CLEVELAND PASSED AWAY TODAY AT PRINCETON HOME

NOTWITHSTANDING FAILING HEALTH OF EX-PRESIDENT END WAS NOT EXPECTED—ONLY MRS. CLEVELAND AND PHYSICIANS AT DYING MAN'S BEDSIDE—COMPLICATION OF DISEASES CAUSED DEATH, ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

Princeton, June 24.—Former President Grover Cleveland died here today at 8:40 a. m.

Princeton, June 24.—The following statement, signed by Doctors Joseph D. Bryant, George R. Lockwood and J. M. Carnochan was given out:

"Mr. Cleveland for many years has suffered from repeated attacks of gastro-intestinal organs. Also he had a long standing organic disease of the heart and kidneys. Heart failure, complicated with pulmonary thrombosis and oedema, were the immediate causes of his death."

The passing away of Grover Cleveland was not immediately announced, pending the preparation of the official statement. While he had been seriously ill from time to time, the announcement of his death came like a thunderbolt to those who had been watching his illness.

Last night the visit of Dr. Bryant created some apprehension that something was seriously wrong but the statement of Mrs. Cleveland that there was no occasion for alarm reassured their friends. Mrs. Cleveland was at home when her distinguished husband passed away, but the children were at Cleveland's summer home at Thomworth, N. H., in charge of Mrs. Ferrine, Mrs. Cleveland's mother.

Those at the bedside were, Mrs. Cleveland and the three physicians. The former president spent a fairly comfortable night, notwithstanding the oppressive heat, but shortly after eight o'clock began to fail. Physicians worked over the patient who lapsed into unconsciousness and at 8:40 passed away.

As soon as Mrs. Cleveland recovered partial composure, she sent for Professor West of Princeton, who attended to many details immediately necessary, with the assistance of Professor Hibbin.

Mrs. Cleveland is prostrated.

Obituary Sketch.

Grover Cleveland was born at Caldwell, Essex County, New Jersey, March 18, 1837. His father was Richard F. Cleveland, Presbyterian minister, and his ancestor, Moses Cleveland, immigrated from Ipswich, England to Woburn, Mass., in 1665. The ex-president was christened Stephen Grover Cleveland, but of late years signed his name Grover Cleveland. He received an academic education, taught school and studied law. He was in turn district attorney and sheriff of Erie county, New York, mayor of Buffalo, and governor of the state. He defeated James G. Blaine for president in 1884; was defeated for re-election by Benjamin Harrison in 1888, and in turn defeated the latter for re-election in 1892.

At the close of his last term he moved to Princeton, New Jersey, and became interested in Princeton University. He was married to Francis Falcon, daughter of his former law partner June 2, 1886, and four children were born to him. One of them, Ruth, died some time ago.

LONGEST PARADE EVER SEEN IN EUGENE JULY 4

Lane County people will see the longest parade next Fourth of July that ever marched through the streets of Eugene, and as well as long it will be full of interest, of clever floats, and comic features, such as the old and famed plagues. Already the committee in charge has ascertained that they will have at least sixty floats, which with other features will make the column over a mile long.

From morning until night the day will be filled with events. There will be speaking by orators, though the committee are so desirous of getting the best possible speakers that they are not ready to make any announcements.

There will be races for the athletic inclined, with suitable prizes, and for those that love music the Creawell and Eugene bands will vie with each other in giving free concerts at the city plaza.

In the evening will be fireworks such as never lighted the skies of Eugene before. Rockets, shooting stars, hot air balloons, and a score of features that please the heart of the oldest inhabitant as well as the youngest will be seen to ascend into the heavens from Skinger's Butte.

Among other special features will be a drill by the $1000 fire team of Eugene. An actual house will be burned somewhere near the depot.

Another interesting exhibition will be the pole vaulting of Kuykendall and Fred Moulten, University students, who are crack Coast athletes.

For the visitors in Eugene there will be free automobile rides from which may be viewed the city's progress and the sights, while at the same time they feel the pleasure of riding forty miles an hour in a horseless wagon.

In the evening a free dance will also be given in the armory which will last until morning.

But don't forget the parade. Miss Belle Van Dusen will be the Goddess of Liberty and her float will be drawn by six black horses. That alone will be worth coming ten miles to see.

THREE RIVERS FIRE LOSS TWO MILLION.

DEGREES CONFERRED TODAY ON SIXTY-ONE OREGON STUDENTS

Fifty-eight graduates of the regular departments of the University, three others receiving higher degrees, were pushed out into the cold harsh world of life this afternoon at the University of Oregon's thirty-second annual commencement exercises, amid a host of admiring friends and relatives and well-wishing visitors. With this afternoon's program the class of 1908 passed into history with the best commencement week that the University has ever had. President Campbell conferred the degrees on the class.

Before the degrees were conferred, Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard University, delivered the Commencement address. In a voice that could be heard in the hallways of Villard, as well as in the main auditorium,

P. L. CAMPBELL, President of Oregon State University.

He told by accurate definitions and apt illustrations, what kind of men the world now wants, and distinguished it from what has been called for in the past.

"The world of today," he said, "is material to the core. The most sacred institutions and observances are coupled with the practical. And since the world demands, first of all, success, the men who win its laurels must first all be practical."

Later he said that the trend of moderns is toward specialization. The students used to do everything but now it seems that our civilization has divided industry into pockets, into which to a man slide. But yet there is the place for the broad sided man, who can ethically connect and glue and hold together different departments. The expert gives the facts of his line, but the really practical broad-minded man organizes.

But of all things needed, the speaker thought, confidence is the most necessary. And to obtain this confidence every man must lead the kind of life which gives others faith.

In his introduction, Hart said that of all the fine things that impressed him in Eugene, two stood out prominently, the first was the banner near the University, "Bicultural Pave-ment. What made Eugene famous," and another "Cook With Gas." The first he thought, must have been flown to the wind in honor of the president of the University to show that his qualities of mind and heart were firm, elastic and wearing. The second reminded him of the good things to eat he had already had, and what more he expected.

Unveil Portrait.
The most memorable event of the week and of this afternoon was the unveiling of the splendid portrait of President Johnson, for when the white covering was drawn away, the hundreds of alumni and old students present had memories of the man who may be called the founder of the University of Oregon.

Professor F. S. Dunn delivered an address, telling of the life of President Johnson and his wonderful influence. The speaker, now at the head of the Latin department of which Professor Johnson so long had charge, is a graduate of the University, and during his college career here, was always in close and immediate contact with the first president of the University.

city are in gala attire and each citizen is vying with his neighbor in making the visitors feel that they are welcome.

The excursion train arrived at the depot five minutes ahead of time. A crowd of a thousand or more people was waiting for it and as the locomotive, gaily decorated with green and yellow, the University colors, and pulling a baggage car and four coaches loaded to the doors with Portland boosters, puffed into the station, the excursionists were greeted by stirring music by the Eugene Military band and as they alighted from the cars they were warmly welcomed by the citizens assembled with handshakes and hearty words of greeting. Nearly every person in the party knew someone in the Eugene crowd that had assembled, and exchanges of friendly felicitations was the order for a few minutes.

A few minutes after the arrival of the train the formal exercises began, arrangements having been made for them on the south platform of the depot. Dr. D. A. Paine opened with the announcement that Dr. W. Kuykendall would deliver the address of welcome. The doctor welcomed the citizens of "the most progressive city on the coast to the most cultured and most beautiful city on the coast" in his usual happy manner. He spoke of the good work the citizens of Portland did for the University in giving such a large majority in that city for the appropriation and spoke of the splendid work that the Southern Pacific is doing for Eugene, in the extensive improvements now in progress on the company's property here. W. W. Cotton, general counsel for the Harriman lines in the Northwest, was introduced by Dr. Paine as the only man who ever declined the United States Senatorship when handed to him on a golden platter. Mr. Cotton spoke in a fluent manner of the growth of the Willamette Valley and of Eugene, and laid particular stress
