MONROE, Or., June 9.—The general merchandise store, of A. Wilhelm & Son, of this place, was broken into this morning at 1 o'clock. The junior member of the firm confronted the burglar with a revolver, ready for use, and captured him. He proved to be Frank Prior, who has been visiting friends in this locality for three months. At the preliminary examination today, Justice Kelley bound the prisoner over in the sum of $400, in default of which he was transferred to the county jail at Corvallis by Constable Loumy, where he will await the action of the circuit court in November.

He enlisted for service in the Philippines. But on account of lung trouble was unable to pass the examination. The interment will probably be at Rosewell, Idaho.

MAY BE HESSIAN FLY.

That Scourge Reported Down the Valley—A Lane County Field Answers Description.

Presley Comegys brings us some samples of fall wheat from his farm above Springfield that looks very sorry indeed. The wheat promised exceedingly well during the springtime, but now the stalks and heads are dried up and broken while the heads of wheat are very few and those seem to have little wheat in them. The heads are short and have only two rows of wheat instead of the usual four. Mr. Comegys is of the opinion that his fifty acres of fall wheat will not produce five bushels to the acre, and will not be worth cutting. He reports other fields of wheat in the "Forks," the best wheat section in Lane county, in the same condition. Spring wheat is not far enough along to determine how it will turn out, yet there is so little spring wheat sown nowadays that it would make little difference with the crop however it may be affected.

REPORTS OF HESSIAN FLY.

The injury to be the result of the dreaded Hessian fly? A Hillsboro, Washington county, dispatch of June 9 says:

"Farmers in this vicinity are becoming alarmed over the possibility of a wheat pest which has hitherto never bothered Washington county growers. For some weeks the fall sown grain has appeared to be afflicted with rust, but closer examination has revealed that the Hessian fly, the terror of Mississippi valley grain growers, has attacked this part of the Willamette valley. About two weeks ago Henry Hesse, a prominent North Plains farmer, found the first larvae of the great destroyer. He brought them to this city, and all authorities pronounced them the eggs of the Hessian fly. The report now reaches this city that larvae has been found in a district extending over 15 miles west of the Multnomah line, and while the insect is now affecting the winter grain, farmers fear its attack on the spring-sown grain."

The Hessian fly is a minute midge, somewhat smaller than the common gnat, which it somewhat resembles. It is confined to the United States though allied species are found in Europe. The female fly lays twenty to thirty eggs in a crease of the leaf of the young wheat plant, and the larvae when hatched work their way between the leaf and the stalk till they come to a joint, a little below the surface, where they remain head down, sucking the sap, and turn to pupae in a covering. There are two broods every year, one reaching the fly state in May, the other in August or early in September. The usual result of the attack is that small abraded heads only are formed, the few grains of which shrivel and scarcely ripen, the straw also being of inferior quality. The insect is about one-seventh of an inch long and in stage group themselves in regular rings round the stem attacked.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

Class Tree Exercises Held Today.

Special to the Guard, June 12.

The recital of the students of the musical department of the University last night attracted a large audience. The program was of unusual excellence and the audience evinced its appreciation of the various numbers by generous applause. The vocal rendering showed especial training. Miss Roush was the only solo on the program known to a musical audience and has established reputation was augmented by selections from Rubenstein and Chamaine. The Misses Gibson made pleasing voices, which show much promise. The quartette of little ones was pleasing. Among the piano students all showed a close attention to technique and interpretation. Miss Roush handled the Spinning Song, Mendelssohn, very nicely, and Miss Young, who is a very emotional player, interpreted the Fantasia Impromptu, Chopin most excellently. Miss Carrie Ford played "Arabesque," Chamaine with life and feeling. Her work is very meritorious. Mr. Arthur Louis Frazer had one number, Capriccio Brilliant, op. 22, Mendelssohn, with orchestra parts on second piano by Mr. Nash. Mr. Frazer has done work during all this winter which is praiseworthy, and promises much for his future work in music. In all the evening was one of pleasure and profit.

FIELD DAY.

Owing to the fact that the track athletes have gone out of training and some of them have returned home, the field day exercises this morning were dispensed with.

CLASS TREE EXERCISES.

The class tree exercises were held this afternoon at 2:30, on the campus. The oration was delivered by A. H. Tyree, who chose for his subject "The Supremacy of England." The class tree poem was delivered by Homer D. Angel, and was one of the best ever written by a graduate student. Both members of the class received kind words for their efforts at the close of the exercises. The class tree poem will appear in the next issue of the U. O. Monthly.

The class of 1900 has dedicated to the perpetuation of its memory one of the old oaks on the campus, and have fastened thereon a bronze tablet, inscribed, "1900"
