CASE FINED $400 AND GIVEN 60 DAYS IN JAIL

HEAVY PENALTY FOR COTTAGE GROVE BOOZE-SELLER WHO PLEADED GUILTY TO FOUR CHARGES AGAINST HIM—ANOTHER ARREST AT COTTAGE GROVE

(From Friday's Guard.) C. C. Case, who pleaded guilty in the justice court to the charge of running a blind pig in Cottage Grove, was sentenced early this afternoon by Judge Bryson to sixty days in jail and to pay a fine of $400, which is $100 on each charge against him.

The penalty is a heavy one, and unless part of the fine is paid, Case will lie in jail the best part of a year, 260 days altogether. The man seems to take his sentence philosophically. He pleaded guilty probably on the supposition that he would get a lighter sentence.

Constable Plank left this afternoon to arrest and bring to Eugene Harry Parker at Cottage Grove, who was used in breaking the local opium law. Parker, it is said, sold booze at his baker's shop, operating as a blind pig. He is a man with family.

DOES "FINANCIAL STRINGENCY" HURT POULTRY BUSINESS

Who said "hard times"? Who said "panic"? exclaims J. F. Schureman in Commercial Poultry. Who is it that has even dared to insinuate that there is a stringency in the money market? Who is it that has had the audacity to predict that the country is going to the demitition bow wows? Certainly no poultryman entertains any such views, not if he is in his right mind and has given the matter any thought whatever. Hard times? No, not for the poultryman, at least. Men and women in other lines of business may feel the effect of the little financial flurry that has swept over the country, but not the poultry breeder. Present financial conditions signify anything but hard times for the poultrymen of the country, and we will tell you why.

In the first place men and women who have small savings bank accounts, hoarded up from their weekly earnings, are the first ones to get fidgety and nervous at a time like this, and as soon as the banking rules permit of it they withdraw their money and put in socks or under the corner of the carpet or some other place where they think will be secure. Before long, however, they begin to get nervous for fear that they will be robbed or lose their money in some other way, and then what is the most natural thing for them to do? Why, look around for some safe place to invest it, of course, where it will not only be safe, but pay a profit.

They are not looking for big things for they have only a small amount to invest, and there are not many opportunities for small investments unless a number pool their capital and tackle something bigger. Do you appreciate what we are trying to get at? Is your thought factory in working order? If it is, we need not say another word, for you will readily comprehend that instead of there being hard times in store for the poultryman who has stock for sale it behooves him to get busy at once, as his harvest season is at hand. It's a hard sure thing that many of these people who are looking for something in which to invest will take up the breeding of poultry and will be looking for stock.

During the past few years the people of this country have been educated along the line of the possibilities of intelligent poultry culture as never before. The industry has achieved so important a position in the industrial and commercial welfare of our nation that the leading magazines, as well as the metropolitan daily and weekly papers, have given much of their space to an exploitation of the industry of its possibilities, and today there are undoubtedly thousands of people in this country who, on account of the stagnation along other industrial lines, will take up poultry breeding as a safe and profitable business in which to invest a little money.

And it is safe and, if profitably conducted, profitable. No financial dustry of this country to any appreciable extent can ever affect the poultry industry. In spite of the present financial depression, when many other industries are crippled and in some cases practically dead, there is a cry going up the country over for fresh eggs and choice poultry, and the producer of these commodities can dispose of his product at almost his own price. Hard times? We should say not—not for the poultryman.

Then again, many people who have never heretofore kept a chicken will now keep a few to supply their own household needs. The first thing a man does when his monthly or weekly income is reduced by reason of a reduction in the working hours at the factory or mill where he is employed is to try to devise some means of reducing his living expenses, and it is way of reducing the living expenses of his family will be to get a small flock of fowls to supply the eggs for his household. He knows—unless he is away behind the times, and those fellows are scarce nowadays—that pure-bred fowls will lay twice as many eggs as mongrels, and as it is eggs he is after, he is naturally going to buy pure breeds.

We said above that the poultryman's harvest season is at hand and we believe it. If snaggle-tooth despair has been stalking around in your back yard, trying to make you think that everything is going to the dogs, open the gate and tell him it is his move. Should some pessimistic fellow try to discourage you with lurid tales of hard times, tell him to go to that mysterious bourne where no return tickets are obtainable. Keep your mind's eye on the fact that you are engaged in an industry that is not affected by financial furies, panics or anything of the kind, and put forth your best efforts to get the business that is sure to result from the present stringency in financial circles—business for poultrymen.

Now just a word more and our discourse is ended. The people referred to above as about to go into the poultry business are going to buy stock from the breeders who advertise. In the language of the street gamin, "that's a cinch." How else would they had? Consequently, instead of cutting down his advertising appropriation at this time, the poultryman who is wise will increase it and use larger space in order that he may tell something of the good qualities of his stock, their egg-laying proclivities, etc. The poultryman who allows himself to become scared at this time and allows the safety-valve of his heart to become clogged up, and cuts down his advertising appropriation, is making the greatest mistake of his life. Opportunity is knocking at the door of the poultryman. The harvest is ripe and ready to be garnered. Get busy.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—The resolution committee of the currency commission of the American Bankers' Association tonight issued a full report of yesterday's meeting of the commission, at which the various asset currency plans now before congress were discussed and rejected. The report summarizes the commission's objections to the Aldrich bill and then presents a bill in 12 sections which the commission, with the backing of the association, will recommend to congress.

The Aldrich bill is declared to be "impracticable, unwise and financially unsound." The Fowler bill, according to the report, "introduces schemes so far-reaching in their scope and touching so many collateral interests that we believe its passage would unsettle rather than improve financial conditions."

This woman says that sick women should not fail to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she did. Mrs. A. Gregory, of 2355 Lawrence St., Denver, Col., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I was practically an invalid for six years, on account of female troubles. I underwent an operation by the doctor's advice, but in a few months I was worse than before. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to perfect health, such as I have not enjoyed in many years. Any woman suffering as I did with backache, bearing-down pains, and periodic pains, should not fail to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN. For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulcerations, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it? Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

EVELYN THAW ON WITNESS STAND IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 20.—When the Thaw trial was resumed this morning Evelyn Thaw was called to the stand to repeat her story of a year ago. District Attorney Jerome invoked her to become his wife. Jerome objected to the recital of the events of years before the homicide, but he was not sustained. Evelyn was suffering from a bad cold and coughed fitfully while testifying. Jerome interposed constant objections, destroying the effectiveness of her story today just exactly as she did it a year ago. Her voice broke when she told of all that happened when she went to the first luncheon with White.

Thaw broke down completely and wept as the pitiful tale was unfolded. She told of the effect the story had on Thaw and how he said he did not care, he wanted to marry her any day.

Just before luncheon Evelyn reached the story of Thaw's attempt to take his life by drinking laudanum at Monte Carlo in 1904. Eearlier in the same thing in New York, and wanted her to join him. She humored him and diverted his attention. When he swallowed the poison at Monte Carlo she was alone.

Jerome commenced the cross-examination of Evelyn at 3:05. F. J. Berger is in Portland attending the meeting of the retail hardware dealers of the state.
