

VOLUNTEERS
AFTER THEIR TRAVEL PAY

Another effort is being made by members of the Second Oregon United States Volunteer Infantry to secure travel pay from Manila to San Francisco. At the last meeting of Scott Young Camp No. 2, Spanish American War Veterans, it was unanimously voted to bring the matter to the attention of the Oregon congressional delegation with the hope of securing favorable action by congress.

In the event that the movement is successfully inaugurated by the Oregon men, those of 12 other Western regiments will follow suit and endeavor to secure the money. It is said that the pay will amount to a trifle more than $400 per man. Some of those discharged in the islands previous to the outbreak of the insurrection were given travel pay to San Francisco, and from there to the point of enlistment, while those who were brought home in a body received travel pay merely from San Francisco to Portland, amounting to about $30, as they were discharged at the Bay City.

Legal advice has been retained and the men believe they have a claim for the money. It is felt by them in view of the fact that they enlisted for the Spanish-American war, but were retained in service nearly a year after the treaty of peace was signed, and finally pitted against the worthy forces of Amelio Aguinaldo, the Philippine renegade, that they are entitled to consideration. Troops sent to Cuba were discharged immediately upon the cessation of hostilities, while those who went to the Philippines served almost a year longer, being paid $15.60 a month and losing the difference between that and the wages they would have received at home, or in other words the men discharged from the Cuban campaign earned more during that time in civilian vocations.—Telegram.
