LAND OF DARK SUPERSTITION

Throughout His Life, the Moor is Guided by Strange, Sometimes Most Savage Beliefs.

One of the first things a traveler notices in a Moorish town are the "hands," painted or drawn, on the walls of many houses and buildings. These are to avert the "evil spirit"; five, the number of fingers, is considered a sacred number. These hands are also worn in the form of ornaments, and sewed to keep off the "evil one." As in Europe, the horseshoe is frequently seen over doorways.

A Moor considers it a great sin to cut bread with a knife, declaring that our hands were given us to break it. The same idea accounts for the saying that "to tread on corn is to tread on angels."

Offerings of food, hair and other small articles are often placed in the trunks of certain trees, and have a quaint significance. As the makers of these offerings are poor Moors with large families, they firmly believe that Allah will be pleased and will give them means to support their families. Some Moors declare that, after this offering, their children eat less, and, therefore, cost less to keep.

At another religious celebration spiked balls are thrown into the air and allowed to fall on the throwers' heads. The man who appears the most injured and ferocious is considered the most truly religious.

Moorish marriages are performed at midnight, and the bride is confined to her room for several days after the ceremony. No Moorish woman who is truly religious is seen in the streets at any time, except in cases of absolute necessity. Life is indeed different from that in Europe.

SURELY SHOWED SOME SPEED

Chauffeur's Dashing Ways Caused Elderly Fiancee a Little Flurry of Bewilderment.

There is a certain city in the South noted for the number of foreign chauffeurs employed by its rich men. Not infrequently do these drivers find themselves in the local courts to answer charges of speeding.

"I heard of the case of an elderly Irish cook," says a man living in the city referred to, "who got engaged to a dashing young chauffeur from the south of France. She said to her mistress, after announcing this betrothal: "My husband that is to be, mum, is such a speeder that it's bewilderin'. Saturday he picked me up after knockin' me down with his limousine; Sunday we got engaged, and today I find that he already owes me $200!"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

FORD PROGRAM WELL EXECUTED

had come to witness the interesting exhibitions of the caravan proper and enjoy the entertainment which had been provided by the business men.

From 11 to 12 there were pleasing selections by the band; from 12 until 1 there was a very pleasing piano recital at the Isis theatre by Master Wenger of Salem, with Dr. H. Charles Dunsmore making the announcements.

During the afternoon there were various power farming demonstrations on the Nelson tract just on the outskirts of the city on the Moamouth road. Six or eight Fordsons, hauling one plow, two plows, disc plows were kept busy and attracted much attention.

During the evening, on the caravan camping ground back of the Isis theatre, an effort was made to have a radio concert, but static trouble made it necessary to abandon the project after repeated trials. Moving pictures were given in the block between First and Second streets on D which had been roped off and which was subsequently used for a very enjoyable street dance with the music furnished by an orchestra composed of Valen Guild and local musicians.

The attendance here was heavy all during the day and evening and the visitors were apparently pleased over the effort which had been made to make it pleasant and profitable for them. One of the features of the entertainment was the Cherrian band. It performed repeatedly, closing with a delightful concert at the Independence National bank corner. The band was under the leadership of O. A. Steelhammer, a trombonist of repute, and the other members were: Charles Pabst and Carl Armpriest, cornets; Ludwig Mikelson, alto; C. G. Gray, baritone; Adolph Bomback and Roland Desart, clarinets; Richard Riley, bass; Dave Talmadge and Paul Stege, drums.

The caravan started from Portland July 6th, going as far south as Ashland, and present plans call for a journey of 4000 miles, which will include the eastern Oregon country.

Mr. Jordan in discussing the purpose of the caravan said: "The purpose is one of education rather than an advertising mission. Farming upon which this country naturally bases its very existence has not advanced in an industrial sense like other great interests. Power farming even to the smallest tract must be the ultimate result. Hand work in factories is almost obsolete and farms must follow along this line. What is the best power for the farm is the problem for the farmer to decide. It used to be oxen, then came the horse era and now it is the iron steed. The farmer must study his cost of production if he is to continue in business."

You cannot go wrong to buy a flour that makes white and light bread with that natural nutty flavor. CHERRO flour being milled from select hard-wheat with modern equipment assures you of a superior quality.

Cherro Flour

Use CHERRO Flour and be sure of getting flour made of old wheat at the right price.

Cherro Poultry Feeds

A high quality feed is needed when eggs are low in price as well as when eggs are a good price. It has been the experience of many poultry men that it pays well to feed CHERRO Butter-milk Egg Mash or CHERRO Egg Builder with CHERRO Scratch feeds to get best results.

Carried by most feedmen.

Buy It By the Barrel

You can buy Havoline in 55 or 30 gallon steel drums (with faucets). This is the most economical way to buy Havoline, and the most convenient way to handle it, and by far the wisest way to keep your stock of oil. Motorists know the value of using the same oil in a car or tractor.

The nearest Havoline dealer will sell you the grade you need in the way you want it—either by the barrel, one or five gallon can, or by the quart.
