COMPULSORY PASS BILL TO BECOME LAW

Senate Today Passed Measure Over Governor's Veto - So Far Executive Has Lost on Most of His Acts of Disapproval - Normal School Question Will Be Settled Late This Afternoon

Guard Special Service.
Salem, Feb. 20.—Rather than surrender their passes the senators this morning passed the compulsory transportation bill over the governor's veto by a vote of 20 to 9. This is the finish of the anti-pass fight, which has been waged at all sessions. How the measure will conflict with the provisions of the railroad commission law must be solved later. The house passed this measure over the veto yesterday, 49 to 6. The port of Columbia bill passed the senate this morning by a vote of 25 to 2. Schofield and Caldwell voting against it. The bill is now on its way to the governor, who is not opposed to it.

Normal School Question.
Two normal school skirmishes occurred in the senate this morning and appropriations for the schools was made a special order for this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Smith, of Umatilla, tried to bring up H. B. 13, making an appropriation for the Southern Oregon Normal School, under a suspension of the rules, but the senate refused to consider it. Having been quashed once, Smith made a second attempt before the noon adjournment which threatened to reopen the entire normal school squabble again. The sentiment is strongly divided between two normal schools and three, for Drain is practically dropped through the combine. Smith complains that the Multnomah crowd is playing horse with those who worried them over the port of Columbia bill, and says now that Multnomah had the goods delivered to them they should not oppose pending legislation.

Legislative Notes.
The house has dissipated the last hope of Drain for holding its Normal School by defeating its asked for appropriation of $27,000.

The senate has passed the irrigation bill, after cutting its appropriation down to $10,000 and amending it so that it only applies to that portion of the state east of the Cascades.

Increase of the salary of the county auditor of Multnomah from $2000 to $3000 a year, and of two of his deputies, was carried over the governor's veto in the house and senate yesterday.

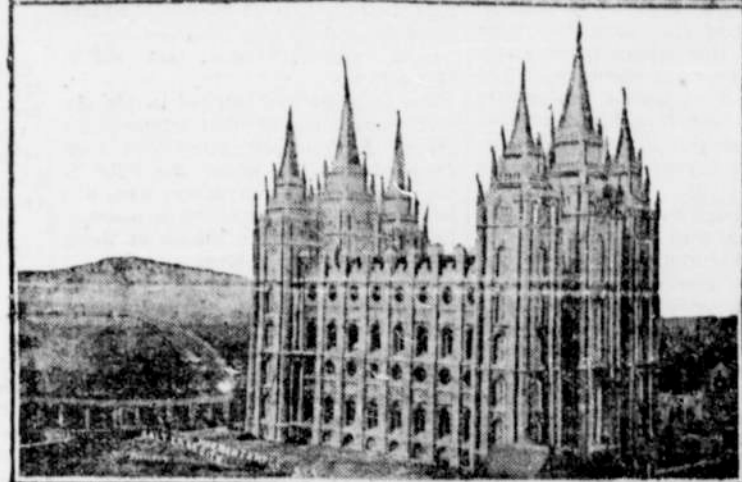

Recognition of the dangerous practice of placing public officials on the fee system resulted in the house sustaining the veto of the governor to Representative Slusher's bill, which proposed to restore the sheriff of Morrow county to the fee system.

By a vote of 15 to 14, with 20 affirmative votes necessary to pass the bill, the senate yesterday refused to pass the Smith normal school bill over the governor's veto. Before taking this action the senate listened to the reading of an opinion from the attorney general, holding that the bill is constitutional, thus directly contradicting the opinion expressed by the governor in his message.

The correct vote by which the senate overrode the governor's veto, of the university appropriation was, senate, 22 to 6; house, 44 to 13. Those voting with the governor in the senate were Caldwell, Coke, Kay, M. A. Miller, Coshaw, and Smith, of Umatilla. In the house the opponents of the university were: Barrett, of Washington, Burns, Campbell, Dye, Holt, Huntley, Jones, of Clackamas, Newell, Purdy, Rackleiff, Settlementier, Simmons, Vawter.

In the United States senate at Salem, Oregon, on Monday took occasion to attack Chief Forester Pinchet, when the matter of raising the latter's salary was under discussion. He charged mismanagement of the forestry service. The senate then proceeded to vote in favor of the salary increase.

MORMON APOSTLE WILL STAY IN SENATE

SALT LAKE CITY, CAPITAL OF MORMONDOM.

Some of the buildings of the Mormon church in Salt Lake city are imposing. Among them are the famous tabernacle and temple. The upper picture is a birdseye view of Salt Lake City, and the temple is shown at the bottom.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The senate today voted to reject the report of the investigating committee in favor of expelling Reed Smoot, of Utah. A majority of the senators favored the Mormon apostle and he will retain his seat.

Senator Hansborough closed the debate with a vigorous speech in opposition to Smoot.

MRS. THAW'S STORY IS NOT WEAKENED BY JEROME'S EFFORTS

New York, Feb. 20.—The anticipated continuation of the cross-examination of Evelyn Thaw by District Attorney Jerome filled the courtroom this morning.

Mrs. Thaw was questioned regarding the places she had resided after her return from Europe in 1904, and in reply gave eight or nine addresses. Jerome showed the witness several photographs of herself and asked her regarding the costumes worn, from whom she obtained them, etc. Some of the photographs were taken in 1901. Thaw gave her a kimono in which she was photographed and Stanford White gave her a cape to match a dress given her by her mother.

Jerome's questions indicated that he did not intend to spare the feelings of the young woman. He interrogated her sharply as to the details of her dress when posing for artists in Philadelphia and New York, and was especially insistent as to whether there was any exposure of person. The witness said she posed in Greek and Turkish costumes and afterward on the stage in low-necked draperies.

Jerome next jumped upon the letters received by Evelyn from various persons, and she was asked if she had not visited the storage warehouse with her lawyers and if she had not examined certain letters. She replied that she had made such a visit, but did not take any of the letters nor examine them. It developed that 42 of the letters introduced yesterday were written by White to another girl, and Mrs. Thaw said she gave fourteen letters written by White to her to her husband, who had warned them over to Lawyer Hartridge.

The witness proved herself very skillful in fencing with Jerome, and kept her wits well about her. Jerome evidently could not trip her up.

Jerome took many different tactics. "How long were you unconscious in that 24th street house at the time of your experience with Stanford White?"

"I don't remember."
"Was it after midnight when you became unconscious?"

"Yes, I think it was."

"Was it before daylight?"

"Yes, before daylight."

Jerome read from Evelyn's direct testimony the statement that she sat up all that night.

She replied that she meant the rest of the night after she had been taken home.

"There is nothing to show that your mother was willing to sacrifice you for a pecuniary consideration?"

Attorney Delmas was on his feet in a flash.

"There's nothing in this case, not even an intimation of such a thing. If I have said anything to the learned district attorney to indicate that I think this unfortunate mother sacrificed her daughter I wish to emphatically deny it."

"In all the troubles you went through you never thought of anything but that your mother showed a lack of judgment?"

"No."

Evelyn was questioned as to her relations with certain men and women, the import of which was not made clear at this time.

She testified that after joining the "Florodora" company her mother came for her every night until she met Stanford White, to whom she was introduced by Ida Goodrich, and that was the "first time she had been anywhere."

She was questioned as to her relations with a man named Garland, with whom she went out, accompanied by her mother, but the intent of these interrogations were not evident. Jerome attempted to read from a statement of Mrs. Thaw's mother, but was interrupted by Delmas. The question was:

"Was it not true that in the spring of 1901, so far as your relations with your mother were concerned, you were getting unruly; that your mother still stuck by you; that a married man—?"

The question was allowed to stand and Evelyn replied:
"No."
Asked if James A. Garland was

WORK ON STREET RAILWAY BEGINS FIRST OF MONTH

A Hundred Men Will Be Put To Work by the Willamette Valley Company Within Few Days and Force Will Be Increased as Work Progresses - McKenzie Valley Line Survey

Russell Welch, local manager for the Willamette Valley Company, informed a Guard reporter this afternoon that the company will start the work of constructing the street railway system in this city by the first of March, and that a hundred men will be put to work in the beginning. The force will be increased as the work progresses.

A. Welch, general manager of the company, is expected here at any time to make all arrangements for the beginning of the work. It was thought that the postponement of the decision in the matter of street paving would have the effect of postponing the beginning of the work of the street railway, but whether or not pavement will be put down this year the company will go ahead with its construction work. Mr. Welch said the work will begin on East Eleventh street, leaving Willamette street alone until it is decided whether or not it is to be paved soon. If it is not to be this year the track will be laid on the street as it is at present, and when the pavement is put down

GREAT RECORD OF ATTORNEY IN THAW CASE

Delphin Michael Delmas, leading counsel for Harry K. Thaw, has a remarkable record for clearing persons accused of homicide, and he has conducted many cases in which the defense was based on "the unwritten law." He was known in San Francisco, where he practiced for many years, as the Napoleon of the bar, and he won this title not alone because of his resourcefulness, his courage and his readiness to meet emergencies in the pursuit of his profession, but also on account of his strong facial resemblance to the first consul. Unlike the latter, he is not cold in his demeanor, however, and has a smile of rare sweetness that has great power on a jury. He is sixty-three years of age and is a native of France, graduated from

DELPHIN M. DELMAS.
Santa Clara college and was admitted to the California bar in 1896. One of his most celebrated cases was that of Truxton Beale, who was tried for enforcing the "unwritten law" in San Francisco. He was charged in connection with Thomas H. Williams, president of the California Jockey club, with shooting the editor of a San Francisco paper which had published a paragraph reflecting upon Miss Marie Oge, who subsequently became Beale's wife. It was a singular coincidence that Beale was at the Madison Square roof garden when Thaw shot White and witnessed the tragedy. Mr. Delmas also defended D. J. Arnold, who shot and killed a man who had slandered his wife. He was counsel for Mrs. Craven in the Fair will contest and received $50,000 from Claus Spreckels for defending a suit. It is supposed that he received a very large retainer in the Thaw case.
