Hon. W. L. Adams is engaged in writing a history of Oregon.

Two families of Gipsies are camped near Roseburg, telling fortunes, etc.

A brewery and cooper shop were lately burned down in Roseburg. Loss $3,000.

A Miss Bowen, at Portland, is reported to have the small-pox in its worst form.

We hear nothing more of small-pox at Salem, and therefore suppose it has entirely disappeared there.

The Portland Herald chronicles the arrival of a large number of German immigrants direct from the East.

The Roseburg Ensign says the Stage Company talk of putting on six horse teams to accommodate the overland travel.

S. L. Simpson, Esq., has sold his interest in the Corvallis Gazette to C. H. James, by whom the paper will hereafter be conducted.

The Oregonian describes the raid of a wild-steer which broke loose from a slaughter pen and had to be hunted down with revolvers by men on horseback in the streets of Portland.

REMOVED.—J. C. Bell, of Dallas, is removing his fine stock of dry goods, groceries, etc., from Dallas to Independence. He purchased the corner property of Vandryn & Sommersville, which he will occupy.

FROM INDEPENDENCE TO MONMOUTH. A. B. & A. P. Butler have removed their drug store from Independence to Monmouth. They are in Waterhouse's block, two doors north of the Postoffice. They keep on hand a good assortment of everything in their line. The affable and courteous A. P. Butler, Jr., member of the firm, will be found in place, and ready to serve customers in the most approved manner.

ON THE RIVER.—Of late, the boating on the Willamette has been lively. In addition to the regular trips of the Reliance and Fanny Patton, which boats run only to Corvallis, the Active and Albany have been plying on the upper river, and they have brought a large quantity of grain down to the Salem mills. The warehouse at Oregon City is crowded with freight, and the greatest trouble at present seems to be to find vessels to carry it away, there being comparatively no tonnage in the river below.—Statesman, 24th.

THE ANATHEMA MABANATHA.—This scurrilous profanation of religion and foul blotch upon literature is degrading the pages of almost every newspaper in the land.

In its language it is blasphemous, in its spirit it is devilish, in thought it is indecent, in expression vulgar.

If it were uttered or published by a private individual it would be scouted as unfit for "ears polite," and its author would be branded a vulgarian. No newspaper hoping to maintain its standing in decent society would dare to let it appear on its pages. Yet because the poor old man whose trembling limbs are about to carry him away, dethroned and degraded, notwithstanding his "infallibility," from the city of Rome, puts it forth as "the everlasting curse of the Catholic Church," editors seem to think that this most wicked, vulgar and contemptible document can pass for decent literature.

That it should find a place in secular papers as an item of political news would be barely tolerable, but that it should be given a conspicuous place in religious journals is deplorable and in exceedingly bad taste.

The reports from Rome afford a curious example of the capacity of the human mind to see things as it wants to see them.

CHRISTIAN COLLEGE.

Our intermediate examination shows a degree of advancement entirely satisfactory in almost every instance both to teachers and scholars. Every class came forward with alacrity and cheerfulness, showing a confidence and self-possession which was the result of a conscientious ability to meet the demands of the hour. With the class of students we are now training, we will soon be able to give a reputation to Christian College amongst the leading institutions of the country. As these go out, and engage in the busy pursuits of life, they will be agents for the college, speaking by example, in their literary, scientific worth and moral excellence.

We will, at the close of the next term, in June, give the friends of the school an opportunity of witnessing the progress and proficiency of the scholars, by giving a public examination.

We want now to enlist the parents in behalf of their children. Already we hear of many families who propose to move to Monmouth to educate their children. Let others do likewise. We will provide a primary department for their little ones, and for those advanced we will furnish every facility within our power to advance them in their studies.

We wish to extend to those who wish to economize their means, the club system of boarding, now so popular and so generally practiced at the best schools in the Eastern States. It is said to be adopted indiscriminately by rich and poor. Six or eight parties club together, rent a room, hire a cook, and each furnishes his proportion of grub.

Monmouth offers peculiar advantages for this style of board. Any one may purchase a lot in the village for $25 on which to construct a house, and thus save rent and have property, which will enhance in value to cover interest of investment.

About the opening of last session the demand for horses was very great. To meet this in the opening of next session, every man desiring to come here with his family, should commence as soon as he gets his grain in the ground, to build and prepare for the opening of the session. With the prospect of getting into our new college building in the fall, and with the apparatus we contemplate purchasing, we hope to offer inducements and facilities for the acquisition of knowledge equal to any college in the State, and with some advantages peculiar to a rural location, which will commend it to the thoughtful and prudent.

Telegraphic News.

LONDON, January 20.—The Prussians have occupied Tours, meeting with no resistance.

The bombardment of Paris continues, with good results.

The remainder of the Prussian line will be offered in London and Berlin next week.

The Emperor telegraphs to the Empress Augusta, from Versailles, January 19th: A sortie was made from Valerien to-day, under cover of a heavy fire, but was fruitless. The Army of the North was beaten to-day before St. Quentin and 4,000 prisoners and two guns captured. (Signed) WILLIAM.

Another dispatch of the Emperor, dated Versailles 20th, says: Faidherbe will be pushed to-day. The sortie from Valerien, yesterday was made in great force. The troops are still outside of Paris, and a fresh attack is certain to-day. (Signed) WILLIAM.

Berlin journals confirm the report that Count Bernstorff has been instructed to withdraw from the Conference if the French question is introduced. It is reported from the Belgian frontier that Longwy is in flames, but a heavy fog prevents verification of the report. Large numbers of refugees have arrived on the British island of Jersey from the neighboring French coast, in consequence of rumors that the Grand Duke, Mecklenburg, was advancing on Rennes.

Bismark, in a letter of the 17th, replying to the American and other foreign ministers in Paris, denies the reasonableness of their demand that their compatriots might be allowed to quit the city as neutrals. He says they had abundant notice before the siege and that the only outlet now is capitulation.

Facilities for the intercourse of members with their respective Governments continue, though they are inconvenient. Firing on buildings containing women, children and invalids is unintentional, but avoidable.

The North German Gazette states that, according to the treaty of 1779 between Prussia and the United States, Prussia man-of-war cannot capture American vessels carrying into the port of the war, or may take possession of contraband portion of the cargo, at the same time giving bond for future payment of the same. It is probable infractions will be given all commanders of vessels in the German Navy to act in accordance with this treaty.

VERSAILLES, January 20.—Large fleets were seen in Paris last night, near the Pantheon.

Yesterday, the 19th, a sortie of force was made under the guns of Fort Valerien. The cannonade was fearful on both sides, and the German loss heavy. A British cable from London, the 20th, says that Gladstone resigns his seat from Greenwich, and Grovernor retires from Westminster. Childers is paralyzed in the lower half of the body. The Ministry is going to pieces.

LONDON, January 21.—The St. Quentin railway station was stormed by the Prussians, and the town afterward occupied. Some 2,000 were wounded and captured, with six guns.

The Prussians occupy the approaches to Longwy. The French shells destroyed a farm house, and burnt forty Prussians. It is said the fire of the garrison silenced the battery.

Nothing new from Paris. Damages by the bombardment are but few killed. Doves of oxen, intended for Paris, passed through Reims, ready for the advance of Chanzy, who was receiving reinforcements.

The bombardment of Longwy is vigorously continued, and the town is on fire.

SAN DOMINGO, January 10.—The news of the visit of the United States Commissioners is received with great favor, and by some with enthusiasm. Affairs are at a standstill awaiting further action by the American Congress. Agents of German, English and American capitalists are traveling through the island making investigation in order to begin enterprises when the annexation is consummated.

Cabrill continues to issue proclamations and commit depredations, but don't care to meet Baez troops.
