A. E. TAYLOR DROWNED IN M'KENZIE RIVER

(From Monday's Daily Guard.)

Arthur E. Taylor, a plasterer and brick-layer, was drowned yesterday afternoon at Hayden's Bridge, on the McKenzie, before his wife and children and a party of friends with whom he was spending the Sunday picnic. A. T. Miles, a friend who is employed by the telephone company, tried to swim to Taylor, but though he got within a few feet of him the swift current swept the straggling man out of his reach. A slight bruise on the head and slight struggles indicate that Taylor might have been stunned before the current gripped him.

He was fishing off a log when last seen out of the water. One of the children of the party saw him floating through the rapids just below him, after which Miles attempted to rescue him. Taylor was unable to swim, and in the swift treacherous water was a toy of the current. The body was soon afterward located near the railroad bridge in fourteen or fifteen feet of water. When the party of six or eight friends and brother Eagles arrived from town, Murray, of the local paint firm, dove for the body from a boat and brought it to the surface. Efforts at resuscitation were a complete failure.

The unfortunate man is survived by a wife and a son of two years, three brothers, two in England, and one in Portland, the latter arriving last night to look after the body. A sister and mother in England also survive him. He came to this country four years ago from Hull, England, his wife following him a year and a half afterward. He has been in Eugene with his family for about four months, being employed most of the time as a brick-layer and plasterer. He was about thirty years of age.

Coroner W. T. Gordon deemed it unnecessary to hold an inquest. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the Catholic church. Interment will be made in the I. O. O. F. cemetery.

PRETTY WOMAN CAUSES HIGH LIFE TRAGEDY

New York, Aug. 17.—Captain Peter C. Hains, who shot and killed William Annis Saturday at the Bayside Yacht Club landing, was today arraigned with his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, who held the crowd at bay with a revolver while his brother poured shot after shot into the body of the man who he asserts ruined his home. Both showed little concern over their predicament in court today.

T. Jenkins Hains was first held on a charge of felonious assault, but was later charged with being accessory to the killing of Annis. Before the arraignment Harvey B. Rockwell, who has been a close friend of Annis, the slain man, turned over to the district attorney of Queens county a bunch of letters received by Annis recently, in which he was warned that his life was in danger. The last letter cautioned him against visiting the Bayside Yacht Club Saturday.

The Hains brothers' hearing was put over one week. A special grand jury may take up the case. New York, Aug. 16.—Captain Peter Cooper Hains, son of General Peter Carnova Hains, and one of the best known younger officers of the United States army, today shot and mortally wounded William E. Annis, a magazine publisher and editor of this city, at the pier of the Bayside Yacht Club, at Bayside, L. I.

Annis died a few hours later in the Flushing hospital, the victim of a husband's revenge for a wife gone astray. For years he has been numbered among Captain Hains' most intimate friends. But he took advantage of the officer's absence in the Philippines on duty to win away the young and beautiful Mrs. Hains. She confessed to her husband when he made a hurried trip home.

First, divorce suit, instituted in June, with Annis as co-respondent, and then today's shooting, were the results of the confession. Wife witnesses shooting. Annis' wife, accompanied by her two children, witnessed the shooting from the club house piazza. Just a moment before the shot was fired she caught sight of Captain Hains' uniform. Sensing danger, she called to her husband and tried to warn him, but he did not hear her. She collapsed into a state of hysteria as she saw Annis fall.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH'S BIRTHDAY

Vienna, Aug. 18.—The Austro-Hungarian Kaiser, the venerable Francis Joseph, today celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday, as is customary in retirement in the imperial summer villa at Ischl. The anniversary was observed throughout the empire, but the elaborate public fetes originally contemplated have been deferred until next December, when the emperor will celebrate his sixtieth accession to the imperial crown. The health of Francis Joseph is reported to be better now than it has been for a long time past. At Ischl he is up every morning at 5 o'clock, and after a light breakfast he walks for an hour or so. At 7 o'clock the courier arrives from Vienna with the dispatches, and then the emperor sits for four or five hours to business.

T. Jenkins Hains, elder brother of the captain and a famous writer of sea tales, stood by during the shooting with another revolver and prevented any one from interfering while the younger man poured five shots into Annis' body. Then wheeling toward a crowd that surged out upon the yacht club pier, he held its members at bay until he saw that his brother was not going to be harmed. With the utmost calmness both brothers presented their weapons, this time butts foremost, to the men in the crowd. They sat down on a string of piles afterward and smoked until the police came and arrested them.

In the flushing station the elder brother, who did what little talking was done, said: "Peter shot him because he stole his wife and wrecked his home. There is a child. It isn't Peter's. He made sure. His wife confessed to him and me. That was the reason for the shooting." The brothers calmly wrote out telegrams, Jenkins to a lawyer, Peter to his father, the distinguished old gentleman, who was in walking order. The general hurried to the Flushing jail tonight and embraced both sons.

Mrs. Hains' Statement. Mrs. Hains, in Boston, late this afternoon, denounced her husband's act and said: "I hope they string both of them up. They engaged me in a confession, yes; but I merely signed a paper they wrote out for me, after they had forced me to drink a lot of whiskey and nearly starved me. It was a case of my husband being jealous of Annis, who was only a very good friend."

Ten Years of Effort in Black Butte Mines. In the foothills of the Calapooia mountains on the coast fork of the Willamette river, 16 miles south of Cottage Grove, a great mine has been carved out of the hills. It has taken 10 long years of faithfully devoted work, and a pile of the yellow metal, to do it; but a great industry has been established which will give lucrative employment to men and sustenance for their families, probably for many years after the mine has been exhausted. It has been gathered in his fathers' day. Against all odds, discouragements and difficulties, of which there have been plenty, as in all work of this kind, the development of the mine has gone steadily forward. Not a day since the property, nearly 10 years ago, came into the hands of one of its present owners, William B. Dennis, formerly of Spokane, Wash., has work ceased. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been paid out for labor and supplies in the southern end of Lane county.

The valley between Cottage Grove and Black Butte is one of the most prosperous and up-to-date farming sections of Lane county. Every farmer and farmer's son has had a job of work when he wanted it. Two telephone lines, free rural mail delivery, express, and one of the best wagon roads in the state, are the direct results of Mr. Dennis' enterprise. Cottage Grove, Eugene and even Shoe String Valley have all come in for a share of the benefits. Hundreds of thousands of tons of ore are blocked out, ready to be winnowed for the smelter. The great smelter is completed and in operation, and the stream of liquid silver has begun to flow into the markets of the world. The first carload was shipped last week to New York.

The mines are at the head of the Coast Fork valley. Black Butte mountain, densely fir-treed-clad from its base to its summit, rises majestically to a height of 2,750 feet above sea level. Quoting from the report of an eminent geologist: "In a sense it may be said that the whole mountain is one huge lode." The vein is 400 feet wide, and has been proved for over two miles in length. Other parallel and intersecting veins have been proven and developed on the 2,000 acres comprising the Black Butte property. Over five miles of tunnels, raises, shafts and winzes have been driven, and yet all this vast amount of work is only as a few wasteholes in comparison to the enormous size of the ore bodies.

Of course, it is to be expected, so great a mass of ore is naturally low-grade as to mineral values, and the owners have developed it on a low-grade basis. Nevertheless, the mine produces some of the richest quicksilver ore found in any part of the world. Nearby Timber Holdings. In addition to the value of the mine, large timber holdings have been acquired which alone will be worth a handsome sum in a few years. Also partially developed is a water power system which is capable of supplying not only all the requirements of the mine, but also sufficient power for electric transportation from Eugene to Oakland. The mine, reduction plant and village of Black Butte, are now lighted by electricity generated by a Lowell turbine operated by this power. The smelter, or reduction plant as it is called, has a capacity of 80 tons per 24-hour day. But this is said to be only beginning. Additional furnaces are to be erected, in the near future, for 300 or 400 tons per day. The quantity of ore exposed more than justifies the type of plant to be used will be the Dennis Roasting Furnace, an in-

W. P. Stark, president of the Missouri State Board of Horticulture, in company with James M. Irvine, editor of the Western Fruit Grover, of St. Joseph, Mo., will visit Eugene about Monday, August 24. Both of them are prominent in the horticultural field, and are making a six-weeks trip through the orchard regions of Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Montana, Oregon and Washington to study the methods of Western fruit growers and to become better acquainted with them. They would be pleased to meet as many Lane county fruit growers as possible, believing the exchange of views and discussion of methods would be mutually beneficial.

SERVICE AT WORK ON NEW TRAIL

The men in the district of the forest service under Superintendent A. E. Cohoon are now working on the trail along the main ridge of the Coast range to join the Siuslaw country to the Alsea region. The Waldport road is almost finished. The importance of the trail is great, for there is no connecting link between the two settlements and other minor ones along the coast. All the little villages are inhabited by dairy men, who turn off their product in cheese. The trail is being so graded and surveyed that the country can at any time by a little additional work be transformed into a county road perfectly fit for wagon traffic.

RANGERS KEEP DOWN FIRES IN LANE COUNTY

C. R. Seltz, superintendent of the Cascade government forests in the county states that the fire situation has never been bad, though a few small outbreaks have occurred. At all times the rangers have had control, and there has been but little serious destruction of timber.

John Flanagan, of the Irish-American A. C., while giving an exhibition at Queenstown, broke the world's record for a 16-pound hammer throw, distance 181 feet and 8 inches. A New York dispatch says: Although Conrad Steingruber laughed at the Christ hospital physicians in Jersey City, who said that he would die in 24 hours from the effects of the bite of a dog, the prophecy was fulfilled today. Steingruber said he was a disbeliever in hydrophobia and that he would be around again in a few days. He rapidly grew worse, however. He remained conscious until the end and almost the last words he spoke were that he would get well. He was bitten three weeks ago.

A torrent of rain poured over Lincoln and the surrounding country yesterday and kept visitors away from Fairview. Bryan busied himself in his study-preparing speeches. A large Marshfield hen, narrates the News, attempted to swallow a snake, tail foremost, but twice the little reptile succeeded in getting away from her. On the third attempt the snake was compelled to give up, having been almost pecked to death.

SURE CURE FOR THE BLUES. Barnum & Bailey Circus has Army of World's Best Clowns. Dull care takes to the brush at the approach of Barnum & Bailey's great army of clowns. The undertaker becomes jovial, the chronic dyspeptic releases the frown in his forehead and holds his sides, and the sedate judge laughs immoderately. It is a show in which the comedy element cuts no small figure. The clowns have been gathered from all quarters of the globe and the result is a well diversified array of droll stunts absolutely new and funnier than ever. Public events are travestied, prominent men are impersonated in grotesque caricature, short plays and screaming pantomimes are enacted and from beginning to end the great arena rings with laughter. The Barnum & Bailey show has always enjoyed the reputation of having the world's best clowns on its list of performers and of being the originators of all great clown stunts. That is more than ever the case this year. There is a laugh a minute tucked away between exploits of derring-do and feats of skill, the great army of jesters filling every pause in the wonderful performance with shouts of laughter. It is the sort of nonsense that the best of men relish and are the better for having laughed at. In Eugene Saturday, August 29.
