HAWLEY MAKES FIRST SPEECH FOR PROSECUTION

Boise, June 4.—The real Haywood trial is proceeding. James H. Hawley, leading counsel, made the opening statement for the prosecution today, the defendant has heard an elaboration of the state's charges against him, and the first witness has taken the stand to give testimony against Haywood.

James H. Hawley made the address and its burden was that an inner circle of the Western Federation of Miners planned and procured the murder of Frank Steunenberg, as one of the steps of a far-reaching conspiracy that embraced many murders. The statement occupied one hour and forty minutes, and was delivered in a crowded courtroom without any attempt at oratorical effect. It met a fire of objection from the defense, first against the assertion of Hawley that the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners were responsible for "scores of murders," and next against the charge that the great conspiracy extended back to the infancy of the federation.

Then there were repeated objections on the ground that Hawley was arguing the case, and by agreement the defense was given a general exception to any part of the opening statement that it objected to.

The attitude of the defense clearly indicated a purpose to defeat the plan of the state to show a general conspiracy and to limit the case as closely as possible to the Steunenberg crime alone.

Hawley, coming to the close of his remarks, asserted that the evidence adduced would go much further than he had in his opening statement. He believed the proof would satisfy the jury as to the guilt of the accused under the statutes, despite the fact that Haywood himself had not been in the state of Idaho for years. At the conclusion Hawley thanked the jury for their attention, and Mr. Darrow arose and stated the defense would reserve its opening until the state's case was finished.

Judge Wood cautioned the jurors to weigh the evidence carefully and keep their minds as clear as possible, and the attorneys agreed that an order excluding witnesses from the courtroom was not necessary.

Witnesses Are Called.
 C. F. Wayne was called as the first witness. He formerly resided at Caldwell, next door to Governor Steunenberg's place. He was examined by Mr. Borch and was working on the Steunenberg place the night of the explosion, December 30, 1905, and had just gone to his own house when the explosion occurred. The lights in his house were extinguished by the concussion. He rushed out to the governor's house and saw the mangled body and went for a doctor. Wayne said he had passed through the gate just fifteen minutes before the explosion occurred.

The defense did not cross-examine the witness.

Dr. J. W. McCue, who attended Steunenberg, described in detail the fearful wounds. He was not cross-examined.

John C. Rice, an attorney of Caldwell, followed Dr. McCue and testified to the presence of Thomas Hogan, alias Orchard, at Caldwell, prior to the Steunenberg murder. Rice testified to a conversation with Hogan regarding a vacant house near the Steunenberg residence; also said he saw Hogan passing his house nearly every day for a month before the tragedy. Rice declared Hogan to be the same person afterward arrested as Harry Orchard.

Richardson cross-examined Rice, who said Hogan had made several attempts to conceal himself.

N. S. Ellis, a merchant of Caldwell, was the next witness. He was building a house near the Steunenberg place and saw Hogan in the vicinity many times; saw him observing the Steunenberg place and at times he carried colored glasses and used them for observation purposes. Luncheon recess was called just as A. Ballentine, of Caldwell, was called to the stand.

After recess Ballentine testified to seeing Orchard at the Saratoga Hotel at Caldwell on the day after the murder. He was not cross-examined.

Julian Steunenberg, son of the murdered man, told of a conversation with Hogan a few days prior to the murder. Young Steunenberg said he met Hogan at the railroad depot. Hogan asked him when his father would be back to the city. He said they had been dealing over sheep and he wanted to see him, as they would have another transaction shortly.

Witness told Hogan where they lived and his father's place of business.

The defense's motion to rule out the testimony was not allowed. He was not cross-examined.

Simpkins Implicated.
 L. J. Bowman, a laborer, and resident of Caldwell, testified to the presence of Hogan at the Saratoga Hotel at Caldwell in October, 1905. Bowman identified a photo of Simpkins, whom he said was with Orchard at the hotel under the name of Simpson.

Judge Russell, a Presbyterian missionary, a resident of California, testified to meeting Hogan at the Saratoga Hotel in company with Simpkins. He identified the photo of Simpkins.

Steve Dempsey, formerly proprietor of the Saratoga Hotel, was called and testified that Simpkins and Hogan occupied the same room at the hotel.

He identified the hotel register, bearing their names.

Simpkins is a prominent member of the Western Federation who can not be located since the murder of Steunenberg. This is the first evidence tending to show that a conspiracy existed.

Haywood Looks Pale.
 Haywood appeared a trifle pale today, after a brief illness last night, but declared he felt "quite well."

SMITH BOASTS OF FIVE WIVES AND MANY CHILDREN

Salt Lake, Utah, May 30.—New orders of Joseph Smith, president of the Mormon church.

"Flowers at funerals are useless expense. Stop this wasteful habit."

"Music at funerals must hereafter be confined to Mormon hymns."

"Physicians and nurses in cases of accouchment are not necessary. Let nature take her course."

"Husbands, when your wives die it is your duty to get another wife."

At the funeral of Mrs. George E. Woolley here President Smith gave the orders and advice to his Mormon followers. As he raised his head after bending over the grave for a few praiseworthy words to the dead, he addressed himself to the sorrowful husband and told him to get another wife to care for his household. "I have gained so much notoriety I do not mind saying that I have five wives and 43 children," said President Smith. "And my wives haven't used any nurses or physicians. Let nature take her course at accouchments."

TAFT SPEAKS AT MILLER'S MEETING IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, May 30.—The final session of the annual mass meeting of the Miller's National Federation discussed the subject of selling flour for future delivery, which brought out a spirited debate. A majority of the dealers favored cash sales.

The feature of the day was the address of Secretary of War Taft, whose subject was: "Recent Instances of National Altruism." Taft spoke in part as follows:

"Today is Memorial Day and therefore, instead of discussing a subject in which you are interested as exhibitors of pure altruism, I am exhibiting of pure altruism to you as citizens and patriots, and have ventured to take as the subject of my remarks 'Recent Instances of National Altruism.'"

"I ask your attention to the phase of the nation's history covering the past nine years, with the hope of showing that there never has been, on the part of any country, a greater exhibition of pure altruism than that exhibited by the United States from the beginning of the Spanish war down to the present day, toward the people who were immediately affected. A study of the conduct of our nation with respect to Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines, covering now nearly a decade, ought to fill every American with pride."

"The which the American people believed to be the oppression of the Cuban people, the misgovernment of that beautiful island and the continued failure of Spain to restore any kind of order—compelled the United States to interfere to prevent a continuance of that which seemed to our people to be an international scandal at the doors of this country; and as we went into it in order that we might free ourselves from the charge of land-grabbing or spirit of conquest, we made the declaration that we should not retain Cuba, but would make her an independent republic as soon as circumstances would permit."

"The fortune or misfortune of the Cuban war carried us to the Philippines. The exigencies of the situation brought us into such relations with Aguinaldo and the Filipino troops in insurrection against Spain that when peace came we could not turn the islands back to Spain. Accordingly we undertook, first, the establishment of order in the islands, and then the maintenance of civil government. In establishing order we expended $170,000,000. In July next an execution will take place, by which an assembly of 70 representatives elected by the qualified voters of the Christian provinces will constitute a national assembly which will be one of the two houses, the other being the Philippine commission, to constitute the legislature of the islands. The national assembly elected in July will meet for the first time in October. Thus has the promise of our government, made through president McKinley, been kept of gradually increasing the measure of self-government extended to the Philippines."

"I am sure that if the same liberal policy is continued and if the Philippines tariff bill of the last session is put into effect in the course of the next two or three years, that a decade or for 25 years will show an increase in business that will be more commensurate with the expenditure. But that increase will only occur if we continue the same altruistic spirit in dealing with these islands, and give them every opportunity and aid to expand their own business and increase their own prosperous condition. In the meantime and down to the present date the outgo for the benefit of these islands has been enormous, while the income received by the people of the United States from them has been comparatively small."

ILLNESS OF HAYWOOD DELAYS MURDER TRIAL

Boise, June 1.—The morning session of the Haywood trial was abandoned today owing to the illness of the prisoner, who was attacked at an early hour by toxic poisoning. The doctors state his case is not serious, and it is believed he will be able to be in court this afternoon. The administration of opiates to relieve the intense pain left Haywood in a weak condition.

Following the announcement that Haywood was unable to attend court this afternoon an adjournment was had until Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

Breen Is Coming.
 Boise, Idaho, May 31.—Word was received here this afternoon that Peter Breen, former prosecuting attorney of Silver Bow county, Montana, and counsel for the Western Federation at Butte, has left that city for Boise to take part in the Haywood defense. Rumors have been in active circulation for a week that all the attorneys already in the case are opposed to Breen's coming, not wishing to share the glory of defending the prisoner with him. Breen is known as a "fighter," an man who will insist on plunging to the front in the case, and his presence will tangle the already badly complicated conditions worse than ever.

Schism in Defense.
 Truly, if the man Haywood is guilty of the late crimes of which he is accused, Nemesis is bringing upon him a terrible retribution even before the day of his condemnation, while if innocent he is a fit subject for the sympathy of the gods. Sitting before the bar of justice, no more than 20 feet from two of Idaho's intellectual giants, who are bending every faculty and using every legal means provided by the laws of the state to throw a noose about his neck, the prisoner is forced to realize that instead of uniting their energies and presenting a common, solid front to save him from the gallows, his counsel are divided into factions and wrestling with the green-eyed monster.

Professional jealousy has caused a schism in the ranks of the defense's counsel from the day that Clarence S. Darrow, the noted Chicago attorney, was retained to play the leading part. The relations between him and Edmund F. Richardson, the first lawyer employed by the officers of the Western Federation of Miners, finally grew so strained that a truce was patched up, so far as outward appearances were concerned. But now the truce has been violated and the tension has almost reached the breaking point.

One of the most peculiar features of the controversy is that Edgar Wilson is allied with Darrow, though the latter questioned the wisdom of selecting him for local counsel. This is said to be due to Wilson's appreciating the fact that Darrow's objection was not founded upon personal grounds, and because he finds the Chicago man a much pleasanter colleague. Fred Miller is said to be taking no active part on either side. "These men forget," said a prominent Socialist, "that the life of Haywood is of far more importance than the proposition of which of them shall be rewarded as the chief actor in the legal drama. They forget that the immense amounts they receive come out of the pockets of men, women and children in the ranks of organized labor all over the country, and are to pay for the education and talents in getting justice for Haywood, not to defray the expense of a glittering stage setting on which they may do the stunts to win the plaudits of the multitude."

Engineer Simon Klov Dahl and corps of surveyors who have been working on the preliminary survey for the Willamette Valley Company's line up the McKenzie river, arrived down from Blue River yesterday afternoon. They have run a line as far as Blue River City and found an excellent route with but a slight grade all the way up. Since leaving Gate Creek the line does not cross the river once and there will be no tunneling or heavy blasting of rock to be done.

Yesterday E. J. Frasier closed a deal for the sale of the F. B. Dunn farm, containing 1150 acres, located one and one-half miles southeast of Eugene, to Jonathan Johnson, recently from Washington, for $17,250. Last week Mr. Frasier sold the Whitney farm of 330 acres one mile southwest of Eugene to Mr. Johnson for $15,225. These two large investments confirm in strong language than words could express Mr. Johnson's faith in the future greatness of Eugene.

OREGON WON TRI-STATE TRACK MEET AT SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., May 30.—Oregon won an easy victory over Washington and Idaho in the intercollegiate field meet on Denny field this afternoon. The record-breaking aggregation from Eugene took 73 points, while Washington scored only 29 and Idaho 20. Today's victory gives the University of Oregon the undisputed championship of the Northwest for the season of 1907.

The feature of the meet was the splendid work of McKinney, of Oregon, who raised his own Pacific coast record for the shot put from 45 feet 11 1/2 inches to 46 feet, thereby tying the world's intercollegiate record held by Beck, of Yale. McKinney made several puts beyond the 45-foot mark, and in a practice trial he made 46 feet 5 1/2 inches. Zacharias, of Oregon, raised his Pacific Northwest record for the hammer throw from 151 feet 8 inches to 155 feet 1-10 feet.

Quarter Spectacular Race

The spectacular race of the day was the 440-yard dash, in which Reid, a dark horse on the Oregon team, came to the tape in 51 4/5 seconds. Reid overtook Edmundson, Idaho's undefeated champion, on the back stretch, and for 300 yards the two men ran like greyhounds, the Oregon man leading his opponent down the home stretch and winning by four yards. Edmundson weakened at the tape and Willis, of Washington, passed him for second place. Edmundson won the half mile event from Parker, the Washington captain, and Dodson, an Oregon freshman, gave Mathews of Idaho a hard run for third place. The finish between the four men was exciting, and the time (2:01) was very fast, considering the miserable condition of the track. Mathews won the mile run after a hard struggle with Vernon, of Washington. Wood, of Oregon, ran a good race in this event and took third place.

The sprints and hurdles were loafing matches for the Oregonians. Captain Moores was a close second to Kelly in the 100-yard dash, but did not enter the 220-yard event, in which Oberhauser of Oregon beat out Kelly did good work in the broad jump, but passed out of the big jump, as that event conflicted with the 220-yard dash. Oregon outclassed her opponents in the sprints, hurdles, weights and broad jump.

The team from the Beaver state is given credit for being the strongest aggregation of track athletes ever seen in the West. Eastern college men who witnessed today's meet are of the opinion that Oregon has the strongest team in the United States this year.

WOOLEN MILL HANDS HAVE DINING ROOMS

The initiative in supplying dining and recreation rooms for employees has been taken by Hon. T. B. Kay in the neat rooms he has recently placed at the disposal of his work people at the woolen mills. There are 120 thirty-five are women and young girls, and like all other institutions employing many workers, the need of a dining room and place of rest and recreation during the leisure moments has been felt at the mill, where the employees have eaten their lunch out of doors when the weather permitted, or in the work rooms when the elements were too boisterous for comfort without.

By the present provision made by Mr. Kay, two dining rooms of commodious proportions have been fitted up with tables and chairs where the employees may spend their noon hour in comfortable and homelike quarters, away from the sight and sound of their toil.

The rooms, or rather the cottage containing the rooms, is ideally arranged, well lighted and ventilated, and with perfect sanitary conditions. One of the dining and rest rooms is set apart for the use of the men employees, while the other is for the exclusive benefit of the women. The cottage is entirely removed from the mill atmosphere, and overlooks a grassy plot and the stream that flows through the grounds. The floors are covered with linoleum that is kept spotlessly clean, and in addition to the chairs and tables, other furnishings are to be added, in the way of pictures and reading matter. The rooms are supplied with radiators and will be steam heated in winter, while an oil stove is to be put in once by Mr. Kay where employees may make coffee to accompany their noon lunches.—Salem Statesman.

Such a system may some time in the future be established at the Eugene mill, which is owned by Mr. Kay.

SEVEN LOGGERS DROWNED IN PAYETTE RIVER

Portland, May 31.—A special dispatch to the Evening Telegram from Boise, Idaho, says:

While attempting to make a landing above the rapids in the Payette river, about twelve miles above Garden Valley, seven men were drowned last night. The two boats which they were using were carried over the rapids and swamped, and nine other occupants of the boats after a hard battle reached the shore.

The drowned are: Bert Ure, Mel Curtis, Joe Hamilton, Tom Highland, Frank Fitzgerald, Dave McMillan and Joe Boden. It is believed that all were unmarried.

A force of sixteen men in two boats were engaged in a log drive for the Idaho White Pine Milling Company. The first boat attempted to tie up for the night, but was swept over the rapids, and the occupants of the second boat, thinking the first boat had gone safely through the rapids, followed and was also swamped.

MAYOR LANE RE-ELECTED BY DECISIVE VOTE

Portland, June 4.—With two small precincts incomplete Mayor Harry Lane, Democrat, is re-elected over Thomas Devlin, Republican, by a majority of about 650.

Other Republican candidates are elected. M. J. Driscoll, George R. Cellars and John Annand are elected councilmen-at-large by large majorities. All of the Republican candidates for councilmen are successful with the exception of Robert A. Preston in the First ward, who was defeated by T. J. Concanon.

All of the amendments to the city charter providing for bond issues have carried, while those providing for the increase of salaries for city officials have been decisively defeated. The economy gas franchise has carried.

As expected, Devlin carried the West Side and Lane the East Side, the residence section of the city. At the Republican headquarters yesterday it was predicted that Mayor Lane would not carry his own precinct, but the count showed that Lane received 63 votes and Devlin 36. Devlin carried his own precinct by 102 to 76 for Lane.
