It would appear that a new party is about to spring into existence out of the ferment and agitation of the financial issues of the last four years. The new political organization is to be called the "free silver party." Representative Bland, General Weaver and General Warner are said to be the leaders of the movement. In our opinion it is a mistake to place the new party upon a distinctively free silver platform. It will be difficult, if not impossible, to unite the various schools of bimetalism upon a platform that demands the free and unlimited coinage of silver, for it is an open question whether the unlimited coinage of silver is practicable in this country under existing financial conditions. The platform should be so framed as to give the party the largest possible liberty compatible with friendly silver legislation. It is probable that the limited coinage of silver is as far as any party could venture in the matter of monetary reform, and, if so, the new party should not be bound by chains that would work its own ruin. In working out financial reforms men must be governed by conditions and not influenced by sentiment. Bimetalism is sure to gain the day in the long run, but all legislation in that direction should look to the maintenance of business stability. Radical innovations always create profound and lasting disturbances.

There is some evidence that an international monetary conference will be convened in the near future. Germany is moving cautiously in that direction, Austria favors it and France is only waiting for a favorable opportunity to join the movement. Of course the United States is ready at any time to send delegates to an international conference. The leading commercial nations easily have it in their power to place bimetalism upon a solid and enduring basis. The question of ratio is relatively unimportant, the essential thing is the rehabilitation of silver, the free, equal and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold by all of the leading nations of the world. The ratio may be 15 1/2 to 1, 20 to 1 or even 25 to 1. To be sure it would make money more plentiful to fix the coinage ratio at 15 1/2 to 1 or 16 to 1, but we should not let the question of ratio destroy all possibility of agreement upon so important and vital an issue as the re-enthronement of silver as one of the standard money metals of the world. No friend of silver should be so unwise as to throw any obstacle in the way of a monetary congress.

The Salem Statesman says: "Hon. George W. McBride is the first native Oregonian to represent the state in the United States senate, as he was the first to serve the state of his birth as its secretary." Mr. McBride is the first native son of Oregon to represent the state of his birth in either branch of congress, and for this reason all native Oregonians, whether republicans, democrats or populists, applaud his election. This may be a very narrow type of patriotism, but it is genuine and honest; nevertheless, the editor of this paper, who is a stalwart democrat and a native Oregonian, rejoices that Oregon is at last to be represented in the halls of congress by a man who knows the wants of the common people and whose over fire of being is alive with patriotic zeal for the welfare of the commonwealth which he represents. There are some things in life above and beyond the narrow horizon of party affiliation.

It does not require a political prophet to foresee trouble in the republican camp two years hence in this state. The next legislature will not be so largely republican as the last. The Dolph and Mitchell factions will be about equally divided and they will fight one another as ferociously as a pair of Kilbarney cats. Neither Dolph nor Mitchell will be the next United States senator from this state, but if by any mischance either should win it will be Mitchell. The winner of the Oregon Senatorial Derby will be some "dark horse" whose superior racing qualities is today an unknown quantity in the speculative pool boxes. It will require the united republican vote to elect. There is little doubt as to that.

The Salem Statesman stands sponsor for Senator-Elect-McBride's good behavior on the silver question in the following unequivocal endorsement: "We will guarantee that Oregon's new United States senator is a friend of silver—and that he will work and vote for an international agreement for the coinage of both gold and silver, and for legislation by this country that will warrant the use of the whole of the American product, if it can be used without impairing the financial standing at home and abroad."
