The Independence local market is being largely supplied with peaches from the orchards of Yamhill—"old Yamhill, glorious Yamhill"—as the thrifty inhabitants of that progressive commonwealth, delight to designate their magnificent county. These peaches are quite large and have a most delicious flavor, equal, we think, to the product shipped here from Southern Oregon. We advise some of our Polk county orchardists to step over into Yamhill and investigate the methods of cultivation employed by the peach growers of that county. Polk county used to grow fine peaches and it can do so again with proper care and cultivation.

DIED.

JOHNSON.—At his family residence near Independence, Ore., Monday evening, August 29th, 1895, Josiah Johnson, aged 78 years, 11 months and 15 days.

The deceased had been in failing health for a year or more, superinduced by advanced years rather than any acute form of disease, and during the past six weeks was confined to his bed.

Josiah Johnson was born in Muhlenberg county, Kentucky, September 11, 1816; emigrated to Illinois in 1841 and was married to Miss Nancy Solomon in July of the same year; crossed the plains to Oregon, in 1864, with a family of eight children, seven girls and one boy, six of whom are living. Mr. Johnson, upon his arrival in Oregon, located temporarily in the northern part of Polk county, but later purchased the Ogden farm about 2 1/2 miles north of this city. He subsequently purchased the family home adjoining this city where he and his faithful wife passed the evening of their lives in pleasant companionship.

Mr. Johnson was recognized as one of our most worthy, respected and useful citizens. He managed by industry and economy to accumulate something of this world's goods and leaves an estate of several thousand dollars. Early in life the deceased became associated with the Christian church and was a sincere follower of the great Teacher whose divine precepts have gladdened the hearts of mankind for nineteen centuries.

Josiah Johnson was a man who specially delighted in the domestic relations of life. Nothing gave him more pleasure than to associate with his children and grand-children, and a family reunion under his hospitable roof was an occasion of at least annual occurrence.

He left a widow, nearing the 80th milestone of life, and a large family of children and grand children to mourn his death.

His children are: Mrs. Wilson, of Nevada; Mrs. Wm. Burns and Mrs. Charles House, of the Lackiamute; Mrs. Henry Stumberg, Mrs. S. B. Irvine and John L. Johnson, of this city.

The funeral was preached at the family residence Wednesday afternoon, at 1:30, Rev. J. B. Lister officiating. A large number of friends were present at the burial services which were conducted at the Knights of Pythias cemetery near Monmouth.

ANOTHER PIONEER GONE.

The inexorable scythe of Time is busily thinning the broken ranks of the Oregon pioneers. Like ripened fruit in harvest time the old pioneers are dropping off one by one, and in a few more years there will be none left to answer the annual roll call.

The death of Mrs. Margaret Mulkey, of Amity, Yamhill county, removes from our midst one of Oregon's noblest women, a pioneer of 1856. Mrs. Mulkey was the daughter of Rev. Abraham Garrison, an early pioneer minister, favorably known throughout the Willamette valley for his earnest devoted christian work.

Miss Garrison was married in 1859 to Mr. Monroe Mulkey, of Yamhill county, and they have made their home among the people of that commonwealth ever since. Mrs. Mulkey had been an invalid for a number of years, but she was patient under the chastening hand of affliction. She passed into the sleep called death on Friday, August 23, 1895, and the funeral and burial services were observed the following Sunday.

Mrs. Mulkey left a husband and four children—three sons and one daughter. They are: L. D. Mulkey, S. A. Mulkey, Mrs. K. H. Scafosse and W. E. Mulkey.

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION.

Mrs. James Tetherow, in a Fit of Insanity, Drpwns Her Child.

This community was shocked last Sunday morning to learn that the wife of James Tetherow, who lives on the Luckiamute, had drowned their little six-year-old son. Mrs. Tetherow has been in failing health for some time, but the family had saw no evidence to lead them to believe that her mind was unbalanced. On the night of the terrible tragedy the mother and child occupied the same bed together, the other members of the family were sleeping in other apartments of the house. It is supposed that Mrs. Tetherow arose about midnight and taking her child from his bed, she wrapped him in a quilt and carried him to the river, and drowned about 300 yards, and returned to the house, awoke her son Albert, requesting that he get up and kindle a fire as she was very cold. While kindling the fire young Tetherow noticed his mother leave the house and go towards the river. Suspecting something wrong he hurriedly followed and upon reaching the deep pool found her in the water. He at once went to her rescue and got her back to the house as soon as possible. Mrs. Tetherow then called for her little boy Otto, and was told the child was in bed, but she insisted that he was in the river, that she had drowned him. A hurried search revealed the startling fact that

Thrown From a Wagon.

Mr. F. L. Kelley, proprietor of the Red Livery stable on Main street, met with a serious accident last Friday morning, while riding on Johnny Wilson's lumber wagon. Mr. Kelley was seated on a scantling laid across the front and hind axle of the wagon, and as they turned to go on to the bridge leading to the mill the team started in to a swift trot, causing Mr. Kelley to lose his balance and fall under the wagon, striking on his head and falling in such a manner that one of the hind wheels of the wagon passed over the upper part of his chest, producing severe concussion of the lungs. Medical aid was called and Mr. Kelley was soon resting comparatively easy. He was only confined to the house for about a day, and is now attending to business as usual. Mr. Kelley was lucky in escaping so fortunately as he did.
