ACKERMAN ON COUNTY HIGH SCHUOL

State School Superintendent J. H. Ackerman, in an interview, in regard to the establishment of a county high school in Lane County, said:

I have carefully looked into the proposition for establishing a County High School in Lane County, according to the county levy provided for in the County High School Law, and can say without reservation that the proposition meets with my heartiest approval. The reason for my being so much in sympathy with the plan is that it, in my mind, is the best scheme for furnishing, at a minimum expense, high school facilities for every boy and girl in the county, regardless of where they may live.

Further, it will encourage the organization of small high schools in country districts and thereby bring high school facilities much nearer the homes of the pupils. So near that in many instances the pupils can attend high school in the day time and be at home at night where they should be.

Further, that the influence of the high school will be a potent factor in encouraging the seventh and eighth grade pupils to complete their work in order that they may enter these high schools, which are provided so near home.

And further that these high school centers will become centers for all literary efforts, on the part of the country people, and will serve as does the rural delivery and telephone, and other conveniences that heretofore have been enjoyed by the towns and cities.

I sincerely hope that Lane county will be the banner county in that it will take up and successfully carry out this advanced step in education.

PLUTOCRATIC DEGENERATION

And the Conspiracy to Defeat the Primary Law, Based on the False Assumption that the Legislature Will Be Corrupted.

Statement No. 1 pledges to the people of the state the legislative signer's sacred honor to elect the people' choice for United States senator.

Statement No. 1

"I further state to the people of Oregon, as well as to the people of my legislative district, that during my term of office I will always vote for that candidate for United States senator in congress who has received the highest number of the people's votes for that position at the general election next preceding the election of a senator in congress, without regard to my individual preference."

Such is the language of the pledge. This obligation is voluntary and it with and to all the people. It is made, however, with the understanding that the people demand it, and in consideration of their support are both solicited. Believing in the sincerity of the man who makes the pledge, the confidence of the people has been secured and in advance they have delivered to him the goods he asks—their votes.

Involved in the transaction is the sincerity, the integrity, the honor of the candidate and the interests, the trust and the confidence of the people who by their votes have already performed their full part of the contract.

What excuse will the pledge signer offer for breaking faith with the people of the entire state? Will he break his pledge? And if he does, what estimate will be put upon his own character?; what estimate will he put upon himself for truth and honesty and for intelligence? Will the press of the state endorse him? Will the preacher in the pulpit and the priest in the confessional condone his treachery and approve of his hypocrisy? Will the voter in the ranks who is crying for civic righteousness applaud his duplicity? Will the banker's confidence in his integrity as a man mark up his standing in the financial world over and above what he may be able to place on deposit as an immediate result of his service to those who would ruin him to defeat a law they hate?

The eyes of the political and financial powers of this country are on this struggle in Oregon to purge senatorial elections of corruption. The legislator will be the final factor for success or failure in it, victory or defeat. To his integrity will be committed the destiny of a righteous cause, in which the interests of the people of Oregon and the nation are bound up, and for a few brief months his honesty, his integrity, courage and patriotism will be put to the crucial test, and if they fail, then the condign punishment of universal scorn will be visited upon him and his, or citizenship in Oregon will have proved itself a miserable pretense. Every nominee for the legislature who has taken Statement No. 1 knows its true and exact significance. He realizes the probable and possible effects of its literal execution, and I am not one to believe for a single moment that any of them will prove recreant to his high trust nor false to his vows.

The Conspirators.

But what of the men who lightly talk of blighting the integrity, character and good name of those whom the commonwealth shall elect to execute its will? And who are they? Highly respectable denizens of Portland and their satellites—aiders, abettors and beneficiaries of special privileges. Which of these gentlemen will approach a Statement No. 1 legislator? How will he do it? What will he offer? Immunity from that public contempt which will be more his due than the due of the victim he would destroy. The man who hints at the accomplishment of such a design in his heart has already done it, and those who advocate it are too poor in common honesty to merit the contempt of decent citizenship. They place a commercial value only upon other men's integrity, and thereby correctly index their own characters. Would they, were they Statement No. 1 legislators, betray the people? Would they not? Else why do they assume that others may? A pledge, however sacred, is but a commercial quantity in the scheme of things, and honor is a trifle light as thistledown. Yet these are they which would undo by any means the people's will. Self-appointed guardians of the public weal, horror-stricken at the uttered word of anarchy, they engage themselves to overthrow a law they cannot defeat by lawful means.

They will not defeat the primary law and Statement No. 1 by either fair means or foul. They will not corrupt or coerce or fool the Statement No. 1 legislators, nor befog the great electorate of Oregon who stand at their backs to sustain them in their bounden duties, for we are now in the evolution of a new political life, struggling for the rights of man and the sovereignty of the people.

The Issue in This Campaign

Is simply as to whether the people shall rule or continue to be ruled and exploited by the special privilege class; as to whether the method by which this has been done in the past shall be perpetuated or abolished in Oregon; whether the president's efforts to dethrone corporate power shall be sustained or opposed by the people of this state; and finally, whether the Republican party in Oregon shall be dominated by corporate trust interests through venal politicians and plutocrats who threaten to debauch public servants to accomplish their ends, or whether the party shall be guided by the principles as promulgated by Lincoln and exemplified by Roosevelt.

The people recognize the issue. Every candidate for the legislature and for every state office recognizes it; last, but not least, the corporate trust power in every fibre of its selfish being has a keener sense of its vitality and importance than all others, for it knows itself as the hunted outlaw.

The gentlemen who talk of creating chaos in the legislature in January next, are not concerned about the preservation of the Republican party except as a trust tool through which they may return to the United States senate an agent of corporation greed, and they are dreaming that by subtler yet more substantial things they may hypnotize the public servants to defy and betray the public will. They will not succeed. The moral fibre of Oregon citizenship will hold its servants true to principle as the needle to the pole, and will visit upon the evil genius of our politics the scorn it justly merits.

Respectfully,

JONATHAN BOURNE, JR.

ARRANGING FOR BIG EXCURSION FROM PORTLAND

The Eugene Commercial Club, the University of Oregon and the Southern Pacific Company are making extensive plans for an excursion to be run from Portland to Eugene June 24, to dedication ceremonies of the Southern Pacific station here, to visit the State University. A committee of business men will soon call upon the leading business men of Portland to invite them on behalf of the city and University.

The excursion train will reach Eugene about 11 o'clock in the morning and the exercises in connection with the dedication of the new station will take place at once. The visitors will be the guests of the city until evening, when the train will return to Portland, leaving here about the close of the day. In the afternoon the visitors will attend the annual commencement exercises of the University of Oregon.

Be sure and see the new short turn buggy before buying.
