Oregon's Display at St. Louis.

The largest fir tree in the world will supply a portion of the lumber for the construction of Oregon's State building at the World's Fair at St. Louis.

The Oregon building will occupy a site immediately north of the New York State building. The state legislature has made an appropriation of $50,000 for the World's Fair, but a much greater sum will be available. Five hundred thousand dollars have been appropriated by Oregon for the Lewis and Clark Exposition, to be held in Portland, in 1905.

In fish and forestry, Oregon's exhibits will be especially rich. The Columbia River salmon fisheries, the richest in the world, will furnish an unrivalled exhibit. The processes of catching the salmon, and how they are handled, will be shown in detail. The average size of the salmon of Oregon commerce is from 15 to 20 pounds, and they sometimes reach the enormous weight of 60 and 75 pounds.

The sturgeon and flounder are also caught in large quantities, and the black bass, fostered by the United States Government Fish Commission, is gaining in importance each year. Splendid timber grows abundantly all over Oregon, but it is the Douglas fir that is known the world over.

Agricultural and horticultural products will be large. The prune industry of this state is exceedingly important, the crop in 1902 being valued at more than $3,000,000.

A Political Pull.

The injustice of favoritism in the case of General Leonard Wood by his rapid advance in the army is shown by the fact that only three years ago he was an assistant surgeon in the army, with the rank of captain.

Among those who have a deep respect for woman's rights is the man who exhibited two black eyes in a Texas police court recently, while two officers of the peace were holding an angry spouse in a chair by main force.

Who's the Biggest Liar?

Of all liars, that Josephine county man should have the medal. He claims that a fir tree on his timber claim has a petrified top while the lower part of the tree is alive and green.—Eugene Guard.

That's nothing. An instance was this week reported in Clackamas county of a tree that burned for eleven consecutive months before it fell to the ground.—Oregon City Enterprise.

Pshaw; you fellows don't know anything about timber. Come over to Central Oregon and we will show you thousands of acres of sage brush that our dear Hitchcock has placed in a reserve that in a half dozen years will grow it to trees that will produce diamonds on every twig. Prineville Journal.

The commissioners will probably reject this man's offer after learning what our Brownville friend is willing to donate. Mr. James Calloway says he has a tree on his place which is all petrified, and in the top of this stone-tree is a bird, petrified, and about three feet farther skyward is the poor little birdie's whistle, and it too is petrified.—Brownville Times.

The Turkish Football.

An editorial writer in the Oregonian recounts how Turkey has been made a football by European powers while neither was allowed to hold it after conquest. He writes:

In 1827 the British, French and Russian fleets attacked and destroyed the Turkish fleet at Navarino and compelled Turkey to permit the organization of the present kingdom of Greece. In 1830 Turkey was rescued from the victorious Russian by the interference of Europe. In 1839 Turkey was saved from conquest by Mehmet Ali, Pasha of Egypt, by the interference of Great Britain. In 1854-5 Turkey was rescued from Russia by England and France, and in 1877-78, when Russia had Turkey at her mercy, the powers of Europe interfered to prevent the autonomy of Macedonia. Today Turkey is still in trouble with her Christian subjects in Macedonia, and Russia, with the powers of Europe, is obliged to interfere to restore peace and order.

After the Frauds.

A large amount of food stuffs of various sorts is imported into this country from foreign nations each year. The agricultural department at Washington now proposes to have samples of these imports analyzed and tested as to their purity.

Much of this stuff comes from Germany, which country has been and is technical and fussy as to the purity of American products. There has long been a well founded suspicion that the ragtag and bobtail apple refuse of American cider mills and evaporators, for which there is a steady foreign market, returns later guided as sparkling champagne under a fancy foreign brand and that the oil products of southern cotton mills after a European tour come back to flavor American salads as the purest olive oil.

The Woodburn Independent says: "The Independent is the only paper in Oregon that does not work in the interests of hop dealers. It is with the growers in every instance. Some of the other sheets have streaks of honesty and are then on the side of the growers, but only temporarily; they rear around to the dealers. None who have observed their course doubts the truth of this assertion."

Well, according to the Independent, the newspaper men with the exception of the Independent, are rascals. Now, the Guard is more interested in hops than the Independent is, and we are on the growers' side of the fence.

It is true, that many of the Oregon papers work in the interests of the hop buyer, but there are many who do not. The Independent takes too much credit for itself. There are others.

Mr. Barker has the right idea in putting in a band saw in his Eugene sawmill. The band saw makes eight inch boards where the circular saw makes but seven, the extra inch being saved into dust by the thicker circular saw.

Origin of Old Sayings.

The Honey-moon.—For thirty days after a wedding the ancient Teutons had a custom of drinking a mead made of honey.

The Bridegroom.—In primitive times the newly wedded man had to wait upon his bride and the guests on his wedding day. He was their groom.

Sirloin of Beef.—King Charles I, being greatly pleased with a roast loin of beef set before him, declared it "good enough to be knighted." It has ever since been called Sir Loins.

A Spinster.—Women were prohibited from marrying in olden times until they had spun a full set of beehive furnishings on the spinning wheel. Hence till married, they were spinsters.

Cabal.—This word was coined by Charles II's reign, and applied to his cabinet council. It was made out of the initials of their names, which were: Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley and Lauderdale.

Matrimonial Snags.

"She wasn't like this before we married," muses Mr. Younghusband disconsolately. And he's quite right. If he would only carry the idea of change in his wife far enough to be able to understand her feelings and sympathize with her condition. But his estimate of change stops at externals—at the tears, nervousness and irritability which are but surface symptoms of the real change she is undergoing.

There is no time when young women stand so much in need of good motherly advice as in the early days of married life, and there is perhaps no time when, as a rule, the young wife is left so entirely alone to grope her own way to happiness in doubt and uncertainty. Of the laws governing her womanly health she knows nothing. She becomes nervous, irritable, sleepless, dejected. She has, already, marriage is a failure. She sees long unhappy years before her, and shrinks from them.

Evidently in such a case a woman needs help, and the help she needs will be found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will cure nervousness, sleeplessness and irritability, encourage the failing appetite, and bring back the physical buoyancy which has been lost. "When I wrote to you some time ago asking for advice I was in very poor health," writes Mrs. Ethel Trepto, Merrill (West Merrill), Wis., Box 54, "suffering continually with severe pains and terrible headaches, and confined to my bed the greater part of the time. I thought I was in a delicate condition, and thinking that something must be wrong I consulted three different doctors. None could tell me what my case was. One said that in no way could I be helped except by having an operation. Every woman dreads the thought of an operation, and so did I. After reading one of Dr. Pierce's pamphlets I decided to try his medicine. I did so, and was so relieved that I was able to get up and do my usual work. I am now in the best of health and my nerves are in excellent condition. I feel as good as new."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a tonic and nerve tonic. It restores the strength of the system, and builds up the blood.
