Much New Wheat. Grain men estimate that about 10,000,000 bushels of the new crop in the Pacific Northwest have been sold to date. Practically all this wheat has been bought by a few of the larger exporters, the smaller dealers not being able to operate to any great extent because of the extreme prices offered by the exporters. These prices in many cases have been several cents above the export value of wheat. A good part of the purchases are said to have been on the export basis, but where competition has been encountered bids have been made considerably higher. The smaller dealers, those who buy from the store, 518 Willamette street, or millers or to the California trade, are unable to meet the figures offered in the country at the present time and are practically idle, but expect to have their inning later, when the heavy export buying slows down.

The reason for the large operations of the exporters is still a matter of much conjecture, as the condition of foreign markets at the present time apparently does not justify the buying movement at high prices at this end. It is surmised in some quarters that the speculation is purely in anticipation of improved conditions later, and if this is the case, the farmers will find it a good thing for them to have such influential holders supporting the market. On the other hand, many members of the trade still believe that the recent flurry and the maintenance of high prices is but the effort of some of the shippers to squeeze others who are supposed to have sold short or made extensive tonnage engagements.

At any rate, while buying at the moment is not heavy, prices offered in the country are held up to the old figure, regardless of changes taking place abroad or in the Eastern exchanges. Farmers are holding firmly in the hope of a later rise, while buyers are not disposed to offer more and can do absolutely nothing by offering less.

The oats market is quiet but firm. There is the customary demand, but very little is being offered, as only a small part of the crop has been threshed so far. Old oats are well cleaned up and as there is a good inquiry for them, buyers are required to pay stronger prices. This keeps up the ideas of farmers in regard to the new crop.

Barley continues dull, with the undertone barely steady. Offerings have been larger than usual in the last few days.

Grain prices are unchanged at the Board of Trade yesterday. Bids for wheat were more numerous but a cent separated the ideas of buyers and sellers and prevented the closing of any business.

Receipts for the day were 61 cars and 1472 sacks wheat; 2 cars and 330 sacks oats; 7 cars and 1069 sacks of barley; 504 sacks four; 1447 sacks bran and 18 cars and 558 bales hay.

Hop Shorts Are Scared. Fearful of every shadow that draws across the hop market, short sellers are doing much worrying these days for to date they have covered but a fraction of their supplies around 4 and 5c a pound, but the fact that growers are talking much of not gathering their hops, has induced the leaders to begin contracting again. None of them are, however, paying over 5c a pound. It is stated that Julius Pincus of Salem is taking on large lots for his relatives at Tacoma—Messrs. Isaac Pincus & Sons—but the Salem man denies it. In any event it is stated that some contracting for the Tacoma firm's account has been done recently around 7 and 8c a pound. Messrs. Pincus & Sons are said to be the largest short selling hop firm in the country at this time. Some time ago the members of the firm were in Portland and through a morning paper endeavored to force the growers to cultivate and afterward pick their crop. This was done by the firm talking of a higher market. All this time while talking of excellent chances for the growers to make money on their crops of 1908, the Tacoma firm is said to have been selling every bale short it could find a purchaser for even though the price be several cents below actual cost of production.

Rains Will Help Crop. The late rains in the Willamette valley will help the hop crop materially and the estimates of dealers and growers are being raised. The vines are looking quite healthy and there is practically no vermin reported. The same condition rules in Washington. Joe Harris of Salem, who was in Portland yesterday, states he has received a cable from England estimating a crop of 530,000 hundredweight, compared with a crop of about 375,000 hundredweight a year ago. For the continent Mr. Harris' cable gives an estimate of 1,210,000 hundredweight compared with a crop of about 1,000,000 a year ago.

There is a mixed condition in the local butter market at the moment. The advance of one creamery yesterday to 32 1/2¢ started the rest of the makers who fear the market has been advanced already to too high a figure. While the local market in itself justifies a further advance in value, outside conditions are opposite and already shippers of eastern stocks have taken advantage of the fact that the Portland market is the highest in the country and are preparing to make further shipments in this direction. The one car recently arrived has been cleaned up at about 7c a pound less than what city makers are asking for their best production. A further advance in local values would have the effect of forcing large shipments in this direction from California as well as from the east, and this would break the local market in half.

WALTERVILLE ITEMS

(Special Correspondence.)

Walterville, Aug. 23.—Hop picking commenced at the Jesse Hanson yard last Friday.

Miss Irene Brownson came up from Eugene to visit her mother here during the breakdown.

The new boiler and engine for the Inman mill has been received and operations are expected to begin about Monday, which will be appreciated by those who have had to stagger work during the breakdown.

Mrs. Bertha Lewis has returned to Eugene after a visit with her mother, Mrs. Brownson.

Mr. Wing was in this neighborhood Friday buying cattle.

The funeral of Mrs. Peabody was held Thursday at the Leaburg cemetery.

The ladies of Walterville served ice cream Friday evening and surprised Rev. King with the proceeds. He gave his farthest talk Sunday evening. We regret very much that he cannot be with us longer, as his sermons were very interesting and instructive.

Miss Belle Milligan has returned to Walterville after a year's absence, having spent the past four months in the East and taking in the Yellowstone Park on her return trip. Miss Milligan reports a most delightful trip and says one who has not visited the park does not fully understand the old saying, "Indescribable."

Alson Post is visiting at his aunt's in Linn county.

The building committee of the Bible University yesterday accepted the stone work of Contractor J. A. Nash and a settlement in full was made today. The committee is much pleased with Mr. Nash's work. The interior of the building is being rushed to completion.

There are many imitations of De Witt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve but just one original. Sold by all druggists.

DRS. CHRISTIE & HANSON, licensed Veterinary Surgeons, call promptly answered night or day. Res. Phone Main 612. Office with Bangs Livery Co. Phone 21.
