

KAISER SCARED OUT BY BOMBS REAL REASON

Paris, Sept. 16.—A dispatch from Huishausen, Alsace-Lorraine, says the reason of the German emperor's sudden abandonment of his excursion into French territory a few days ago was the presence of two French anarchists, who had gone to the frontier with bombs. The emperor was appealed to not to cross the frontier and consented in view of the unpleasant consequences an untoward incident occurring while he was in French territory, might have. The information reached the police too late for them to follow and intercept the anarchists.

Judge Parker's Address.
Not the least striking feature of Judge Parker's address was a declaration that James S. Sherman, the companion of Mr. Taft on the Republican ticket, invaded Wall street for political contributions in 1906 when Mr. Sherman was chairman of the congressional committee. "Evidence is not wanting of the set purpose of the leaders of the Republican party," he said, "to continue their plan of securing funds from those who are interested either in legislation or in non-enforcement of law. Smarting under the exposure of the insurance investigations of 1905, and subsequent disclosures not under oath, its congressional committee in 1906 called for dollar contributions from individuals to aid in the election of the republican members of congress. The president himself subscribed a dollar and a few others whose names were advertised and then the publication of subscriptions ceased and then the chairman of the congressional committee, now the republican candidate for vice-president went down as did his predecessors of old, into Wall Street to get the money with which to influence the doubtful districts." Judge Parker charged the republicans with gross extravagance in the federal administration as well as in those states under republican control.

"The one scare which Mr. Taft presents is excited by the democratic declarations on the tariff question. Speaking of our platform proposal to make such radical reductions as may be necessary to restore the tariff to a revenue basis, he declares in his notification speech that the introduction into power of a party with this avowed purpose cannot but halt the gradual recovery from our recent financial depression and produce business disaster compared with our recent panic and depression will seem very small indeed."

"Surely Mr. Taft cannot contemplate any material reduction of the tariff, if he really believes that a gradual recovery from our recent depression would involve us in any business disaster compared with which our recent panic and depression will seem very small indeed."

"Mr. Taft began his candidacy a year ago as a champion of tariff reform; but each month has witnessed lessening of his zeal until now his temper, measured by the tariff reform thermometer, is close to zero. His platform begins with what at first glance might seem a pledge that something would be done. It says, 'The Republican party declares unequivocally for a revision of the tariff by special session of congress immediately following the inauguration of the next president.'"

"The word 'inauguration' does not appear in the platform. It is revision, not introduction and Mr. Taft has already interpreted the word, 'revision' to mean the raising of some of the schedules and the lowering of others, but with no indication as to whether the average will be above or below the present."

"What is there in the democratic platform that can be construed as a threat to the tariff? Will it produce a panic to put on the free list articles that come in competition with articles controlled by the trusts? Democratic success will not bring a panic to any except those who have their hands in other people's pockets and these ought to be frightened."

"Will it disturb business to materially reduce the tariff on the necessities of life, especially on those articles that are sold abroad cheaper than at home? If we can compete in foreign markets do we need a high tariff to enable us to compete in the home markets? Since Mr. Taft has gone into the business of predicting panics if he is not elected, it is only fair to ask what guaranty he can give if he is elected. No one can doubt that he honestly believes the country will go to ruin if he is elected, but what guaranty have we that his opinion is well founded."

"I beg you to weigh the arguments. Be not misled by the direful prophecies of a candidate who has convinced you that in some mysterious way the country's prosperity depends upon his election."

Platform Adopted.
The platform heartily endorses the platform of the Denver convention and approves of the candidates chosen by the national convention.

SELLERS SEEKS TO STOP BLASTING BY INJUNCTION

BEGINS SUIT IN THE CIRCUIT COURT AGAINST THE CITY OF EUGENE, THE WARREN CONSTRUCTION CO. AND THE WILLAMETTE VALLEY CO.

J. R. Sellers, who has been foremost in the endeavor to have the blasting at the Warren Construction Co's quarry at the west end of the butte stopped, today began suit in the circuit court to enjoin the company, the city and the Willamette Valley Co. the last named owning the ground upon which the quarry is situated, from conducting the quarry there and from setting off blasts.

Mr. Sellers, in his complaint, alleges that he is the owner of eight houses and lots in the northwest part of the city in the vicinity of the quarry. He alleges that the quarry is a great annoyance and menace to him and his property; that the heavy concussion of the blasts are dangerous to him and his property and are annoying the whole community in general, causing damage to their property. He states that they are causing the foundations to settle, doors to fall off their hinges, nails to work loose, inside finishings to be damaged, canned fruits to spoil and solid frame buildings to become weak and unstable. He alleges that large pieces of rock from the blasts are thrown by the explosions upon the roof of his house, causing large holes to be torn in the roof; that the blasts have loosened fissures in the rock floor underneath the soil, causing veins of water to stop their flow and many good wells in that vicinity have become dry and useless.

Sellers asks for $100 damages and a permanent injunction. C. M. Kissinger and W. G. Martin are his attorneys.

JOHNSTOWN FLOOD BABY INTERESTED

London, Sept. 16.—During the past summer thousands of persons have been interested in the "Johnstown Flood," a subject of the Franco-British exposition, but it is safe to say that no visitor viewed the panorama with more interest than a stalwart young Welshman who visited the exhibition a few days ago. The young man was Moses Flood William, who first saw the light of day in the city of Johnstown on the afternoon of the fatal day of the flood which destroyed the city and blotted out hundreds of lives.

The young man's parents, who had emigrated to America from Wales, were living at Cosmevaugh street in Johnstown. On the day of the flood they escaped to the house of a relative in another portion of the city, but this house also was swept away by the raging waters and it was while floating along on the roof of the dwelling that the mother gave birth to her child. The name "Moses" was given to the baby in reference to the circumstances of his birth. Soon after the flood the parents returned with their child to Wales and Moses Flood William has since resided in Glamorganshire.

No Man Deliberately Buys Poor Clothes

He thinks they're good; worth the money, or he doesn't want them. Just the same, lots of men are paying their good money for cheap clothes—mixed goods—and they think they're being real economical because they get such clothes for little less than all-wool would cost.

This cotton mixed stuff is certainly very deceiving, even expert clothing men find it difficult at times to tell whether or not the fabric has cotton in it. We've seen clothes that looked good enough to sell at $20 which were over one-half cotton and really worth about $6 the suit.

We sell no such film-fam here. You know what Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes are, so do we.

The makers say "All-wool" and live up to it.

OKLAHOMA CITIES CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY.

Ferry, Okla., Sept. 16.—Today was the fifteenth anniversary of the opening of the Cherokee Strip and the birth of a number of now thriving cities and towns. The occasion was commemorated with interesting celebrations in Enid, Cherokee, Blackwell and other places. In this city the celebration was unusually elaborate. The most interesting feature was a parade of a score of horses, each over twenty years old, the only survivors of the thousands of horses that made the famous race September 16, 1893, with 149 acre homesteads as prizes for the lucky owners.

PROMINENT APPLE BUYER IN EUGENE

William Crossley of the firm of Crossley & Son, one of the largest apple-buying firms in the world, with offices in New York, Liverpool, and several other European cities, was in Eugene today. He came West for the purpose of making large purchases at Hood River and is taking a trip through Western Oregon to look over the several fruit-growing districts. He was taken through several orchards north of the city this morning by J. O. Holt, manager of the Lane County Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association. While there is nothing here to compare with the Hood River orchards, Mr. Crossley was well pleased with what he saw and predicted a future for the apple industry in this vicinity.

The fight which is being waged by Chicago High school fraternity members against the school board for the right to retain membership in secret societies, was carried into the court yesterday. Edward McDonald, suspended pupil at the Hyde Park High school, filed a petition in mandamus in the circuit court, denying the rights of the board to expel him for failure to sign a pledge, renouncing his fraternity membership and asking that writ be issued compelling his reinstatement as a pupil in the school.

W. S. Utton has received a telegram from Maine in which he is informed that the initiative measure has been adopted by about 70,000.
