The thing that is rather distressing to me to see is that sometimes the men and women who have done well in life show a curious inability to train their own children in the way that has resulted successfully to them. I think that all of us know people who, because they have worked hard and triumphed, feel that somehow or other they will spare their children. They will foolishly spare their children the acquisition of the very qualities which have made the parents triumph. Too often you see the man, and I am sorry to say, the woman, who says, "I have had to work hard; my sons and daughters shall have an easy time." He is bringing ruin upon the children who says it.

Of course, you want to give your children all the love possible, but it is not right to mistake folly for affection. When you spare the child that which alone will enable it to conquer in after life, you are not doing it a blessing; you are doing the greatest wrong in your power. Bring up the boy and girl alike with the understanding that life is not generally easy; that there will be plenty of rough times, and that what they have to show is not a spirit that avoids difficulties and finches from them, but a spirit which overcomes them.—Roosevelt.

During one of his visits to a courthouse, Abraham Lincoln heard John C. Breckinridge make, as it seemed to him, a marvelous speech. It was in defense of a murderer. After court adjourned, the tall, awkward boy was so carried away with the speech that he rushed forward to shake hands with the great advocate, but the lawyer, with a sort of contemptuous air, would not notice him. Many years after he had beaten him in the race for the presidency, Lincoln recalled the circumstance to Breckinridge, and thanked him for his speech.

Hamilton Wright Mabie, in an address to the students of the Eastman Business College, said: "If I were a young man or a young woman going out into the world to-day, I should not dare to go unless I had given myself every possible educational opportunity,—unless I had made myself absolutely master of the thing I wanted to do. I tell you, to-day, that the tragedy of modern life is the tragedy of the half-educated man or woman. It is the tragedy of the man or woman who wants to do something and can not do anything well."

The following were Abraham Lincoln's maxims for longevity: "Do not worry; eat three square meals a day; say your prayers; think of your wife; be courteous to your creditors; keep your digestion good; steer clear of biliousness; exercise; go slow and easy; maybe there are other things that your special case requires to make you happy, but, my friend, these, I reckon, will give you a good life."

Just eleven persons have declared to the West Side Enterprise, they are not the Jakey Kamms of Independence. In fact everybody is apparently making an effort at painting or improving in some way, and if the present lull is kept up in a fortnight longer it can be said Mr. Kamm has left town.

C. B. Croso and C. E. Hawkins have sold their interest in the Toledo Reporter to A. B. Clark. Mr. Clark is the man who contested the privilege of serving the people of Lincoln and Polk as representative, with J. S. Cooper.

Ladies started the "Clean up and Beautify" crusade in Oregon City. Ladies are responsible for the general renovation of Eugene and it is due to the ladies of Independence that this town is taking on a better appearance than it has presented in years.

Though they have been trained for years, the time is at hand when hop vines must again be trained.

The Divorce Question Discussed
"Next to marriage, divorce is the best institution we have in America." It was with this epigram that Ella Wheeler Wilcox launched into the discussion of the mooted subject of divorce in New Orleans, a subject which had been prompted by a question relative to her opinion of President Roosevelt's allusion to the necessity for united action by the states in the framing of laws which will make divorces less easy to get.

"There is no doubt," continued Mrs. Wilcox, "that something ought to be done in order to check the tendency toward divorce, but I can think of no particular remedy that can be applied. Society is responsible for the attitude which is employed toward divorce, and remarriage, and it is to society we must look for a remedy for this attitude. One of the most potent influences making for divorce is the fact that so few women really know how to love. Love after all is the solution of most of the world's problems. Women should learn how to love. Many a man's whole nature has been changed by the power of a good wife's love directed in the proper manner, and a life partnership saved, which might otherwise have been bankrupt at the first threatened disaster.

The Sin of Omission
"Isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you've left undone,
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you might have sent, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts to-night
The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way,
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say,
The loving touch of the hand, dear,
The gentle and winsome tone,
That you had no time nor thought for,
With troubles enough of your own.
The little acts of kindness,
So easily out of mind;
These chances to be angels
Which every mortal finds,
They come in night and silence,
Each chill, reproachful wraith,
When hope is faint and flagging,
And a blight has dropped on faith.
For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great
To suffer our slow compassion,
That tarries until too late.
And it's not the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you the bit of heartache.
At the setting of the sun."
Margaret E. Sangster.

Reports of the Austrian department of finance show that, during the decade, 1892-1902, Austrian and Hungarian emigrants to this country have sent home money to the amount of five hundred and fifty-two million dollars.

Siletz Bargains

Depoe Charley has three bargains in land on the Siletz. It will pay any one wanting bargains in land to investigate.

One 80-acre tract lies on picturesque Devil's Lake. This is an ideal summer home, good fishing, good pasture, good tourist camping ground. The cascara tree grows on this place. It is offered for $12 an acre.

Another 80-acre two miles from the mouth of the Siletz, near the cannery can be bought for $10 an acre.

A third 80 acres lies on the south side of Depoe Bay and is all prairie land on which fat cattle are now grazing; can be had for $12.50 an acre.

The owner invites any one wanting a piece of land to come and look at these tracts and then be governed by his own judgment. Address Depoe Charley, Siletz Ore.

About a million telegrams are sent every day. In 1903 the total was 364,848,474. England sent ninety-two million, four hundred and seventy-one thousand. Next comes the United States, with ninety-one million, three hundred and ninety-one thousand. Germany, Russia, Australia, Belgium and Italy follow in the order named.
