

Son. Jesus is a Son over his own house. No moral or religious duty enjoined before the coronation of Jesus, could be an act of obedience to him as Lord. Faith as a principle of action, prayer and praise as acts of worship, were enjoined by many of God's servants before "Jesus was made Lord and Christ." None of these, then, can, as such, be an act of obedience to Jesus as Lord. Circumcision, nor sacrifice, fasting, nor penance, nor the simple act of immersion in water, as such, can be this act. If he have ordained any act which, in whole or in part, was enjoined by any of God's servants, it must be presented in a form or meaning essentially new, so as to make it an act of obedience to him. I need scarcely state here, that in anticipation of this his authority and exaltation in heaven, he issued an order of this import. He commanded that in making disciples to him, they should be immersed into the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit. Obedience to such a command, or submission to such an institution, recognizes such various considerations as to make it a new act of obedience, as certainly as immersing a person believing Jesus to be the Lord, unto such a name is a new thing under the sun. He prefaced this command with an assurance that all authority in heaven and in earth was given him. But he forbade the performance of any act of this commission until after explanation—until he was made and crowned Lord of all—until he sent them power from the throne, and had received the promised lordship over the Spirit; for Jesus is "Lord of the Spirit." This command, then, was his command as "Lord and Christ." Obedience to it is obedience to him as Lord. Now if Jesus forgives sins—if there be a time in which he forgives them—if there be a reason for forgiving them at one moment which did not exist prior to that moment—if that reason be an act of submission or obedience to him as Lord—if the subject of remission be not, at the instant of remission, a rebel—if an act of obedience to Jesus, as Lord, must be an act of obedience to a positive command issuing from him, and not from any servant of God—if he commanded immersion into the name of the Father, Son, and the Holy Spirit, in the orders for converting men to him as a positive act of obedience to him, as having power to forgive; then it follows, that in obeying the first command of Jesus—in submitting to the first act of reformation—in being immersed by his authority into the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, our former sins are blotted out, which was the point to be proved from other premises than from the express sayings of his Apostles concerning remission. If then, there had not been a single promise of remission connected with immersion, in all the New Testament, it is fairly to be learned from the concessions of Christians and from the government of Jesus and the principles thereof, that remission of sins is obtained through faith in the blood of Jesus by immersion. This argument is submitted to those who rely upon reason rather than upon authority.

Questions.

CENTREVILLE, OR., Dec. 14, 1880.

Bro. Campbell:

Will you please answer the following questions through the MESSENGER?

1. Did the Church of Christ cease to exist at any time since it was established?
2. What and where is Paradise?
3. Does the spirit return to God immediately after death?

Your brother in search of Bible knowledge,

NEWTON STONE.

[Will some brother or sister who has time to prepare proper answers to these questions do so and send them to us that we may publish them for Bro. Stone's benefit.—ED.]

Church and Educational Items.

—At a meeting held lately in Erskine Church, Montreal, Principal Mac Vicar, of the Presbyterian College, Montreal, announced that Mr. David Morrice, of that city, had communicated his intention of erecting, at his own expense, a Convocation Hall and suitable library buildings, with a much needed new dining hall, and twenty-five or thirty additional dormitories for the use of students.

—The North American Review and Atlantic Monthly have given up their department of book reviews, and the International Review will do so next year. Several of the leading English Reviews have also done so.

—The American Board states that it must needs receive from the churches the coming year about $430,000, besides special donations and legacies. This represents an advance of 20 per cent in the receipts of the past year.

—The four Methodist bodies represented in New Zealand—the Wesleyans, the Primitive Methodists, United Methodist Free Churches, and Bible Christians—are proposing to unite. They have together 120 ministers.

—There are 639 Baptist churches, white, in South Carolina, with 55,139 members, or one member to every seven in the population. Of the 639 churches only 21 have preaching every Sunday. The total of contributions for missions the past year was less than $15,000.

—Dr. Pressense brings as an illustration of the superiority and prosperity of Free over State churches, the case of the Church of Neuchâtel. Founded not two years ago, in a little country by no means wealthy, it has been able to provide for all its own claims, and for those of its theological faculty; at the head of which is the illustrious scholar Godet.

—The Episcopalians of St. Louis are fully committed to the theater. Their churches clubbed together lately, hired a theater for a week, paid the manager the salary of the players, selecting of course, a moral play, and at the close turned over the profits to the local charity for the sake of which this new department was made.

—A conference on the Sunday question held recently in Edinburgh took rather gloomy views of the subject. A London Secretary referred to the alarming growth of the influence of the Sunday Society and the increasing favor with which propositions to open museums and picture galleries were received both in England and in Scotland.

—A woman who went with her husband to the Council at St. Louis, after describing what she saw, says:

In closing, let me refer to a most interesting Bible class conducted weekly by Mrs. Goodell, wife of the Pilgrim Church pastor at St. Louis. A labor of love, begun nearly seven years since with two ladies, at their request; it now numbers about one hundred names, and gathers every Sunday from fifty to seventy-five ladies. What to some would be a task, by her is esteemed a privilege; and her love for this class is akin to that of a pastor for his people. Her own soul has grown into deeper and sweeter communion with the Master because of the study and prayer she has given to this work. Besides this she conducts a weekly Bible reading to which many are drawn who would not feel confidence to attend a female prayer-meeting. Here they are sometimes led to read, and even to commit their way unto the Lord in prayer, because of the simplicity and social spirit of the meeting.

Husbands, take your wives with you to the next National Council, lest you forget to instruct them at home.

—Pacine.

—A writer says, "There is advice enough lying around loose to run three just such worlds as this: what we are suffering most for is some good examples."

Bro. Martin Peterson writing from Mound Ranch, Jackson county, Dec. 30, 1880, says: I am in fine health, working every day and preaching every Lord's day. I have good and attentive audiences, though not many additions.

I debated four and a half days in September last with R. H. Sherrell, an Adventist that came in here in August from the Willamette. He had some success in deceiving some people. He made quite a display for a time. He is now talking of settling in Jacksonville and practicing law. The people have become tired of his lectures.

I herewith send you $2.50 to put to Bro. John Daly's credit for the MESSENGER, Eagle Point, and $2.50 for myself.

The health of our valley is good; this month has been warm and rainy, but the rains come very gentle, so the streams have risen but very little; the most of the rain falls at night, so day laborers can do their work. Considerable grain is sown and coming up nicely. We had not rain enough until this month to start vegetation. November was a cold dry month here; roads were as good through the month as in the summer.

A happy new year to you and to all the brethren and sisters and also to the P. C. MESSENGER.

Literary Notices.

The Nursery, a monthly magazine for youngest readers, is a welcome visitor for its choice pictures and its original articles adapted to the capacity of young children, but pleasant reading for older people who take an interest in the remembrance of childhood's days. $1.50 per year. Address Nursery Publishing Co., 36 Bromfield St., Boston.

The West Shore for December is devoted almost entirely to the resources of the Pacific coast. This number of the MESSENGER contains several of its articles on Oregon, which we take pleasure in recommending to our readers. L. Samuel, publisher of the West Shore, promises additional attractions for 1881 in the way of illustrations and descriptive articles of our great Northwest.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK for January, 1881, shows that the old, established favorite still stands at the head of Fashion, Literature, and Art. Opening with one of Darley's gems, "Grandfather's Call," a New-Year's Poem in a Picture, it gives page after page of attractive matter for the fair sex, in Fashion and Fancy Work. Mrs. Benjamin's novel, "Jim the Parson," is the first of the novels we are promised this year, and is written in the same earnest, pure tone that made "Glenarhan" and "Hilda and J." so popular. Godey's Lady's Book, 1006 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.
