RITCHEY CREEK RUNS OVER THREE MILLION GALLONS

All aboard for Ritchey creek. A party consisting of R. Daniel, the Ninth street grocerman, A. A. Simmons, photographer, Rev. H. A. Champie, F. S. Tingley and W. S. Moon, of Moon & Tingley, with their respective wives, a party of ten, with Earl McNutt, of the Bangs Livery Company as driver, left the city at 5 a. m. Tuesday morning. Stopping with Mrs. Ross Matthews at Thurston to partake of a splendid breakfast, and reaching the river at Mr. Lemley's place at 10:30 a. m., Mr. McNamara was prevailed upon to set the party wagon and four-horse team over the river, when the short drive to Ritchey creek was completed. The party camped and lunched in the dense cool shade of alder and vine maple on the bank of the creek, and dined a bountiful basket dinner in the sweet cold water of Ritchey creek. Leaving the ladies to rest after their long ride, the men formation to the headwaters of the creek, where James Kennerly was encountered, who in company with two other men were hunting for a sawlog, reported to have been seen some place in the Ritchey creek watershed. An examination of the new weir for accurately measuring the daily flow of water disclosed the fact that 3,200,000 gallons was the flow at this time. The entire party were not only well pleased with the unquestionable quality of the water there, but are thoroughly of the opinion that there is an ample supply for the city of Eugene for years to come. Leaving the creek at 3 o'clock the party returned to the bridge across the McKenzie and again halted for refreshments as the driver, Mr. McNutt, seemed almost fished for provender. By the way, this gentleman is not only an excellent, courteous and accommodating chauffeur, but in addition is an excellent and wonderful feeder, and he heartily recommends him to like excursions. After supper the party again set faces homeward, arriving in Eugene at 9:30 p. m., tired and dusty, but well pleased and satisfied with their trip.

HOPPICKERS AT WORK AT HARRISBURG

Harrisburg, Or., Aug. 25.—Hop-picking in this section commenced yesterday with full crews of pickers. The growers report that they can gather and dry their early hops by the time the later varieties are ripe, and if at that time the market does not justify picking they will leave the late hops on the vines. The yield is estimated to be less than one-half last year's crop. However, it is the general prediction that the quality will be the best ever grown in this hop district.

SUSLAW IS COMING PLEASURE RESORT

The time is coming and probably is not far distant, when the Suslaw will be a favorite summer resort for the people from the valley. It has many natural advantages which go to make a desirable place in which to spend the warm days of summer and in fact there are few localities anywhere in the country where nature has been so lavish in giving those things that make up a pleasant place for a summer outing. Here within a few miles are found fine fishing and hunting grounds, beautiful scenery, fresh and salt water bathing, and sheltered nooks where they can breathe the pure ocean air and still be protected from the strong winds. Here, too, they can have a view of the ocean and see various forms of animal and vegetable life abounding therein. The only drawback at the present time is the lack of convenient transportation facilities. But the road will soon be opened so that teams can drive from Mapleton through to the ocean beach. With a plank or crushed rock road from Eugene to Mapleton, the valley people could easily make the trip to this part of the coast and have a pleasant outing here at no great expense. This opinion of the natural advantages of this place has been expressed by many people who are familiar with this part of Oregon. Only a few days ago a well-known business man of Eugene who has made several trips to the coast and who has also viewed nearly all the other summer resorts in this part of the country, informed us that he intends to come to the Suslaw every summer for an outing as he enjoys a vacation here more than any other place he has.

ALBANY MAY SECURE BIG PACKING PLANT

The largest independent meat packing plant on the Pacific coast, one that will cost a quarter of a million dollars, will be built in Albany, and work will commence within the next 90 days, says the Herald. O'Shea Brothers, formerly owners of the Union Meat Company in Portland, are the two men who have decided to make this city the "Kansas City of the West."

Recognizing in Albany the natural railroad and commercial center of the Willamette valley and seeing in this city the future metropolis of the upper Willamette valley, O'Shea Brothers, after looking over the ground in Salem, Eugene and Albany, have announced that they will build their mammoth packing plant here. John O'Shea was in Albany last week and inspected the situation thoroughly, and before leaving announced that they would build their big plant here. O'Shea Bros. recently sold out their large packing plant in Portland to the trust, and according to John O'Shea, their sale included in it a provision that they would not engage in the business again in Portland for a specified number of years. For this reason they have been desirous of starting an independent packing plant somewhere in the Willamette valley, and careful investigation has convinced them that Albany is the only natural location for such a plant.

In conversation with one of Albany's leading business men before his departure for Portland Mr. O'Shea said:

"We will build a large independent meat packing plant in Albany and it will cost at least $250,000. After the war, the situation here, thoroughly and amply convinced that this city is the ideal point for establishing our plant, I have several sites here under contemplation which will be suitable for our plant. As a shipping point Albany is perfectly situated for our purposes."

John O'Shea is already preparing to move to Albany to reside, so as to be on the ground personally during the work of construction of the plant, which will also include extensive yards and will cover approximately twenty-five acres.

DAIRYING TO BE FEATURE OF FAIR

Dairying is going to become one of the principal agricultural industries in Oregon, and with this idea in view the Oregon state fair management is giving more encouragement to the dairy department of the coming fair, at Salem, September 14-19. This department will be superintended by Mrs. S. A. Youkum, of Marshfield, who owns and conducts a large dairy farm in Coos county, and she is also vice president of the Oregon Dairyman's Association. Mrs. Youkum says there is going to be a grand display of dairy and creamery products at the fair next month, and has secured for additional space for the exhibits. In answer to her demand the fair board has concluded to move the "rest tent" over and annex it to the dairy building, and under this the different firms dealing in dairy and creamery outfits will be allowed space for their working exhibits, thus leaving the whole of the dairy pavilion proper for the creamery and cheese factory entries. A large platform will be erected adjoining on which will be displayed one of the modern milking machines in operation twice daily during the charge of the milk cow team, which is one of the interesting features of the fair, and in which there is exhibitors of the various dairy breeds of cattle.

LANE NEEDS GOATS TO CLEAR BRUSH

"Goats can be made a profitable industry in many parts of Lane county," a Douglas county man remarked after he had visited the hilly sections of this county. "There is no animal that cleans up the brush so well, and Lane county in the coast district particularly needs to get rid of the brush."

"In Douglas county many land owners find the raising of mohair far more profitable than wool, for not only do the goats clean up the brush, but they produce a valuable product. There are a few in Lane county, I understand, but the raising of the animals has not been made such a specialty as in Douglas county, where the rancher in the hilly districts does not know what to do without them."

"Of course, I don't know how bad the varmints are here," continued the raiser, "but I see no reason why they should be harder on goats than on sheep. You people in Lane county find plenty of money in raising wool. I don't really know whether goats hold off coyotes any better than sheep or not. There are a good many tales told that they do, but lots of kids got caught by panthers and coyotes, though I believe that the matured goats are better able to meet an emergency than the ordinary ewe or ram.

Hitching places for teams around the park squares are needed while the paving is going on in that vicinity. The farmers are at a loss to know where to hitch when they come to town.
