PORTLAND MARKET REPORT
Portland, June 17.—That the retailers have been making too much money on their independent shipments of car lots of wire nails is the conclusion reached by the hardware jobbers, and for that reason they have been slashing values in the wholesale market locally. The basis for wire nails up to this time has been $3 a keg in 25-keg lots, but this price has been cut to $2.65, or a reduction of 35c a keg from former price. This is the most serious cut ever noted in the wire nail market on the Pacific coast, and indicates a desire of the big ones to force the small retailers into line. Not only have the big people cut the price 35c a keg, but they will sell at this price in any sized lot, while heretofore smaller lots have sold at higher values.

Strawberries Touch Bottom
The market for strawberries has touched bottom, for good stock, from present indications. Not only will the fruit men sell at a higher range within the next week, but it is not likely that the stock will be of such good quality as at this time. In the market today strawberries sell at 90c@1.50 a crate, with the average transactions around $1.25.

Egg Market Is Steady.
A fairly steady tone is shown in the local egg market today. While arrivals are still quite liberal, there is no great showing of accumulations and nothing is being sold under 18c, while in a few instances as high as 19c is obtained. General trade is around 18 1/2c.

General tone in poultry is steady, with some receivers carrying over supplies from last week. Prices are unchanged for the day.

Creamery butter is holding quite steady, although the make is increased.

Latest reports from Tillamook indicate that this year's pack of cheese will be the greatest in the history of the industry there.

Portland Livestock Market
Trade continues rather dull in the local livestock market, this being the situation usually at this time of the year. Receipts for several weeks have been slightly in excess of the demand, and at the same time some stock that came in was not in condition for the market. But present conditions are only temporary. There is nothing to indicate a surplus of livestock in the state, or the Northwest, and dealers are confident of improvement within a short time.

Quotations ruling in the livestock market today are:

Hogs—$4.00@ $6.25; medium, $5.75@ $6.00; feeders, no demand.
Cattle—Best steers, $4.75; medium, $4.25@ $4.60; common, $3.50@ $4.75; cows, best, $3.75; common, $3.25@ $3.50; calves, $4.50@ $5.00.
Sheep—Best sheared wethers, $4; mixed, $3.25@ $3.75; spring lambs, $4.50@ $5.00.

PRUNE SITUATION IN CALIFORNIA
The prune market shows no improved activity this week over last. The situation is extremely strong on paper, but the same condition rules and some of the prunes are showing considerable scale.

So far as old prunes are concerned there is no improvement in the interest, and while nominally prices are 2 1/2c and 3c for outside and Santa Clara respectively, sales at less than these figures are noted. One sale of equal quantities of 40s, 50s and 60s, 1907 Santa Clara, is noted in Chicago at 3 1/2c base. What prunes are left in growers' hands in Santa Clara valley of last year's crop are being held without any particular effort at selling, growers feeling that the future of this market is good and as they have held to this date might as well carry their prunes a little longer.

Cable advices from France state that the prune crop there this year is expected to be very heavy. From Budapest under date of May 13 a correspondent advises the California Fruit Grower regarding Bosnia and Herzegovina that the crop prospects continue excellent in both these countries and a record harvest is expected. The weather has been exceedingly favorable. Large quantities of 1908 prunes have already been sold for fall delivery, quotations at the date of wiring for October-November delivery in bags being as follows: 70-75s, 40 marks per 100 kilos, par Budapest; 80-85s, 33 marks; 95-100s, 24 1/2 marks; 110-120s, 18 1/2 marks; stocks of 1907 prunes are practically exhausted.—California Fruit Grower.

INFORMATION WANTED ABOUT WINTER PEARS

(Oregon Agriculturist.)
Dr. A. Sharples, of Goshen, Oregon, writes that both his son and his daughter have invested largely at Patterson, on the North Bank railroad on the Columbia river, in a locality remarkably free from pests, and adapted to the production of pears, peaches and grapes. He writes further:

"I want to find out what are the best varieties of winter pears that mature between January 1 and April, that are of a character suitable for table use. I know of but two—the Buerre Easter and the Crocker Bartlett, which originated in California. "I understand that the European varieties of this class of pears, of which there are very many fine ones, have not been a success in the East, but I wish to try them here. Do you know anything about them? If Felix Gillet were alive he could probably tell me, but I know of no one else from whom I could get the information.

"The frost of April 2 did no damage to my prunes. Italians are a short crop, but not one was frosted. My Clairac Mammoth will have a most excellent and large crop.

"In my opinion the sweet prunes, properly handled, and raised in Oregon, will be the prune par excellence and there is no trouble in producing them. My smudge system is a positive and absolute success where there is not a greater difference than 15 degrees between the dry and wet bulb thermometers."

As we know no more about the winter pears than Dr. Sharples, we ask replies to his question for the best late winter dessert pears. The Winter Nellis, which is grown only with difficulty in the Willamette valley on account of its being so readily affected by scab, is a success in Southern and Eastern Washington and would probably do well at Patterson, Wash., as the atmospheric conditions there are favorable for producing fruit free from scab.

Dr. Low, the optician, will be in his Eugene office all next week. Have him relieve your head and eye ache with a pair of his correct fitted glasses.
