Hold On To Wheat and Hops.

Salem Journal, Oct. 5.
The Journal does not think the growers of wheat and hops have any risk to incur by holding on to their wheat and hops. If the wheat is in a good granary or store-room or well warehoused it is safe from any further reduction in price. Dollar wheat will not be realized. Mr. A. F. Myers returned this week from Sherman county where he sold his wheat for 44 cents a bushel. When the wheat is in market that has to be marketed by those in need of money right after threshing, buyers will find difficulty in getting lots of good grain and the price will go up.

The same is true of hops. There is a short crop and the grower who can hold his crop in the bale until the most favorable market is found for him will make money in doing it. We do not usually offer advice on these matters but it seems to us wrong to hasten sales under all the circumstances. Usually in a presidential year there is falling market but this year the worst that can happen, or is claimed to happen if Bryan goes in, is the blow in the stomach that the trusts will get. They may not be able to maintain prices on what they sell.

But no one predicts a fall in wheat or any staple product. The republicans are not promising the farmer a dollar a bushel this year for wheat. They are not claiming that they put up the price of hops or prunes. In fact, they know these things are beyond the reach or control of any party or administration. Organization of the producer as well as the manufacturer may advance the price of an article. The fruit growers and the hop growers have felt the benefit of organization and should rely more on the benefits they will get on that line than on political promises.

GOOD SALE.—Corvallis Gazette: "Robert Johnson, manager of the Benton County Prune Company, closed a deal with Mr. Cobb, Wednesday, whereby the latter receives the entire product of the big prune orchard. Manager Johnson estimates the amount of dried fruit that he will supply Mr. Cobb at somewhere between 80,000 and 90,000 pounds. For the prunes delivered at the car Mr. Cobb pays 5 cents per pound, and he takes the fruit ungraded. In this he takes no risk, as the fruit is all first-class. Bob is a success wherever you put him."

ARTICLES FILED.—Salem Statesman: Isaac H. Bingham, P. J. Jennings and Wm. S. Pond filed articles of incorporation yesterday, organizing the Oregon Mining Company. The new corporation proposes to engage in mining operations throughout the state. Portland is the headquarters of the company. The capital stock is fixed at $1,000,000, divided into shares at $1 each.

NEW TIME CARD.—The new time card which is being prepared by the S. P. Co. officials will not change the schedule time of any of the passenger trains; but will alter the time of the arrival and departure of freight trains only. It is expected that the new time card will be put into effect in about ten days.

Military Club Meeting.

The Military Club held a meeting last night of a business nature. The trustees were instructed to ascertain the cost of furnishing the new armory with all accessories needed, to make a report as soon as practicable.

A committee consisting of D. E. Moran, Burgess Ford and Earl Mount to ascertain the cost of various appliances for the gymnasium, and make a report recommending the purchase of those things essential at the outset.

The club expects to have everything in hand by the time the new armory is opened, and it is a source of pride to the boys to know that they will have the best equipped armory building in the state outside of Portland.

A WARM SPRING AUTOCRAT.

Travels With His Harem and All Worldly Possessions.

BELKNAP SPRINGS, October 1.

The other day while being entertained by the genial gentleman from whom the Belknap Springs were named, R. S. Belknap, under the trees in front of his Lost Creek feed stand, a peculiar appearance attracted our attention. A genuine old fashioned "stovepipe" hat first came in sight above the crest of the road grade, then a broad, smooth shaven, coppery face, followed by the body of an Indian and the pony he rode. Three squaws with several children, packed and loose horses and two dogs, all in a bunch, followed their lord and master at a respectful distance.

The Indian arriving near us threw his bride reins to the ground and exchanged salutations with Mr. Belknap in choice Chinook "wawa" (talk). The squaws, except one, began to strip a pack horse of his load and prepare a lunch. The excepted squaw came down from astride the horse, (she did not wear bloomers) and took a seat upon the ground. No labor for her. It is needless to say she was the favorite of the harem which the old Mormon "Skookum" (strong) "John" maintained. To all appearances she was about twenty years of age, of full face, rather handsome for an Indian woman, and somewhat corpulent. "Skookum" had probably seen sixty winters. Mr. Belknap gained the information that they had been picking hops for Dan Linton; also that "Skookum John's" favorite squaw was added to his collection through an exchange of 10 horses. Asked if he could not have got rid of one of his old squaws as "boot" in the trade he gave an emphatic shake of his head, with a side glance at his chattel, accompanied by the explanation, "waka close," which may be interpreted as "no good" or "not much value."

"Skookum John" seemed disinclined to discuss his domestic affairs further, but as we left followed us to the cabin to get a feed of oats for the particular horse which was selected to bear him to his Warm Springs home in Eastern Oregon. The cavalcade started with the old Indian in the rear. After getting off about 100 yards he returned and headed the "stovepipe" to Mr. Belknap with the injunction to keep it safely until his return another season. Perhaps he thought such style would be met with ridicule by his dusky brethren and preferred to do the grand act only in the presence of his paleface brethren who could not otherwise than astonishedly gaze at the would be devotee of fashion.

BRYAN CLUB MEETING.

Lee M. Travis Addresses the People at the Court House.

Lee M. Travis addressed a good sized crowd of ladies and gentlemen at the court house last evening on the political issues of the day from a democratic standpoint. His themes were imperialism, militarism, trusts, tariff. He held his audience splendidly and the applause was frequent. His speech was convincing. He predicted the election of Bryan and Stevenson by a large majority. Mr. Travis will be heard from at different points in the county probably during the campaign.

The next Bryan speech will be delivered by Judge Dell Stuart, presidential elector, in the court house, Monday evening, Oct. 8 at 7:30 p. m. Everybody invited, especially the ladies and republicans.

Mr. Stuart is one of the most talented orators in the state.

Laurean Society.

The first regular meeting of the Laurean Literary Society of the University was held last evening in the hall in Professor Schmidt's recitation room. After the regular routine business, their being no program for the evening, the society spent the time very profitably listening to extemporaneous addresses given by several of the members.

Mr. Campbell related in an interesting manner some experiences of his envying party during the summer. Mr. McKay spoke at length on the work of the reading campaign. Other speakers were Bilyeu and McArthur.

The library of the corporation of the Laurean and Emilian has been moved to the dormitory and added to the general library of the University.

FLAX FIBER.—D. S. Hunsaker, who arrived home yesterday from a trip down the valley, brought with him from Selw, some flax fiber from the mill at that place. As the growth of flax has become an important industry of the Willamette valley, many will probably like to see this fiber, which will be at the GUARD office for a few days.

SIUSLAW FISHERMEN

INJUNCTION IS ASKED FOR.

The growing discontent of the Siuslaw river fishermen against fish traps has finally resulted in a suit being brought to force the owners of the traps to remove them from the river, thereby enabling the fishermen to ply their vocation freely throughout all portions of the various streams.

A suit was filed today with Clerk Lee, of the circuit court enjoining the use of the traps perpetually. The case is entitled: John C. Beck, James A. McLeod, Wm. Brynd and W. W. Neely, plaintiffs vs Wm. Kyle and M. Meyer, co-partners under the firm name of Meyer & Kyle, Samuel Elmore, Frank Montgomery, George Montgomery and O. W. Hard, defendants.

A portion of the allegations as set forth in the complaint of the plaintiffs attorneys, L. Bilyeu and Thompson & Hardy, is as follows: "That said defendants and each of them are attempting unlawfully and wrongfully to prevent the plaintiffs herein and the persons whom the plaintiffs represent from fishing in said Siuslaw river and its tributaries, and from following their occupation as such fishermen in the following manner, to wit: "That defendants have built and constructed and placed in said Siuslaw river, at divers points and places, and in said lower Siuslaw bay, and in the tributaries of said Siuslaw river, particularly the North Fork, large stationary fish traps. That said defendants have unlawfully and wrongfully so placed said fish traps in said rivers as aforesaid, so as to entirely obstruct the channels of said streams rendering it impossible for plaintiffs and the persons whom the plaintiffs represent, to fish in said streams with drift nets and gill nets for the purpose of catching salmon and other fish, and said defendants are now and for a long time have been preventing the plaintiffs and the persons whom the plaintiffs represent from following the occupation of fishermen. That prior to the obstruction of said streams by said defendants as aforesaid, the plaintiffs and the persons whom the plaintiffs represent, followed the vocation of fishing on said streams with gill nets and drift nets, in accordance with the laws of the state of Oregon. That defendants have so blocked and obstructed said streams as aforesaid, that said plaintiffs and the persons whom the plaintiffs represent, are deprived of the common right of fishing in said streams.

That said defendants have placed said traps on either side of said streams extending almost entirely across said streams, and so unlawfully and wrongfully obstructed said streams that the plaintiffs and all other persons are entirely prevented from fishing in said streams. That said defendants and each of them are jointly and together attempting to monopolize the right of fishing and the business of fishing in said streams, and to unlawfully and wrongfully prevent the plaintiffs and all other persons from fishing in said streams by the unlawful and wrongfully maintenance of said traps, as aforesaid."

"That the fishing season for the fall of 1900 is now open and begun, and plaintiffs and the persons whom the plaintiffs represent are now and will be for the remainder of the fishing season prevented from following their vocation by the unlawful and wrongful acts of said defendants, aforesaid, unless said defendants are at once restrained."

"Wherefore plaintiffs pray for a decree of this court enjoining and restraining the defendants and each of them and the servants, agents and employees of said defendants and each of them, from obstructing and blocking said streams with said fish traps, as set forth in the complaint, and that said defendants and each of them be ordered and required to remove said traps and obstructions from said streams and that said defendants and each of them be perpetually enjoined and restrained from obstructing said streams and interfering with and preventing the plaintiffs and fishermen whom the plaintiffs represent from following their vocation, as such fishermen, and fishing in said streams, and that said defendants and each of them be so enjoined and restrained pending this suit, and that plaintiffs recover their costs and disbursements in this suit, and for such other and further relief as to this court may seem meet and agreeable to equity."

LOTS OF HOPS.—Dallas Itemizer: Ike Youcum has 435 bales of hops of his own; to say nothing of the still larger lot belonging to Groves & Youcum. He has been offered 14 cents for his hops all around. He used to be in the business here.

LARGE LAND DEAL.

Henry E. Ankeny of This City Invests in Klamath County.

Klamath Falls Express Oct. 4.

Hon. Henry E. Ankeny and wife and R. E. Cantrill and wife arrived the middle of last week from Jacksonville to remain several days. Mr. Ankeny is negotiating for the purchase of the Big Klamath Irrigation Ditch and we understand if the transfer is made, he will put in about $50,000 more in enlarging and increasing the capacity of the ditch.

LATER.

Hon. Henry E. Ankeny on Tuesday purchased of J. F. Adams and E. R. Reames a half interest in the Big Klamath Irrigation ditch, consideration not made public. The other half of the ditch is owned by J. T. Henley, and in case his interest is not bought by Mr. Ankeny we understand the ditch will be greatly enlarged anyhow. However, if Mr. Ankeny should become the sole owner it is stated he will make it an irrigation canal equal to the needs of this valley with its 65,000 acres of land needing irrigation water.

Junction Items.

Times, Oct. 6.

Hank Hill will leave for Portland Monday, where he will attend the State School of Pharmacy for a term of three months.

Mrs. T. F. Barton and daughters, of Ellensburg, Washington, who have been the guests of Mrs. Emma Barton, left for Eugene Tuesday.

The annual election was ordered for the first Monday in November to elect two councilmen and a marshal. The following judges were appointed: S. L. Moorhead, S. P. Gilmore and J. M. Pollock.

Mrs. George Thompson is dangerously sick in her apartments in the Junction City Hotel. Dr. Kuykendall, of Eugene, came to see her Thursday. Her condition is considered critical.

W. Waddle has let the contract to L. N. Honey, of Eugene, to remodel the Monogram saloon. He has leased the north room of the Folsom brick which will be used as a billiard hall. An arch will be made in the brick wall.

Will Speer and Ed Bundy returned from Cape Nome Tuesday morning. Both these men made wages while in the frozen north, but they have had all of it they want. They report there are from 3,000 to 5,000 people that the government will have to help or they will come to grief. After remaining here a few days Mr. Speer will try Southern Oregon mines.

W. S. Lee is remodeling the second story of the Lee block, formerly known as the Masonic hall, and will convert the same into a hotel and boarding house. He expects to open up for business in about two weeks. A. J. Kaiser has rented the resident property now occupied by Mr. Lee and will take possession November 1st.

Market Notes.

Rural Northwest.

Fancy silver prunes in 25 pound boxes, are quoted at 7 1/2 cents in San Francisco.

The market is bare of buckwheat in San Francisco. Good to choice is quoted at $1.65 to $2.00.

Evaporated pears are quoted in San Francisco at 7 1/2 and 8 cents for fancy and 5 1/2 and 6 for choice.

A sale of stock cattle was made at John Day, Oregon, a few days ago by Donald McKay at $29 a head all around.

Almonds are quoted in California at 13 cents per pound for Langudoo, 15 cents for I. X. L. and 16 cents for Nonpareil.

Salinas Burbank potatoes are quoted 85 cents $1.05 per cental at San Francisco, and River Burbanks at 45 to 70 cents.

West Coast Trade notes an improved demand for apples at Tacoma where they are going out steadily at 50 cents to $1 per box.

The price of four-tier yellow Bellflowers at Watsonville, Calif., is steady at 75 cents per box; 85 carloads of apples had been shipped from that place to points east of the Rockies this season up to September 20.

Chas. A. Simpson and Ed McKinney, sheepmen, of Condon, Oregon, bought 2000 ewes in Grant county at $2.00 per head. This is considerably lower than the prices which have been paid during the past few months.

Clay, Robinson & Co., quoted good to choice steers at Chicago, September 29 at $5.30 to $5.75 per cwt; good to choice hogs, $5.40 to $5.57 1/2 per cwt; good to choice mixed sheep, $3.75 to $3.85 per cwt.

There is still a pretty fair supply of peaches on the Portland market coming from Columbia river points and Douglas county, in Oregon, and a few from California. Oregon grapes are beginning to come in more freely.

INJUNCTION GRANTED.—Judge J. W. Hamilton this afternoon granted a temporary injunction restraining Meyer & Kyle et al from operating fish traps in the Siuslaw river and tributaries.

FOOTBALL.

The Week With Kaarsberg and His Men.

The week of football at the U. O. has been one of constant work. Coach Kaarsberg is becoming familiar with the material of the school, and will soon have the candidates virtually classified.

That there will be a hot contest for a number of positions makes the work all the more enthusiastic. Among those developing into something like varsity form are four candidates for quarter-back, two for full-back, and at least four for half-back. Of the line aspirants are four hard workers for guards, the same number for tackles and as many for ends. Wagner is secure for center.

The injury to Edwards' knee the fore part of the week makes it not probable that a new man will be seen at quarter. It is to be hoped not. His heavy work was one of the features of last year's strong team. And besides it takes time to train a quarter.

The game with Multnomah November 5 at Portland will open the season, and from advance reports from the metropolis this club will put up a team this year better, stronger and speedier than any which has before represented the club. The club and varsity have long had the best teams in the state and their contests are by common consent those for state supremacy.

Independence Enterprise: Miss Dora Cooper returned Saturday from Juneau, Alaska, where she spent the summer. She resumed her position as teacher in the public school on Monday.

Marshfield sun: Seymour W. Condon, at one time prosecuting attorney for this district, was in Marshfield this week. Mr. C. is located at Oakland, Cal., and came up to attend to matters in the circuit court.

Corvallis Gazette: Dr. M. M. Davis expects to move his family out from the bay with a view to wintering in Corvallis. Just when he will make this move is not determined, as "Doc" is interested in the salmon fishing industry at Yaquina, and does not care to leave there before the close of the season.
