

WAGON BRIDGE ACROSS THE M'KENZIE

After many years of patient waiting on the part of the traveling public, the county court has at last decided to erect a bridge across the McKenzie river at Hendricks' ferry, a short distance west of Waterville. Late yesterday afternoon the court filed with the county clerk the plans and specifications for the bridge and ordered that bids for its construction be advertised.

The bridge is to be a wooden structure of the Howe truss design. It will have a 16-foot roadway in the clear. The trusses will be 22 feet 10 inches high. It will be enclosed and roofed over with cedar shingles. It will consist of two spans; the south span is to be 240 feet in the clear and the north span 180 feet. The south pier is to be 10 feet high and the center and north piers 22 feet above low water mark. Bids are asked for both steel tubular piers filled with cement, and wooden cribs filled with large rocks so that the county may elect which they will take. The bridge is to be able to sustain a weight of 800 pounds per lineal foot, besides its own weight.

The plans and specifications were prepared by L. N. Roney, of this city. This bridge has long been needed and actual work was started on one at that place some eight or ten years ago, but someone got out an injunction against it on the ground that the county's indebtedness was already beyond the limit allowed by law, and the injunction was sustained. This road is traveled perhaps more than any other road in the county, especially during the summer months. The news of the decision of the court to erect the bridge will be hailed with delight by thousands.

Boise, Idaho, April 11.—Rumor is persistent tonight that the United States grand jury has indicted Senator W. E. Borah, and there is every reason to believe that the statement is true. It is so specific that the vote of the jury is given, which is said to have been 12 to 1.

Mr. Borah states he has heard the rumor and is disposed to believe it is correct. The understanding is that the indictment, together with numerous others, will be reported to court tomorrow. Mr. Borah declined to discuss the subject further without official knowledge of the action of the jury.

Washington, April 10.—The cross-examination of Binger Hermann continued today, and another effort was made to draw from the defendant some plausible explanation of his tip to Mays, but without success—he could not remember. The prosecution then undertook to probe further into Hermann's family affairs with a view to ascertaining what relatives of Hermann were in the land service while he was commissioner. Hermann appointed W. A. Porter, his uncle, a forest supervisor; Edward Bender, his brother-in-law, an agent, and W. G. Hermann, his brother, a forest supervisor; Arthur G. Hermann succeeded his father W. G. Hermann, as supervisor when the latter was burned to death; Kyle Miller, son-in-law of Hermann, was appointed special agent, and Ernest F. Giotfelty, a distant cousin, a messenger.

HERMANN TOOK GOOD CARE OF MANY RELATIVES

Asked if he had expedited the Hyde-Benson cases Hermann said he "did not recall."

Upon re-direct examination by his own attorney Hermann said that three days before sending the so-called tip to Mays, informing him of the Blue Mountain withdrawal, he had given all data regarding the same to the Oregonian correspondent for publication, and that the said information was published in Portland the following morning. Hermann said that 3000 acres he purchased while receiver of the land office was used as a sheep ranch. It cost him $1.25 per acre. He held it 23 years and sold it for $2 per acre. He said at the time he acquired this land the law did not prohibit local land office officials acquiring public land, but applied only to employees of the general land office.

Hermann said he as congressman received about 100 letters a day, more than Robertson could attend to. This made necessary the employment of an additional clerk and the division of salary between Robertson and the assistant clerk. He said the division was satisfactory to Robertson. Robertson divided the salary when he was congressman's clerk at $100, and later when as clerk to Hermann's committee he drew $185 per month. He did not recall that Robertson refused to divide with him his last month's salary.

Hermann's examination concluded at 3 p. m. The case went over until Monday.

Mrs. Ankeny gets news of brother's death.

(From Friday's Guard)

Mrs. H. E. Ankeny this morning received a dispatch telling of the death of her brother, William H. Stryker, which occurred some time this morning in the Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland from Bright's disease. He had been ill a long time, but Mrs. Ankeny was not expecting his death so soon. She was preparing to leave this afternoon for Southern Oregon, but upon receipt of the dispatch she at once arranged to go to Portland on the delayed train. Mr. Stryker was aged 60 years, and leaves a wife and one son. He had been a resident of Portland for many years.

"Pneumonia's Deadly Work had so seriously affected my right lung," writes Mrs. Fannie Connor, of Rural Route No. Georgetown, Tenn., "that I coughed continually night and day and the neighbor's prediction—consumption—seemed inevitable, until my husband brought home a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, which in my case proved to be the only real cough cure and restorer of weak, sore lungs." When all other remedies utterly fail you may still win the battle against the lung and throat troubles with New Discovery, the real cure. Guaranteed by W. L. DeLano, druggist, 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children. The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Washington, April 11.—The cross-examination of Binger Hermann was concluded at 12:30 today. Under a flood of questions from the district attorney he admitted that while he was a member of congress the first time he received Harry Robertson, his secretary, to divide up part of his salary with him. Robertson received $185 a month and Hermann went with him when he drew his pay and took all but $80. Asked what he did with the balance Hermann said he paid it to a young man named James, who took long-handed dictation at his residence three nights a week. In other words, Robertson, who took stenographic dictation seven days a week, and devoted his entire time to Hermann's work, received $80 per month, while James, who did much less work, and then only three nights a week, must, according to Hermann's recollection, have received $105.

Hermann, however, could not recall exactly what he did with the $105 which he took from Robertson. Questioned as to his trips to Oregon each summer while he was commissioner, Hermann admitted drawing $3 per day in addition to his salary and traveling expenses, but defended this by saying these trips were official, and that most of the time he was transacting government business.

Asked if he had expedited the Hyde-Benson cases Hermann said he "did not recall."

Upon re-direct examination by his own attorney Hermann said that three days before sending the so-called tip to Mays, informing him of the Blue Mountain withdrawal, he had given all data regarding the same to the Oregonian correspondent for publication, and that the said information was published in Portland the following morning.
