It is hoped that home care and the best of medical treatment will soon restore the young man to his usual good health.—Salem Statesman. This young man is quite well known in Independence.

E. E. Paddock returned last week from Seattle, Wash. He has purchased a stock of general merchandise at South Bend, Wash., and Mr. W. P. Connaway is now in charge of the stock and will conduct the business for Mr. Paddock. Mr. Paddock informs us that he does not now intend to move his store from here, and as far as he knows will make this his home.

Joshua McDaniel, of near Rickreall, was visiting his daughter, Mrs. George Wilcox, over Sunday, returning home Monday morning. Mr. McDaniel brought to this office a bunch of oats that he raised which was close to six feet high, and is some of the finest oats we have ever had the pleasure to see. He has furnished several different lots to the railroad for exhibition purposes. This makes Mr. McDaniel's 57th crop of grain.

ELECTRIC RAILROAD.

The Falls City Waterfalls to be Utilized to Furnish Power.

It seems from all indications that only a few years more and the Willamette valley will be one continuous road of electric lines. Already large firms are asking for right-of-ways for railway tracks out of Portland as far as Salem.

Only a few days ago a son of one of the presidents of an electric street railway system of one of the largest cities in the United States spent several days in this city simply taking items and saying nothing. Since then we have received information that gentlemen now connected with the electric lines of Portland have had their engineers at Falls City looking over the water power there with a view of utilizing it for electric purposes, and will try and run an electric line from Falls City by way of Dallas to the Willamette at or near Eola, where the Rickreall empties into the river, and there to connect with a private line of boats, under their ownership, for Portland. Of course it is supposed that the final arrangements will turn out to eventually connect at Salem with the Portland system.

But it does begin to look as if it was very near a sure fact that it is only a short time until Falls City will have railroad connections of some kind with the outside world.
