

HOW THE TELLER ROBBED THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF NEW YORK.

Late New York newspapers show how Alvord, the bank teller, managed to steal $700,000 from the First National Bank of that city, his peculations running over a long period of time. The plan of concealing them, and making the cash on hand agree with the amount for which he was accountable, as shown by the books, was to take out of the morning mail of which he was in charge a sufficient number of cash items to cover the aggregate amount of his defalcation and add them to the exchanges for the clearing house received during the preceding day. This could be easily done as he handled an average of perhaps four million dollars a day.

If Alvord wished to take a vacation he would make charges enough against some big out-of-town correspondents to balance the amount of his shortage, then return to balance accounts before settlements the first of the succeeding month brought exposure.

The man lived over a little hell, but he took his enjoyments and pleasures without showing the least sign of being the possessor of a conscience.

A GOOD ONE.

Those patent political supplements which are folded in every issue of the local Republican papers now a-days are queer things when one has the time to waste in studying them. For instance, the latest out in Oregon has a heading, "Men who have deserted Bryan for McKinley," and the most prominent name mentioned in this department is that of Gen Lew Wallis, the novelist. As Mr Wallace never supported Mr Bryan or any other Democratic candidate for president in his life, this news of his "flop" makes interesting reading.

One of these supplements intended for eastern country circulation was by mistake sent out into Kansas, and scattered broadcast before the mistake was noticed. It gave a list of five hundred voters in Lawrence county, who had flocked from Bryan to McKinley, and as there is no Lawrence county in the state of Kansas, it produced somewhat of a sensation out there. Now the Republican managers are trying to call them all in in order to send them back east where Kansas geography is not well known.

THE BETTING ARGUMENT.

The betting odds on McKinley have parallels in the case of Cleveland, in 1888, when the odds ranged 5 to 3 to 2 to 1, yet he was defeated by 65 majority in the electoral college. In the succeeding presidential election the odds were 2 1/2 to 1 on Harrison, yet Cleveland had 132 plurality in the electoral college. The betting odds are always in favor of the party in power.

There is another view of the situation. Practically all the millionaires are against Bryan. They can afford to bet and lose. The odds are what they are because the men with money to wager are backing their wish and their hope.

Occasionally political enthusiasts overshoot the mark. For instance a Mr Feidenheimer, just returned from New York, assures the Portland Telegram that "McKinley will sweep the country," and adds that "even Croker's men are betting on McKinley when they get a chance." Now if Mr Feidenheimer will explain how there can be any betting going on when both sides are anxious to bet on McKinley he will relieve many minds that have been figuring on the proposition.

"All preparations are made here to enormously swell the vote for McKinley" wires the Eugene correspondent of the Salem Journal to that paper. The "preparations" may have been made, yet there will not be much swelling witnessed without election officials do clever work. And the GUARD has no question of the honesty of the men who will receive and count the votes next Tuesday.

Hard work does not hurt a well woman. It is the weak woman, suffering from diseases peculiar to her sex, who breaks down under the daily strain of household duties. For diseases of the delicate womanly organs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the standard remedy. Over half a million women owe health and happiness to Dr. Pierce's treatment.

GOES TO WASHINGTON.

Prof. Collier Under Orders to Prepare the Report.

Salem Statesman. Prof. A J Collier, formerly a member of the faculty of Willamette University, and who recently returned from Alaska, where he spent the past summer and fall as a member of the Cape Nome geological survey, yesterday received a telegram from the department at Washington, ordering him to the national capital, there to prepare the report of the expeditionary force. It is expected Prof. Collier's work will consume about three or four months and he leaves for Washington today or tomorrow.

At the conclusion of his work in Washington, Prof Collier will attend some Eastern college and take an advance course in petrography, and it is quite probable that he will then be assigned to a permanent place on the geological survey, as he is recognized by the department as a very valuable man, and one who gives his whole efforts to the work in hand.

Mr Collier is now in Eugene visiting relatives and friends.

JOHN H. MITCHELL.

He of Free Silver Fame Encounters a Frost at Salem.

Salem Journal, Oct. 31. "The Mitchell speaking was a frost; a dead cold frost.

"If the Hon John H. remembers the crowd that turned out four years ago to hear him explain his plans for building a railroad to Mars, he must have felt the contrast. At the largest estimate not over 150 men, women and children were in the hall, when after a long wait, Mr Mitchell commenced his address, introduced by Chairman E M Croisan, and by actual count a dejectedly filed out there was just 706 people, including himself, in the hall when he quit."

Pure Home Made Brandy

Pure double distilled brandy contains neither fusil oil or prussic acid, nor any other poison except what is contained in the fruit. Neither is it fit for use, as hundreds of men, and dozens of old distillers who now live in Oregon, can testify. Distilled liquors are always clear in color, not red, until age gives them a yellowish cast.

I will sell you pure double-distilled brandy, apple or pear brandy made near Eugene Oregon for $2.50 a gallon, or 75 cents a quart.

I M Francis, Distiller, Fifth and Blair streets, Eugene, Oregon.
