The demand of progress calls for a special issue of the West Side Enterprise and that is the only excuse for the appearance of this paper today. The paper will be issued in sections this week, the first half today and the second half Friday evening. There is too much doing in the Hop Center of Oregon, as perusal of these columns will show, to be told as ancient history in a weekly publication. The West Side Enterprise, published in the hop center of the state, pretends to be the organ of the hop industry and a faithful chronicle of the news worth knowing, as it emanates from the hop fields, will be told in these columns. The county news will also be covered, even more completely than in the past.

Get on the list.

Ever since "My Old Kentucky Home," was given to the world, sons of other states have tried with varying success to immortalize the state that gave them birth in the production of a song that would make a national hit. "In the Green Fields of Virginia" has met with favor and "The Girl I Love in Sunny Tennessee," has not been a failure. Other catchy melodies of less renown extolling the virtues of southern states have been produced and it is to be observed that state or sectional songs of longest lives have been of the Southland. There is a notable exception in "My Old New Hampshire Home." Coming west, "Where the Silvery Colorado Winds Its Way," has set to vibrating vocal chords beyond the confines of that canyon bound river. No western state however, has yet been glorified in song nor had its fame extended by a tune sung by the prima donna from the stage and whistled by every boy on the street. There have been attempts to dignify Oregon with poetry and song but with the exception of Sam Simpson's tribute to "The Beautiful Willamette," success has not been scored. The last effort for the state is by Rob Roy Parrish, of Independence. Mr. Parrish has just launched a song entitled, "Land of Oregon." The words are by Mr. Parrish set to music by C. W. Kantner. It is put out in artistic form, the cover embellished with Oregon grape, and for a frontispiece picture appears a likeness of the author. It would be too much to expect of the song a literary production equal to Simpson's classic poem and its merits as a song, words and melody combined are referred to the world of music for thorough consideration before it is assigned its proper place.

The best advertising medium in the State of Oregon today outside of Portland is the West Side Enterprise. Tuesdays and Fridays are publication days. To insure publication of your advertisement turn it into the office at least one day before publication day.

Don't pick till the hops are ripe.

Yesterday was labor day. Everybody labored.

The hoppicking season beats any of your street carnivals.

A flirt is a girl who is afraid she will be left at the post.

Some people forgive and forget and others forget to forgive.

A man gets lots of things he doesn't want in this world, and woman wants a lot of things she doesn't get.

The Liao Yang river divides the Russian and Japanese armies; the Willamette the Polk and Marion county armies of hoppickers.

The girl who picks most hops in a day shall be queen of the hop harvest. The man who scores the highest record is entitled to be sent to the legislature to represent the county from which he hails.

Chief Hunt of Portland has at last earned a compliment. It comes from Ringling Bros. who are satisfied with the police protection the Ringling show had in Portland.

There are a few hundred more pickers than necessary in the Independence hop district but the growers are not disposed to take advantage of the situation by endeavoring to reduce the price of picking. All growers are paying 50 cents a box for picking without a grumble.

A great many papers are having a great deal to say about Secretary Shaw drawing salary as a cabinet officer while making political speeches in the west. Let's see, didn't Oregon's governor recently return from a political convention on the St. Louis "Pike," and has since drawn salary from the state treasury for the time he was away?

Ready at Corvallis.

Everything is bustle and activity over at the Independent office just now. Preparations are on for opening the local system to the public and all day Friday the work of connecting the phones of the local patrons with the switchboard was in progress, with the task far from completed at nightfall. The numbering of each phone was also incidental to the work, and during the day a number of business houses were given the figures by which they will be signalled on the lines. The work in the central office was under the personal direction of Mr. DeVarney, while Construction Superintendent Lowe directed operations on the outside.

A regular twenty-four hour service will be maintained.

The unexpectedly large demand for phones, with other incidents, has served largely to delay matters, and even at the present time some further delays will be encountered in extending the service to every subscriber on account of a lack of transmitters. Mr. DeVarney announces that the beginning service on Monday must not be expected to be of that faultless character that will, within a few weeks be attained. Adjustments and experiments will be necessary in order to perfect everything, and perfection cannot be attained on the kickoff. On account of this, no charge is to be made during the month of September.—Corvallis Times.

LEAGUE ACTIVE

Would Increase Telephone Service by Building and Equipping Line to Monmouth.

Citizens to Wait on County Court in Interest of Roads and Other Matters.

Notwithstanding the business rush, members of the Improvement League met last night and took up matters of importance to the city.

The report of the telephone committee was made and accepted. The report was to the effect that a joint stock company be formed for the building and equipment of a telephone line to Monmouth.

The secretary was instructed to draw up articles of agreement for the new company and members of the old committee, Riley Craven, W. W. Percival and W. A. Messenger were appointed a committee to solicit stock.

The proposed Sidney road, the Independence-Rickreall road and the need of a deputy stock inspector to reside in town were discussed and David Calbreath was authorized to charter a motor car to carry a delegation of citizens to Dallas tomorrow to wait on the county court in the interests of the objects mentioned.

The car has been secured and will leave Independence at 8 o'clock in the morning.
