

SOCIETY

A wedding of interest to society was that of Miss Jennie Wetherbee to Mr. William Dill, celebrated Tuesday evening, Nov. 24 at 8 o'clock, at the Central Presbyterian church. Rev. Mount performed the impressive ceremony and it was witnessed by about sixty guests who were ushered in by Mr. Dan Lewis and Mr. Giles Johnson, of Astoria. Before the ceremony Mr. McClain sang "It is Morn." To the strains of Grieg's Norwegian Bridal Procession, the bride, attended by Miss Conly Gilstrap as bridesmaid and escorted by a niece of the bride, Little Beatrice Wetherbee, entered from the west vestry.

Mr. Dill and Mr. Clarence Steele, as best man, entered from the east vestry, meeting the bride and her attendant at the altar, where they stood on a matrimonial rug which is a sign of good luck. The bride looked charming in a dainty white gown, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid wore a white empire gown with pink trimmings and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Little Beatrice Wetherbee made a pretty appearance in her pink silk and carried a lovely bouquet of pink rose buds.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The altar was banked with ferns and passion vines were draped over the chandeliers. After the ceremony the couple was driven to the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held for the twenty-five relatives and near friends who gathered to tender their congratulations. The decorations here were elaborate. The parlors were decorated in chrysanthemums, passion vines and potted ferns. The dining room was in pink and white and green vines. The presents were beautiful and numerous.

Mr. and Mrs. Dill left on the midnight train for a short trip, after which they will be at home to their many friends.

A most enjoyable series of card parties was given by Mrs. D. E. Moran at her home on West Eighth street. The home was artistically decorated in cut flowers and ferns. On Monday evening the first of the series was given. Honors of the card contest fell to Mrs. P. E. Snodgrass and Mrs. Frank Hampton. The hostess was assisted in serving an elaborate menu by Mrs. J. W. Kays, Miss Lulu Gilstrap, and Misses Libby and Louise Moran. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Linn, Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Willoughby, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wetherbee, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Goldsmith, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kays, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hampton, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hampton, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Tromp, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Page, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bean, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Griggs, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Snodgrass, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Harris, Dr. and Mrs. Titus, Mr.

and Mrs. Darwin Bristow, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Foran, Mr. and Mrs. George Foran, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Osburn, Mr. and Mrs. R. McMurphy, R. M. Day and Miss Beattie Day. On Tuesday evening the second of the series was given. The hostess was assisted by Miss Lola Howe, Miss Nell Murphy and Miss Eva Burton. Mrs. Robert Gross won the ladies' prize and Mr. C. C. Harris won the gentlemen's prize. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bryson, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keeney, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schwerling, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Matlock, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bean, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bellman, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gross, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Branatetter.

The Tuesday Evening Whist Club was charmingly entertained by Mrs. L. E. Travis at her cozy home, 477 Olive street. The hostess was assisted in serving a delicious luncheon by Mrs. Leon Edmundson. The first prize was awarded to Miss Lee, while Mr. Buoy received the second prize. The guests of the club were: Rev. and Mrs. P. K. Hammond, Mrs. Hughes and Miss Lee.

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. Keiser Pratt lavishly entertained a few of their friends at their home on South Willamette street. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Lee Travis, Mr. Carl Travis, Miss Minnie Munday, Fredericka Travis.

The Women's Patriotic League met at the home of Mrs. J. N. Frazier, 80 W. Fifth street. A very interesting program was read, especially interesting being a paper read by Mrs. W. L. Gordon. Mrs. Frazier was assisted in serving luncheon by Mrs. Charles Littlefield. Mrs. Hamilton was the guest of the league.

Tuesday afternoon the Methodist Aid Society held their business and social meeting at the Methodist parsonage. They did some valuable needlework for Mrs. Trimble. Light refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Saturday Afternoon Whist Club met at the cozy home of Mrs. J. Keiser Pratt. The parlors and dining room were beautiful in mistletoe and cut flowers and ferns. A delicious menu was served by the hostess, who was assisted by Miss Minnie Munday. The guests of the club were: Mrs. Guy Metcalf, Mrs. John Buoy, and Mrs. H. A. Tromp.

The Second Chapter of the Methodist League held its monthly meeting Wednesday evening at the Colvin home on Eleventh street. After the regular business meeting a social time was enjoyed by all. Delicious refreshments were served.

The Eugene High school showed their hospitality to the visiting Portland team by tendering them a reception and informal dance. All reported a jolly time.

On Tuesday afternoon, at her cozy rooms in Working Flat, Mrs. Hardy Howard entertained in honor of her sister, Mrs. J. L. Hembree, of Portland. The afternoon was socially spent in needlework, after which the tained quite a number of their friends at the cozy home on Lawrence street, last Thursday evening. It was one of great pleasure to all present. The time passed quickly in the enjoyment of games and refreshments, and was a real thanksgiving party on Thanksgiving night.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Hon. C. W. Washburn, at Junction City, Wednesday evening. The contracting parties were Mrs. Emma Washburn Butler and W. W. Crawford. Rev. T. H. Duns was the officiating clergyman who tied the nuptial knot. Only immediate relatives were present. Mrs. Butler, nee Washburn, was born and raised in the old homestead and enjoys a wide circle of friends. She is a lady of real worth and many accomplishments. Mr. Crawford's home is in Albany, although he is well known here. He is a successful business man and enjoys the reputation of being upright and honorable in all his dealings. He has a wide circle of friends in Linn county and we can assure them that he has secured one of the very best of Lane county's charming daughters. —Times.

FADS AND FASHIONS

(Guard Special Service.) New York, Nov. 28.—It sounds paradoxical, but is nevertheless true, that with the present style of fashion it is both easy and difficult for a woman to dress well and becomingly. There was never a time when frocks were made and well worn had greater possibilities of grace and beauty than now, but there never was a time when the woman of ordinary figure and moderate income had to use greater care in the planning and buying of her wardrobe than now. The middle ground between the ultra new and that which is out of style furnishes the only safe walking, and one should try to plan a frock with details which stamp it as unquestionably of this year's vintage, but without extravagance of any sort. That should be the guiding idea especially of those women who hostess served a most delicious luncheon, assisted by Mrs. J. L. Hembree and Mrs. K. Smith. Those present were: Mrs. L. E. Hembree (Portland), Mrs. E. K. Wilson (Dixon, Cal.), Miss Jule Severson (Mapleton, Minn.), Miss Mabel Williams (Santa Barbara, Cal.), Mrs. Carl Thompson (Seattle), Mrs. O. A. Campbell, Mrs. Win. J. Bushnell, Miss Leone Jenkins, Mrs. R. H. Shacklett, Mrs. G. L. Gilbert, Mrs. Katherine Smith, Mrs. W. W. McCornack, Mrs. Gilbert Tyson, Miss Blanche Whittaker, Prof. C. R. Thompson (Spokane).

have not the means to be extravagant and yet wish to appear well dressed on all occasions. For women with moderate means it will also be wise not to be too lavish in providing for their wardrobe, as there is every probability of radical changes of style in the near future, so radical changes, that the altering of garments to suit the new style could not be thought of.

Never before has there been so much variety and originality in the tailored street costume as there is now. There is still a general similarity of line which offers its limitations, but within these limitations there is room for individuality. This does not mean that all tailor made have lost that severe simplicity which probably tended to make them so suitable for all around wear. The lines of these costumes have changed and their materials have become more supple and beautiful than in former years, but in most cases they have retained their simplicity of finish.

But there are also many tailored models far less severe, relieved by all kinds of coquettish details that, however, do not depart so far from the general character of the costume as to seem incongruous. It is owing to this latitude that one tailored frock cannot be made to serve as many purposes as it once did. The well dressed woman now needs at least two street suits, where one would have carried her through the season a year or two ago.

The variety and beauty displayed in the ready made blouses this fall is one of the noticeable features of the season's modes. Pretty white blouses have always been plentiful since the separate blouse first entered the field, but it on wanted a chic

The best of the models are expensive, daintily made of fine materials and beautifully embroidered in silks or soutache, but even at the prices charged these wares are less expensive than they would be if made to order by any dressmaker capable of designing and carrying out such work. Net is perhaps the favorite material for these blouses, though chiffon, mousseline de soie, messaline, Liberty, crepe, silk voile and various other rich materials are used. NEW SKIRT MODEL. NOT for a generation have there been such artistic fashions as at the present time, and with the revival of the classic styles, modified to suit present day needs, the boundary line of fashion grows more and more vague. Among the many different versions of the directive and empire effect one is sure to find a becoming style. The model shown is an especially good one to complete a tailored suit, as

This twenty-seven skirt is with seven sizes— from 22 to 32 inches waist measure. To copy it for the average person 100 yards of material 27 inches wide or 65 yards 44 inches wide are required.

Brussels mesh. Fine soutache braiding, then combined with embroidery in silks is the favorite trimming, a monotone coloring being preserved and frequently almost the entire surface of the blouse will be covered with such embroidery, with folds, piping, cords or bands of silk or satin for finish.

The sleeves used in the smartest of these blouses are mostly long, light, and transparent, of net or chiffon, tucked or slightly fluted. In many cases there are also over and under sleeves. The oversleeve idea affords much latitude for originality, and incidentally it helps to disguise an ugly and ungraceful arm and gives a little more weight and appropriateness for wintry days. The oversleeve, however, must not interfere with the desired effect of length and slenderness in the arm. It is almost as close fitting as the tight and long undersleeves, and if draped at all has folds of the closest and most clinging sort.

Some handsome blouses of fine net have long, tight undersleeves of pin tucked net with the tucks running around the arm, and the oversleeve is of the same net tucked at the same intervals but with the tucks running vertically. This, in the transparent material, gives the effect of a checked material or of a net tucked in little blocks or squares. The lower part of the gullepe is arranged in a similar fashion. The sleeves are almost invariably in the color of the blouse, no matter whether the gullepe and the collar are white or dark.

A new muff has made its appearance in the fashionable shops this year that is bound to take with persons who can afford an extra expense for such trappings. It is made in the fashionable rug style, the skins sewed together flat, with tails, paws and heads at the ends and a pocket for the hands on the inside. The rug simply throws over without being caught at the sides and the pocket for the hands is of fur like the outside. The rug is worn thrown over this pocket or thrown under it. This brings equal wear on the upper and under side of the skins as well as varying the style of the muff. Similar muffs that are not reversible, have the pocket for the hands made of satin or shirred chiffon.

A new kind of muff intended to be used at formal indoor functions has been put on the market this season. It is not made of fur, but of white or pastel colored marabout and is not intended to give warmth. It is merely to give an effective touch to the costume. In it, as in most other muffs, there is a wide pocket of satin, which holds the purse, the card case and the handkerchief. It is not very large, this muff, and it is so soft and fluffy that it goes charmingly with a long sweeping indoor frock of some brilliant color.

Among the novelties of the season is the "Spring Collar," a smart strip of fur through which runs a thin, flexible rib of steel, something like the clasps which bicycle riders use to fasten their trousers around the ankles. This new fur collar needs no snap or other fastening, for it springs into the right snugness around the throat without any fastening. When the wearer is in a warm room the collar may be clasped around the arm, with less danger of losing it than when, as heretofore, it was held in the hand or on the lap. Buttons, as a trimming accessory, are still extremely popular and the latest importations from Paris in-

STANLEY KETCHEL REGAINS THE TITLE

Arena, San Francisco, Nov. 26.—Stanley Ketchel, of Grand Rapids, Mich., regaining the middleweight championship of the world today and reversed his defeat of last September, by sending Billy Papke, the Illinois thunderbolt, crashing to the floor before a well-directed left swing that caught his opponent flush upon the chin. The end came in the 11th round. Prior to this Ketchel had demonstrated clearly that he was master of his opponent in any kind of fighting. Round by round, Ketchel chose his opportunities, and when opportunity offered, planted the right to head or body, generally escaping without a damaging return. Belying his appearance and forcing the fight throughout every minute, Ketchel was stronger up to the moment of the knockout blow than was his opponent. Once during an aggressive moment they fell in the ringside and toppled through the ropes, wrapped in a close embrace.

MORE ACTIVITY AT BLUE RIVER MINES THAN FOR SOME TIME

W. G. Nesmith, who has been at the Treasure mine in the Blue River district since the first of June, being employed as watchman at the property, came down from the mines last night and went to Salem on business. He stated to a reporter this morning that there was nothing doing at the Treasure, the plant remaining idle, but work has been resumed at the Lucky Boy and quite a force of men is employed already. It is expected to operate the mine and the 40-stamp mill to their full capacity in the near future.

A new mill is being put in at the Cindella mine, which is owned by Brownville and Halsey parties. The mill is of a new pattern and has four or five stamps. Mr. Nesmith states that there is eight inches of snow on the summit of the mountains. The weather has been good all fall. When there is a fog in the valley the sun shines brightly there and often it is quite warm there while in the valley the fog causes the atmosphere to be very chilly.

Port au Prince, Nov. 27.—General Leconte, reported killed by revolutionists at Jeremie a few days ago, arrived here today. He escaped in a rowboat with four officers and two sailors and was at sea three days without provisions, but finally landed at Petit Goave. The general declares that the report that three men were put to death on his orders at Jeremie is unfounded.

ENDORSES SMELTER FOR GOLD CREEK

Albany, Or., Nov. 26.—The Albany Commercial Club last evening enthusiastically endorsed the proposition of the Wilson-Gadsden Company of Portland, to erect a big smelter in the gold creek mining district in the North Santiam country. The matter has been presented to the club by Paul T. Gadsden, of Portland, and a committee appointed to investigate the matter submitted a report of strong endorsement last evening, which was adopted.

MINERS PAY HIGH TRIBUTE TO DEAD PRIEST

Shenandoah, Nov. 27.—The most remarkable tribute to a priest was paid today at the funeral of Rev. H. F. O'Reilly, rector of the Roman Catholic Church of the Annunciation at this place for forty years. Twenty-five colliers, employing more than 16,000 men and boys, in Shenandoah and Mahoney valleys, shut down to enable the workers to pay their respects to the dead priest. The public schools at this place, at Mahoney and surrounding communities closed and all business in Shenandoah was suspended. More than two hundred priests attended the services, following which the body was taken to Philadelphia, accompanied by fifteen hundred mourners in a special train. Father O'Reilly, during the Molly McGuire crusade, and in numerous coal strikes wielded a great influence for peace and law and order.

CAFE MANAGER MURDERED NEAR HOME IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Nov. 27.—Hugh Mahon, manager of the American Cafe, was found dead, murdered in the front yard of the residence next door to his own home this morning. His overcoat was turned over his head, hiding his face, which was battered to a pulp with a slungshot, and his skull was fractured. The third finger of his left hand was nearly torn off and a $1000 diamond wreathed from it. A watch valued at $200 was missing and his pockets were turned inside out, and it is believed that several hundred dollars in cash was taken from his pocket. The police believe yegzenn did the job.

STEINHEIL CASE STIRS CAPITAL OF FRENCH REPUBLIC

Paris, Nov. 27.—The case of Mme. Teinheil, arrested yesterday after a day of sensational developments in the matter of the murder of her husband and stepmother, Madame Jupy, last May, was taken out of the hands of M. Leydet, the examining magistrate, who has been in charge of the investigation, and turned over to Magistrate Andreu.

Mme. Steinheil is under arrest on the charge of abetting the murder of her stepmother. Experts and physicians declare the woman is suffering from hysteria peculiar to a certain class of neurosathenics which manifests itself in the inventions of the wildest accusations. There is in full blast today a campaign by the Nationalists and anti-Semite press in an effort to prove the authorities have had an interest in smothering the truth concerning these murders.

Following a confession yesterday by Mme. Steinheil that her artist husband and Mme. Jupy, her mother, had been murdered by a man named Wolf, the police arrested the latter and also took her into custody. Steinheil and Mme. Jupy were found murdered May 31. The woman had been bound and gagged by the murderers.

Paris is now wrought up over the fact that the mystery which has apparently baffled the police is not much of a mystery after all, and that the police have not been allowed to investigate the crime. It is expected that disclosures, hourly anticipated, will connect some of the highest officials of the republic with the most brutal crime of the year in the French capital. Mme. Steinheil's confession, a portion of which is already public, hints at startling revelations soon to be made in connection with the murder.
