THEODORE A. BELL ADDRESSES EUGENE PEOPLE

The Eugene theatre was crowded last night with men and women to listen to the first big political address of the campaign in Eugene. Theodore A. Bell, of Napa, Cal., who was the chairman of the National Democratic convention at Denver, was the speaker. He held his audience and all who heard him, no matter of what political faith, were unanimous in the expression that it was one of the best political speeches ever delivered in Eugene.

L. M. Travis presided at the meeting and introduced Mr. Bell. In his introductory speech he said in part: "The greatest reward of attending the Democratic national convention which convened in Denver last July I found to be the opportunity of seeing and hearing the great man of militant Democracy there assembled. Wash state had her great orator and statesman—but among the states it seemed to me that the convention selected as more brilliant than the rest Nebraska, with her Duxis; Oklahoma, with her Senator Gore; Kentucky, with her Ollie James; New York, with her Judge Parker, and last but not least, California, with her favorite son, the speaker of this evening. It is with great pleasure that I introduce to you Hon. Theodore A. Bell, of California."

Mr. Bell's Address:

"During the last four years two elements have appeared in the Republican party, the reformers and the reactionaries. The reformers have not succeeded in obtaining control of their party machinery, and the corporation element is still under control of the Republican party in both the state and nation. The reactionaries demand a platform accepting Sherman as vice president. The reformers that have been advocated by Roosevelt are not given a place in the Chicago platform, but were rejected by a large and overwhelming vote. Taft is bound by his party platform and it is useless for him to attempt to amend this platform, in his letter of acceptance. The people are demanding the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people, an income tax, the physical valuation of the railroads, publicity of campaign contributions before election and revision of the tariff in the interests of the American consumers. Yet none of these measures can be accepted if Taft is elected president because the Chicago platform has omitted them all. Taft has openly declared his hostility to any law that will curtail the banks to secure their depositors against loss, while this is made one of the leading issues in the campaign through the declaration of the Democratic National platform. The people generally are favoring a bank guaranty law. They believe they have the same right to demand security from banks when they deposit their money as the banks have to demand security from depositors. The result of a bank guaranty law will be to keep all money of the country in active circulation. More than five hundred million dollars have been drawn from depositors in the past year and are being hoarded and hidden away because people fear to leave their money in the banks. A bank guaranty law will be a great preventative of panics, and even upon a bank will be avoided. The principal element in every panic is fear and when the people are no longer anxious about their deposits the unusual demands upon the bank's resources will not occur. A similar law is working very satisfactorily in Oklahoma and so popular has it become in that section of the country that the publican party of Kansas has found it necessary to declare for it."

Speaking of Mr. Roosevelt's attack upon Bryan, Mr. Bell said the president has very unwisely involved himself in this campaign. "Apparently without due consideration he has charged that the law-defying corporations are behind Mr. Bryan. He produces no proof and has undoubtedly put himself in a position where he will be unable to make good. His support of Taft is probably due more to vanity than anything else. It seems to have assumed a sort of sponsorship for Taft and practically appeals to the support of the people for Taft's election. He says that the election of a president at this time ought to be a non-partisan matter. If he were consistent he ought to add that the election of United States senators and congressmen ought also to be a non-partisan matter and he ought to supply the American people with the names of senators and representatives that have obstructed and prevented his reforms and demand that they be retired to private life. If this were done it would mean a Democratic congress, but Mr. Roosevelt is apparently willing to have a non-partisan president so long as he is a Republican, but not willing to have a non-partisan though Democratic congress. While appealing to non-partisan sentiment he is exhibiting the rankest sort of partisanship himself, and has seemed to forget the high position that he occupies in the nation which should keep him from mixing up in the political broils of the campaign. Two years ago Roosevelt sent Root into New York to brand Hearst as the assassin of McKinley, but program was that he should be ready to put the stamp of approval on the worst sort of Hearstism. Consistency does not seem to be any part of the president's jewelry at the present time. It is true he also disclaims against Foraker, and is rather unfortunate for Taft that the president is silent so long and did not see fit to interfere with the love feast between Taft and Foraker in Ohio before Foraker was exposed. Before Foraker was exposed he was good enough to assist Taft in being elected president of the United States, but after the public became familiar with what Roosevelt and Taft admit they knew months ago, Foraker is too vile a man to have further connection with Taft's campaign.

"After all, the people, and not the president, will decide who will occupy the White House during the next four years, and indications from every state point to the election of Bryan by a larger vote than that of Cleveland in 1902."

BOOST; DON'T KNOCK!

Eugene, Or., Sept. 21, '08. The worst of the recent panic is over; the empty din-ner pail will soon begin to fill up. Let us all talk positively and work for prosperity. With Bryan or Taft will be elected, and no matter which one the majority of the voters choose, times will continue to get better. It is a moral crime to predict a panic, for a panic means poverty, bankruptcy, suicide and wretched suffering. We have recently had enough of it.

Let us not lay it out any individual. A candidate for office who will predict that if the majority elect someone else there will be a panic, is not a patriot. A politician or newspaper who will endeavor to create a panic for political reasons should be punished as a scoundrel.

Let us all be patriots and work for a return of prosperity and it will make no difference whether Bryan or Taft is elected. Boost! Don't knock!

METHODISTS IN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Salem, Or., Sept. 22.—About 100 members of the Oregon conference of the Methodist Episcopal church reached Salem today, in readiness for the session of the conference which begins tomorrow morning. The evening session was held at the First Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. W. H. Sullock, pastor of the church, presided and introduced the speakers. On behalf of the city of Salem, Mayor George F. Rodgers delivered an address of welcome, assuring the visitors that Salem is pleased to greet and entertain them and extending them the freedom of the city. In his usual humorous vein, he related some of his personal experiences at religious gatherings and "jollied" the preachers until their faces lost all semblance of serious mood.

President Homan, of Willamette University, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the local churches and the University, and I. H. Van Winkle extended a welcome on behalf of the Y.M.C.A.

Rev. Clarence True Wilson, of Pacific University, expressed his appreciation of the hearty welcome in the course of his remarks he took occasion to refer to the progress of popular government in Oregon and expressed his satisfaction with the result of experiments in direct legislation. He mentioned particularly the adoption of laws for the regulation of liquor selling and for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. He said that he long had doubted the truth of the saying that the voice of the people is the voice of God, but since he had witnessed the operation of the initiative and referendum he had come to believe in it.

The conference will be organized by Bishop Hughes at 10 a. m. tomorrow and the work of the conference will be taken up immediately.

A force of men, including Homer Barka, Claude Buchanan, Clarence Bump, Claud Buchanan and Jos. Gorsp, left for McKenzie Bridge today in company with Forest Supervisor Seitz, where they will work on the government trail that is being built across the summit of the mountains leading south from there.

KILLED TWO BEARS WITH ONE SHOT

This is no fairy tale, but a true story from real life, and happened near Bohemia last week. G. L. Stidman, the noted bear hunter of that district, was out looking for a shot when he spied two bears playing in a sort of boxing match, and Mr. Stidman stood and watched the game for several minutes, when he concluded to take a shot, waiting, however, until they stood in line. His opportunity came and he let drive. They both scampered down the hill and the hunter thought for an instant that his shot had gone wild. But seeing one of them stagger and fall, he hastened down and found both lying dead, side by side, the bullet from his rifle having passed through the head of each.

STAGE RUNAWAY

Last Saturday the stage from the Venavine mine ran away and a dangerous accident was averted by a small margin. The stage horses became frightened on a long grade and began to plunge madly down the hill, which was very steep. In spite of the efforts of the driver and the brake they could not be stopped, and coming to a turn the horses ran off the road, overturning the rig and throwing the occupants to the ground with great force. Only two passengers happened to be riding that morning and fortunately neither was very badly injured, aside from numerous bruises. Miss Maggie Brunnd was returning to her home, and C. T. Long, of the Graham hotel, was returning from a few days' outing up on the Hard property. One of the horses was badly cut, but on the whole it was a very fortunate accident.
