REEFS LIKE FLOWER GARDENS

Variety of Color Where Living Corals Abound Described as Wonderful and Beautiful.

The traveler among the islands of the tropics finds few more curiously interesting sights than the coral reefs that surround them, remarks a writer in the Washington Star. The variety of color exhibited by the reefs where the living coral abounds is as wonderful and beautiful as that in a flower garden. But the eye of the naturalist detects beauties and points of interest that entirely escape the eye of the casual or careless visitor; for every circling reef is the home of a vast variety of living forms, which exhibit some of nature's most cunning handiwork in the adaptation of means to ends.

Among these curious inhabitants of the tropical waters is, for instance, the eel-like medusa, an animal that bears a remarkable resemblance to a plant, and whose remote ancestors in the most ancient oceans of the earth contrived to prolong the existence of their kind by developing a means of keeping the water around them comparatively pure. This is only one of a multitude of wonderful little animals to be found in such places.

WONDERS IN GRAIN OF SAND

Remarkable Combinations When Seen Beneath the Powerful Glass of Even Ordinary Microscope.

A handful of sand, trickling through the fingers in hard, dry grains, appears to the naked eye merely as a collection of tiny stones. Many of the grains are little stones ground by the action of the tides from the faces of the great cliffs against which the waves dash; but others are very different affairs.

If you spread a pinch of sand on a piece of white paper, and look at it through a magnifying glass, you will have a surprise. Many of the grains are shells consisting of turns and spirals as perfect as those of the whelk or the periwinkle, but so tiny that without the aid of a glass the eye cannot see them.

They are made by a class of minute creatures that swarm in the waters, and as the animals die their shells are washed up by the tide to form sand. In course of time they become welded into masses of stone, and the centuries pass by they form great rocks. Many of our mightiest mountain ranges are made of nothing but the shells of these tiny creatures.

Adventure With Pigmy Rattlesnake.

Dr. R. W. Shuffeldts writes in Natureland: A few months ago a friend, residing in Florida, sent me a beautiful live specimen of this snake, which was of a fine ash-gray color, marked with medium-sized, more or less rounded black blotches. A number of small buttons made up its rattle, which could be distinctly heard at a distance of eight or ten feet in a quiet room. On one occasion I came very near being bitten by it, as I was not aware that it could coil itself up tightly when on a hard, smooth surface, and then by a peculiar muscular action throw itself clear of the ground, and for several feet in any direction it wished. It nearly got me in the hand as I was about to take it up to pose it for its picture. I know of no instance where death has followed the bite of this reptile, but that this would be the result, were no attempt made to treat the wound, there cannot be a shadow of doubt.

MAKE THEIR OWN WEATHER

Screen Directors Have at Their Command Appliances Which Equal Any Methods of Nature.

On the cinema screen, even in a very short play, frequent weather changes—rain, fog and wind, are often depicted. If artists and photographers waited for real weather such as they required to occur, a lot of valuable time would be wasted. The simplest solution is to make your own weather, so that you can turn on just the type you want. Three appliances are used. The first is the rainmaker, which looks like a lightly made fire-engine. It is provided with a lattice-work tower on the top of which stands an operator who, by opening or closing taps, can produce either fine or heavy rain. The rain is directed toward the air current made by the wind machine, and by varying the strength of the "wind," the "rain" can be made to fall gently or in wild driving squalls. The wind-maker is nothing more than an engine with a large propeller mounted on a motor lorry. By regulating the speed you can have a gentle breeze that will just ruffle the heroine's curls, or a hurricane which tears leaves and branches off the trees and buffets the players as severely as a real storm. The fog machine, also mounted on a lorry, contains a number of metal nozzles provided with regulating valves. Through them a harmless white gas is liberated in such quantities as may be necessary.

GOT IDEA FROM "PITCHMEN"

Humble Beginning of Career of Man Who Founded One of Greatest Department Stores.

The vendors of small articles sold on the street after a "spiel" and demonstration are known as "pitchmen." According to an article in a recent number of a popular weekly, this industry was begun in 1860 in New York city. A newsboy by the name of Stovers got hold of some knives that had become slightly rusty, at a bargain price and sold them for a quarter, making 200 per cent profit for himself. He saw an opportunity to duplicate his feat by getting more knives, which he did, but soon the available stock was exhausted.

He associated a partner with himself and sold lead pencils in the same way. The partner's name was "Dutchy" Lehman. In a short time profits of $8,000 had accumulated. Lehman considered their luck a temporary thing, and took his share of the profits, $3,000, to Chicago, and with it opened a miniature department store, using similar tactics as the "pitchmen" by displaying goods on open tables. Immediate and increasing success crowned his efforts, and the business expanded into what is now one of the largest department stores in the world.

Died Listening to His Bells.

Limerick has one of the most beautiful peals of bells in the world. They were made in Italy by a young workman, who, after the toll of many years produced a peal of bells which were so perfect in tone that even his critical judgment was satisfied. The bells were hung in a neighboring convent, but in the course of years war swept across that part of the land, and the bells were lost.

Misfortune overtook the bell-founder, and he left his native land, wandering about the world for years. Then, hearing that his bells had been taken to Limerick, he set out to hear their sweet tones once again. As his vessel sailed up the Shannon, borne upon the evening air from the towers of the cathedral came the music of his bells. He went forward and sat listening, his gaze fixed upon the distant cathedral, but when the vessel came to anchor, and they went to him, he was dead.

Retire on Her Savings.

Someone has estimated that if a married woman, during a period of 30 years' married life, has attended to the ordinary duties of the household, she has served nearly 500,000 meals, has put up more than 3,000 jars of preserves, devoted about 35,000 hours to sweeping, washing and scrubbing, and so on at some length. Then this investigator has figured that, at accepted prices for this work, it is worth considerably over $100,000, and he asks the question, "Why cannot she retire on her savings?" And he answers his own question by asking another one, as follows: "How do you define the ordinary woman's contributions to her family wealth?"

Curious Fact as to Vision.

It is reported that experiments have been made to show that objects seen by indirect vision ordinarily appear larger in the right half of the field of vision than in the left. With a smaller number of persons this is reversed. From these facts has been deduced a possible origin of right and left handedness. Right-handedness, or its reverse, develops at about the age of seven months. It has been suggested that they may be due to the phenomenon of vision just described. By a reflex effect the infant reaches after the objects best seen with the arm nearest to them.

Strategic Finance.

"I know a man who would be willing to contribute liberally to your campaign fund."

"Take him around to the opposition and let them convert him," said Senator Sorghum. "If we can roll up enough contributions for 'em maybe they'll get enough money to start a scandal and defeat themselves."

SHERIFF ORR HAS FULL HOUSE PRISONERS

Dallas—Sheriff John W. Orr now has confined in the Polk county jail five prisoners serving sentences. Philip Warren is awaiting trial at the January term of the circuit court on the charge of murder and the balance are serving sentences for violation of the liquor laws. These prisoners are as follows: Paul Lunde, who was fined $500 and six months in jail; Sam Gibson, who was assessed $300 with four months jail sentence; Lester Keeney, who was fined $200 with a jail sentence of four months, Ralph Thrasher serving a three months jail sentence and a fine of $100.

If the fines of the prisoners are not paid it will result in Lunde serving 14 months, Gibson nine months, Keeney seven months and Thrasher 5½ months. In all the cases it is necessary for the jail sentence to be served first. The fines, if not paid, are to be served out at the rate of $2 per day.

The board bill of these prisoners means a considerable outlay to the county, meals being taken to them twice daily, one at 8 o'clock in the morning and the other at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. For the purpose of transporting the meals from the restaurant to the jail Sheriff Orr has purchased two large covered baskets. Taking it all in all the prisoners get along well together although at first a bad feeling was displayed among the prisoners confined for liquor violations. At night the prisoners are put in the large steel cages.—Observer.
