Few are entirely free from it.

It may develop so slowly as to cause little if any disturbance during the whole period of childhood.

It may then produce irregularity of the stomach and bowels, dyspepsia, catarrh, and marked tendency to consumption before manifesting itself in much cutaneous eruption or glandular swelling.

ADVANCE IN PRICES.

Binder Twine Market Rises Half a Cent and Is Still on the Up Grade.

Confirming predictions in our former comments on Binding Twine, prices have advanced one-half cent per pound on all grades. This advance is made on the strong position of the fiber market, and indications are that present prices will be maintained, although even higher prices may prevail in the very near future.

Consumption will be larger than anticipated as, from farm papers of the Mississippi valley, a larger amount of twine than usual will be required for the oat harvest, an increase of at least 25 per cent by most conservative estimate. Wheat straw is large and grain lodged, thus demanding more twine where only an average was looked for a few weeks since. This means a shortage of twine in the East.

A careful canvass of the Northwest indicates that home manufacutrers are well prepared to take care of the market of this section, and native pride would dictate that, other things being equal, home products should be given preference. Brands with no superior in quality, and an excellence such as possessed by the Clover Leaf Brand with lower cost per 1,000 feet, also a market near at hand, dealers should not hesitate in making up their orders. At present, however, heavy shipments are being made, and orders should be placed at once as better attention can be given to early orders than where bunched so near harvest time.

The Octopus.

Sleepy Grass.

Sleepy grass is found in New Mexico, Texas and Siberia. It has a most injurious effect on horses and sheep, being a strong narcotic or sedative, and causing profound sleep, or stupor, lasting 24 to 48 hours.

BAD BLOOD, BAD COMPLEXION.

The skin is the seat of an almost endless variety of diseases. They are known by various names, but are all due to the same cause, acid and other poisons in the blood that irritate and interfere with the proper action of the skin.

To have a smooth, soft skin, free from all eruptions, the blood must be kept pure and healthy. The many preparations of arsenic and potash and the large number of face powders and lotions generally used in this class of diseases cover up for a short time, but cannot remove permanently the ugly blotches and the red, disfiguring pimples.

Eternal vigilance is the price of a beautiful complexion when such remedies are relied on.

Mr. H. T. Shobe, 2704 Lucas Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., says: "My daughter was afflicted for years with a disfiguring eruption on her face, which resisted all treatment. She was taken to two celebrated health springs, but received no benefit. Many medicines were prescribed, but without result, until we decided to try S. S. S., and by the time the first bottle was finished the eruption began to disappear. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now seventeen years old, and not a sign of the embarrassing disease has ever returned."

S. S. S. is a positive, unfailing cure for the worst forms of skin troubles. It is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and the only one guaranteed purely vegetable.

Bad blood makes bad complexions.

SSS purifies and invigorates the old and makes new, rich blood that nourishes the body and keeps the skin active and healthy and in proper condition to perform its part towards carrying off the impurities from the body.

If you have Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, or your skin is rough and pimply, send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases and write our physicians about your case. No charge whatever for this service.

CURE FOR THE BLUES.

HOW TO GET RID OF SPELLS OF MORBIDNESS.

An Absorbing Interest or Occupation Is Best Remedy—Victims of "Blue Devils" Are Too Much Taken Up with Their Own Sensations.

Is there anyone of the human family who does not suffer occasionally from that "loathed melancholy" called "the blues?" If such a person exists he is as rare as the great auk.

From whatever cause the blue devils take possession of us, whether from derangements of the liver or nervous system, or from simple ennui, the cure for them is the same, unless, indeed, they are bred by organic disease which has taken vital hold of the system.

And this cure—an absorbing interest or occupation. People who ride their hobbies in season and out of season very rarely have the blues. Enthusiastic collectors are also apt to be aggressively cheerful. If you suffer from depression of spirits, then take the advice of authorities on the subject and look about for an interest in life.

Ursula Gesterfeld, in one of her books handles the blue devils without gloves. She frankly informs the victims that what is the matter with them is not that they are "too fine for earth's coarser uses," and that their delicate natures suffer from contact with the rude, boisterous world, but that they are abnormally selfish, too absorbed in their own sensations to heed the fact that they are enveloping themselves in an atmosphere of gloom which must necessarily depress all about them.

Her prescription is to smile, smile; smile in season and out of season; smile whether you feel like it or not, and gradually the mental state will adapt itself to the bodily expression.

A charming young women was heard to say the other day: "I am too much in love ever to have the blues." "Too much in love?" echoed her astonished auditors, surprised at this frank revelation. "Yes," she replied, provokingly, "too much in love with myself. I regard myself as a mirror, don't you see, put on earth to reflect all the joy and gladness of the universe, and so I cannot think of letting myself become obscured and dimmed by such ugly clouds as the blues. Ah, never! I am too vain."

Charles Newcomb, that coiner of epigrams, says: "There is no stimulant that is more speedy and thorough in its action than the thrill of joy and gladness. It is a natural tonic, and the entire system responds to its exhilarating vibrations.

Anything that arouses confidence in life, with a larger sense of its use and beauty, increases human energy and prepares the best conditions of success in all undertakings. We are never left in life with an entirely empty cupboard.

There is always some little portion of fat to eat and sweet to drink if we will only go our way and look about us, and not allow the leanness of our grief to absorb our thoughts or tears to blind our eyes and fill every cup with bitterness."

There is a very old story about the famous clown, Grimaldi, who once called in a physician to see if he could offer any alleviation for the depression from which he suffered. "Go and see Grimaldi," advised the physician. "I am Grimaldi," replied the "melancholy Jacques" in the jester's garb.

Poor clown! He was suffering from the reaction occasioned by the constant effort to be funny. He needed change of thought, interest and occupation. "It isn't the 'unting as 'urts the 'orses, it's the 'ammer, 'ammer, 'ammer on the 'ard 'igh road."

There is an exceedingly bitter tonic that all of us must gulp down sooner or later, and that is that no one cares a straw about our woes. The man who laughs is the man who has friends by the score, whose society is eagerly sought and who is always welcome, but the woman who weeps very soon learns that she must weep alone. "This sad old earth has need of our mirth."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CHINESE EGGED AN ACTOR.

Celestial Edwin Booth Meets with a Rather Forcible Criticism.

The artistic temperament is, perhaps, more highly developed in the Chinese theater-goer than in his American counterpart. It certainly was manifested strongly enough the other night in San Francisco, for Chew Foo, the great Chinese star who recently went to that city after winning the highest praise from the critics of the Chinese press in New York, was pelted with decayed eggs and then made the target of innumerable light firecrackers, all because he failed to dress the part he was acting in a proper manner.

Chew Foo stands in practically the same light to the Chinese play-goer that Edwin Booth stood to the English speaking public. Yet there were occasions in the career of that great actor, when he played "Hamlet" arrayed in a long frock coat, his head covered with a silk hat in place of the raven hair of the mad Danish prince. There is, however, no record that the audiences did not make all allowance for delayed trains and washed away bridges, which were the causes of the lack of costumes.

Hundreds of instances might be cited of indulgences shown by American audiences to actors who failed to dress the parts they were playing as they should be dressed. These are instances right in this city, says the San Francisco Call, where—but never mind, these cases have nothing to do with the riot which took place in the Washington stret theater because Chew Foo wore the dress of a young man when he should have worn that of an old man.

Sergeant Conboy was there. He is always there when any trouble arises in Chinatown, but he cannot tell the cause of the row. He saw Chew Foo on the stage. For a moment no one in the audience moved, and then pandemonium broke forth. There were yells and catcalls in Chinese and then a fusillade of Chinatown eggs began. The eggs that a Chinaman will throw away are beyond description. Just plain, ordinary stale eggs they eat and profess to like. These had got beyond that stage and were only fit to be thrown away. Chew Foo got about a bushel basket of them. After that the men in the audience began to throw lighted firecrackers on the stage. To those outside the theater it sounded like half a hundred men engaged in pistol practice and word was sent to police headquarters that half of Chinatown was engaged in battle, murder and sudden death, and that the war of the Tongs had finally broken out in real earnest.

Half a dozen policemen were rushed to the theater, only to find the place resting in perfect peace. There was no noise, no disturbance, and the play was going smoothly along.

SAVED BY AN INDIAN.

How a Bloody Revolt of Negro Slaves In New Jersey Was Averted.

A bloody and desperate revolt was once threatened by the negro slaves of the Acquackanonck district of New Jersey, and were it not for a drunken Indian there would have been an awful slaughter of the whites.

Shortly after the Revolution the slaves demanded their emancipation. Some of the New York farmers had freed their slaves, most of whom went to the Ramapo mountains, where they found unoccupied land. Stragglers appeared among the New Jersey slaves and had little trouble spreading dissension. The Dutch farmers were not yet ready to abolish slavery and refused the demands made upon them. The slaves became insolent and hard to manage. They even went so far as to threaten dire vengeance, but little attention was paid to their mutterings.

The negroes formed a secret society, and held meetings in the woods and in deserted houses. At last their plans were about complete for a general revolt. A meeting was called in an old distillery which used to stand near Passaic. Negroes came from every direction, and by midnight nearly a hundred were gathered there. The leaders made excited speeches advocating the slaughter of all the men in the community. They were eager for a revolt and were to be informed just when to strike. The slaves of each family were to take care of their own masters. What was to become of them afterward was not considered, nor were there any plans of escaping the punishment which would surely be inflicted on them. They were for blood, regardless of consequences.

An old Indian had spent the day at the distillery, and the man in charge of the vats had amused himself by getting the redskin drunk. He fell just outside the door, and lay there in a drunken stupor. He was awakened about midnight by the loud voices of the excited slaves, and after a time realized the purpose of the meeting. He knew that the farmers would reward him with whisky and tobacco if he carried them the news, and lost no time in doing so. He went to several farm houses before he could find any one who would believe the story, for no one thought that the slaves really intended to make trouble. Investigation showed that he was telling the truth, and the farmers surrounded the distillery. The leaders were arrested and carried to Newark in chains. Many of the slaves were lashed by their owners until all thought of revolt was beaten out of them.

BLOWING UP OF THE MAINE.

Gen. Fitzhugh Lee's Theory of the Destruction of the Vessel.

In his interesting address in this city Monday evening General Fitzhugh Lee gave his theory regarding the destruction of the battleship Maine, says the Indianapolis Journal. After relating the circumstances of the explosion and describing the scene of fire and carnage he witnessed on visiting the locality a few minutes after the event, he said:

"My theory is that it was done by young officers who had been attached to Weyler. After the catastrophe they disappeared. Young officers of the Spanish army did not take the trouble to hide their pleasure over the horrible affair. Many of them dropped their usual potations of red wine and opened bottles of champagne in the cafes. The government of Cuba immediately tried to forestall European opinion by sending a dispatch which stated that the explosion had been caused by the carelessness of the Americans themselves. As to that I want to say that the keys to the magazine of every American man-of-war are brought to the captain and are hung on hooks at the head of his bed so that he can know where they are all the time. When the divers went to work on the Maine Captain Sigsbee said to them: 'Go into my cabin and see if the keys to the magazine are hanging where they ought to be.' The divers came up with the keys. They had found them hanging by the side of the captain's bed. Furthermore, the investigation brought out that the plates of the forepart of the ship were bent upward, showing clearly that the force of the explosion had been directed from the bottom. The court of inquiry heard plenty of testimony which showed that there had been two explosions; one when the torpedo went off and tore its way to the ship's magazine, and the other when the magazine itself exploded with a roar."

The real cause of the destruction of the Maine is still a mystery, though there is strong reason for accepting General Lee's view. The report of the United States court of inquiry sustained the theory of an outside explosion, but said "the court has been unable to obtain any evidence fixing the responsibility for the destruction of the Maine upon any person or persons." The solution of such mysteries come in time, when those who are in possession of the secret think the right time has come.

PORTLAND'S FOURTH OF JULY.

Everybody Invited to See and Enjoy the Celebration.

The celebration to be given by the Portland Fourth of July committee this year will eclipse in extent and completeness that of any former year in the hisotry of the city. The celebration will extend over two days, both of which will be crowded full of interesitng and patriotic events.

Arrangements have been made with a Los Angeles firm for a display of fireworks, including many set pieces and thousands of stands of rockets.

The parade will be participated in by the Third regiment of the Oregon National Guard, by five bands from surrounding towns as well as from Portland and by numerous civic organizations.

C. E. S. Wood, who is without doubt the most talented speaker in Portland, will deliver the oration and the literary exercises will be of unusual excellence.

The hotels of the city have recently handled large crowds of people and are now in better condition [than ever to entertain visitors who will be present from outside towns.

Every one in Oregon is invited to come to Portland and assist in this celebration.

Arrangements have been made with the railroad companies by which greatly reduced fares will be offered on railroad and steamer lines from all points in the state and the reception committee will make every effort to make the stay of those who come to Portland a pleasant one.

Among those who have the celebration in charge are Gen. Summers, Capt. J. P. Shaw, Julius L. Meier, Louis Rosenblatt, C. H. McIsaac and Dan McAllen. All are well known business men and the fact that they have been energetic in arranging for celebrations in the past, is a sufficient guarantee that the coming festivities will be a success in every particular.

RECENT JUDICIAL DECISIONS.

Street-railway employes riding gratuitously when off duty, under a rule permitting them to ride free, are held, in Dickinson vs. West End St. R. Co. (Mass.), 52 L. R. A. 326, to be passengers and not servants.

An incorporated college which sells diplomas is held in State ex rel. Sheets vs. Mount Hope College Company (Ohio), 52 L. R. A. 365, to be guilty of such a misuse of its powers as to require dissolution and a judgment ousting it of the right to be a corporation.

A promissory note given to stop a criminal prosecution is held in Jones vs. Dannenberg Co. (Ga.), 52 L. R. A. 271, to be invalid, even in the hands of a bona fide holder, under a statute protecting such holders except against certain defenses, including "immoral and illegal consideration."

A note with the word "president" following the name of the person who signs it and with the name of the corporation above the line stating place and date is held, in Second National Bank vs. Midland Steel Company (Ind.), 52 L. R. A. 307, to be enforceable against the corporation on proof that it was intended to be a corporation note.

Damaged condition of dressed poultry put in cold storage, resulting from the warmth of the temperature, is held, in Allen vs. Somers (Conn.), 52 L. R. A. 106, not to render the bailees liable, where the temperature is that ordinarily kept in cold-storage rooms, but higher than that at which freezers are kept, and both parties believed it would be sufficiently low for the poultry.

Maliciously procuring the discharge of a servant, whether accomplished by intimidation, slander or merely by malevolent advice, is held, in Moran vs. Dunphy (Mass.), 52 L. R. A. 115, to constitute an actionable wrong, even if the employment is only at will so that the master does not break any contract. This seems to extend the doctrine of most of the cases on the subject of inducing a third party to break his contract, but is the converse of the doctrine shown in 21 L. R. A. 238, which holds that a master has a right of action against those who entice away a servant.

Japanese Porcelain Repairs.

In the manner of repairs those wonderful followers of principle and truth in art, the Japanese, have a lesson to teach us, says the Connoisseur. When a Japanese connoisseur breaks some precious piece of pottery or porcelain, he does not throw it away with disdain, neither does he try to deceive the casual observed into the belief that it is unbroken. Instead, he has it joined together, generally with gold lacquer, in such a fashion that the fracture is boldly shown and commented on, as it were, by the frank exposition of the method by which it is made good. Curiously enough, a distinctly new and charmingly decorative effect is in most cases added by these irregular gold lines, while the sense of craftsmanship is tickled by the marvelous skill exhibited by the repairer in thus welding together the two dissimilar materials. Truth is preserved at no loss of artistic beauty; indeed once more it is made clear that the two may always walk hand in hand.

Plenty of Hot Water in New Zealand

In New Zealand geysers and thermal springs are plentiful and portions of the country are constantly disturbed. In 1886 Tarawera was in violent eruption, covering villages with stones and ashes for many miles. The beautiful terraces near Mount Rotomahana, the admiration of many tourists, were destroyed. One township was covered with mud, sixty square miles suffered from this eruption, and 100 people were killed.

NERVMS GAVE WAY—PE-RU-NA CURED

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began in January, 1902, to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering with systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure. I will always be your debtor. I have already recommded Peruna to my friends and neighbors and they all praise it. I wish that all suffering women would try it. I testify this according to the truth."—Mrs. X. Schneider.

Mrs. Fanny Klavadatscher, of Summitsville, N. Y., writes as follows:

"For three months I suffered with pain in the back and in the region of the kidneys, and a dull, pressing sensation in the abdomen, and other symptoms of pelvic catarrh.

"But after taking two bottles of Peruna I am entirely well, better than I ever was."—Mrs. Fanny Klavadtascher.

BANKING BY MAIL.

A Convenient and Helpful System for Rural Residents.

Special attention is called to the announcement of the Portland Trust Company of Oregon, which appears in another column. This is a very old and well established trust company, and its certificates of deposit are in use throughout Oregon, as well as in California, Maryland, Wisconsin and other points. Farmers and stockmen, who have money lying idle, can by the use of these certificates get interest up to the very date on which they withdraw the money. If, for example, a farmer had to make a payment on the 15th of December, and he held one of the Portland Trust Company of Oregon's 90 day certificates, he could give notice on the 15th of September, and would receive his money on the 15th of December, with interest up to that very date. The trust company will be glad to furnish additional information upon request.

HOW ABOUT IT?

When you strike a stump with the ordinary push cut mower, something happens about as shown in the above illustration, and they are all push cuts, and all will do this except the Champion Draw Cut Mower.

This serves to show that pressure against the bar will raise the wheels from ground, decrease traction and cutting power. With the Champion Draw Cut the contrary is the result—pressure against the bar in heavy cutting gives downward pull, holding the wheels tighter to the ground. Increased traction, more power, making the most powerful cutter on the market. This fact stands undisputed, and if you want the best mower made, buy the Champion Draw Cut.
