, many such bodies have appeared and rapidly expanded. It is estimated that they now market annually approximately $1,500,000,000 worth of commodities. They are of very diverse forms and sizes. For the most part, where they have been successful they have centered their activities on some one product, or on related products, in a given area. The indications are that with the continued success of these enterprises and with the proper educational effort and direction they will develop even more rapidly in the future. Through bulletins, news articles, and lectures the department of agriculture has endeavored to stimulate these efforts.

"The department is requesting increased funds to make this extension possible and will take the necessary action promptly if the appropriations are made."

NEED FOR MORE DAIRY COWS
Animals Afford Market for Crops and In Return Produce Foods for Farmer's Family.

More dairy cows are needed on many farms to produce food for the family. To do this the cows will need feed, such as grain, hay, stover, and silage which may be produced. Hence the cows will afford a market for the crops and in return produce foods for the family and contribute a valuable by-product, manure, which if properly used, will enrich the soil for larger crops and better profits.
