

SELL COPPER MINE, INTEREST IN BOHEMIA

Mineral, Bohemia mining district, July 11.—Richardson & Cook, who own valuable mining property in this camp, have recently sold their big copper property in Douglas county for a good round sum and are now devoting their entire time to their Bohemia holdings. Their copper property was known as the Copper Quarry, and it is situated a few miles east of Yoncalla and near the Southern Pacific railroad. They sold this mine to a Mr. Carl of Los Angeles, who, it is said, will begin extensive development at once. Ore from this mine won for Richardson & Cook both the silver and bronze medals for copper ore exhibits at the Lewis and Clark fair in 1905. They have taken some very fine ore from this property, some shown by Mr. Richardson which is almost pure native copper. Richardson & Cook will now develop their Bohemia property and spend their time here.

Work is progressing as rapidly as possible on the Twin Rocks Mining Company's property, the miners being in some very hard rock. The cross-cut is in 150 feet. Seven feet of hard quartzite was cut last week and it shows some mineral. Prospect work is being done, and some new finds were recently made of good free milling ore.

Frank McIntyre, secretary of the Bohemia Miners' Association, has gone out, after about a year's stay in camp. He has been busy all this time developing some property he owns on Rock creek in connection with some Salem people. He reports good showings and states that he will be out in the valley part of the summer on a vacation. Considerable development has been done on this property during the past few years and good ore is opened in all the tunnels.

HARRIMAN WANTS CHANCE TO COMPETE

New York, July 11.—Edward H. Harriman, in an interview published today, has something more to say about the proposed carrying of this seaboard to San Francisco in foreign bottoms, which was advanced in his behalf by J. W. Jung, the representative at the inspection of the Morgan liner Creole on Wednesday.

"I had no idea that the statement would be spread so far and wide as it has been," said Mr. Harriman. "However, my point is this: Why should I not send coal around the Horn in foreign ships when the government intends to do the same thing? Consider the matter squarely. Here's the United States government with a steamship line thoroughly American—meaning my own—available for coal carrying, but instead of patronizing the American line the government goes ahead in opposition and engages foreign bottoms."

"Isn't it a peculiar situation? Why should I not make a test of this matter? I think that perhaps I shall."

TEACHERS CLOSE SESSIONS AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, July 12.—The closing session of the National Educational Association convened this afternoon. Following the rendition of several musical numbers Professor John Adams, of the University College, London, England, addressed the convention upon "A Significant Lack of Educational Terminology," and following this Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California, of Berkeley, Cal., spoke on the subject, "Call Nothing Common."

Wheeler's Address.
President Benjamin Ide Wheeler, in an address to the teachers today entitled "Call Nothing Common," said in part:

"Human society of this present time and place evidently believes in education. It is inclined to stake its life upon it. It believes on the whole with a faith that is childlike and bland. It is often perplexed about what to teach and why and how to teach it, and through whom, and yet the perplexities seem only to sanctify the deep mysteries of pedagogy and strengthen faith in the system that issue from the cloud wrapped mountain of education. If education falls in an individual case, the faith is still strong enough and the charity gentle enough to judge that the fault ought to have been more of it in quantity, or else a higher solage; the operation was successful, though the patient died. For all the social ills education has come to be as universal a prescription as blood letting in the older medicine. If people are leaving the farms, if divorce is undermining the family, if the political machine is looting the cities, the remedy is to be found in education. The schools must look out for it. This is the habit of opinion today. This appears to be a good one; the opinion is probably in substance correct. Surely we of the craft are not inclined to discourage you."

At the heart of the present day belief in education is our people's faith in the common schools. They have developed part passu with our democracy. Our people are persuaded that the maintenance of our peculiar institutions of popular government is dependent upon their existence, and the full and successful workings of these institutions upon their efficiency. There has appeared no competent reason for hupugning the wisdom of this decided and increasing popular conviction. Not all the graduates of our common schools become good citizens, nor yet of our universities; but statistics assign criminality overwhelmingly to the class of illiterates. We do not teach young humans reading in order that they read the constitution—their understanding might conflict with that of the supreme court—but we teach them reading that they may share the thoughts and observations of people of other places and other times, and so be delivered from slavery to the immediate vision and to all the prejudice and ignorance and maljudgment which such slavery involves.

"The public schools must be made and kept the schools for all without recognition of classes or orders, and it must shape its work and plans so as to close no door, but rather to open the freest opportunity for the best achievements and the highest advance. The present rigid system of the grades, whose chief excuse has been economic necessity, must yield to permit the more rapid advance of gifted and delinquent pupils. The old district school without the grades was more humane. Nowadays the machinery of grades and courses is wonderfully perfect, but the school exists for the child and not for the grades. The place for the child in reference to the grades is at any time to be determined not by what he has gone through in the past, whether the pages or classes, but what he is able to go on and do next."

The committee of resolutions, Chas. C. Van Liew, of Chico, Cal. chairman, then presented its report.

Endorse Simplified Spelling.
Following is an abstract of the report:

To the committee on sessions.—The National Educational Association, now holding its 45th annual conference in Los Angeles and representing teachers and friends of education in every state of this union, makes the following declaration of principles and aims:

The National Educational Association notes with approval that the qualifications demanded of teachers and public schools, especially in city schools, are increasing annually and particularly that in many localities special preparation is demanded of teachers. We regret the attempt that is being made in some quarters to evade the consequences of low salaries. The salaries and needs of the public schools teach do not offer sufficient inducement to offset the more promising position in the commercial life of a large city. Recourse is had, therefore, to selecting students with incompetent high school or normal school training, to fill these increasing yearly vacancies. Hence we believe that constant effort shall be made by all persons in educational lines to secure for teachers such adequate compensation for their work that both teacher and public will realize teaching is a profession. We wish heartily to endorse the action of the legislature that has fixed the minimum salary at a living wage.

The National Educational Association approves the efforts of the simplified spelling board and other bodies to promote the simplification of English spelling by the judicious omission of useless silent letters and the substitution of a more regular and intelligible spelling. In place of forms that are grossly irregular, anomalous, such additions to be made according to the existing rules and analogies of English spelling with the due regard to the standards accepted by scholars, and the association hereby approves the simpler form contained in the list of 300 words now spelled in two or more ways published by the simplified spelling board and containing the twelve simplified forms now used in the publication of the association.

They spent six months in crossing the plains, but finally landed at Vancouver after a long and tiresome journey. Thomas J.
