"The athletics of the school are in the best of hands. The prospects are indeed bright for success. The University strives for success in every thing, even on the gridiron, and will do everything to gain success. The department of athletics is an important department and will be improved with the rest of the school.

"A step in this direction is the added year which is required for all students. This makes two years of required gymnasium work."

The president included in his address wholesome advice to new students regarding a division of their time, their relation to the faculty, the necessity of work, the economy of effort and his wish to make a interesting assembly each week.
