The regular annual meeeting of members of the Presbyterian church of Florence was held Tuesday afternoon. Not much outside of routine business was transacted. The yearly reports of the Sunday school, and Christian Endeavor and Ladies' Aid societies and the church treasurer were presented and approved. All outgoing officers were re-elected for another term. At the close of the meeting Rev. L. R. Bond announced that he had written to the church board some time ago asking to be relieved from the work as pastor of this church.

Ira Bray, of Heceta precinct, was taken before Justice Severy last Saturday on the charge of making threats against M. F. Hogan, who was the complaining witness. It seems the men had some difficulty a few days previously which led to blows in which both men were somewhat marked. It was at that time threats were alleged to have been made. After hearing the testimony and considering it for awhile, Judge Severy gave the defendant some good advice and discharged him.—Florence West.

TWO YOUNG HOBOS PLAYED HIGHWAYMAN ROLE IN EUGENE LAST NIGHT

(From Thursday's Daily Guard.)

Two young desperadoes who held up five men in Eugene last night and who entered Dr. O. E. Smith's residence Monday afternoon and stole a number of articles, including a Winchester rifle, were captured in a vacant farmhouse about two miles northwest of Eugene this forenoon shortly after 10:30 o'clock and are now safely lodged in the county jail awaiting their just deserts at the hands of Judge Harris, of the circuit court.

The two thugs, who gave their names as Harry McClure and Elmer Yerger, and their ages as 18 and 19 years respectively, say they came here from the East recently and have been in Eugene and vicinity for the past week. After their capture they admitted robbing the Smith residence and of being guilty of last night's hold-ups. In their possession were the rifle stolen from Dr. Smith, also his pocket barometer, which he valued highly, besides a gold watch belonging to Burke Williams, one of their hold-up victims, and numerous other articles which they had stolen during the last few days. They used this rifle in heir hold-up operations. When asked by the officers why they did not take the shotgun which they left in Dr. Smith's basement, they replied that it was too heavy to carry around. They evidently took the rifle with the intention of using it in their hold-up work. No pistols were found on their persons. From that, it is evident that they only recently decided to enter upon a Jesse James career.

Found Their Trail

After the hold-ups were reported to the police last night, they spent the remainder of the night looking for the thugs, but could find no clew that would lead to their apprehension. This morning about 7:15 o'clock R. Gibson, who works for Lucas, the Eighth and Blair street butcher, telephoned Chief of Police Farrington that two men acting suspiciously and tallying with the meagre description given of the thugs, came to the shop a minute before that time and and bought some meat, and were seen going out Blair street. Chief Farrington, in company with Deputy Sheriff Hammond, left immediately for that part of the city, but lost track of the men out at the old Blair place. Here they were joined by Deputy Sheriff Geo. Croner, Chas. W. Evans, Lloyd Bonney and Gibson. All were heavily armed, Croner having a Winchester rifle and the others carrying revolvers. After scouring the country in that vicinity for a few minutes they were informed by a farmer that two young men answering the description and carrying a rifle were seen going out toward the Bethel school house, which lies about two miles from Eugene on the Irving road. Other farmers told the posse that the men had been in the vacant house on the old Metzer farm across from the school house all day yesterday and the day before. The posse then made its way toward this house, searching all of the barns in the neighborhood on the way out.

Quietly Surrendered

The members of the posse, upon reaching the Metzer place, approached the house from the rear. As they neared the house a noise was heard inside and Evans saw one of the men through a window. The posse spread out and suddenly closed in upon the house, each door and window being covered by a man. Croner ordered the men to come out and they immediately complied with the command, emerging at the back door. As soon as they saw the armed men outside they threw up their hands and quietly submitted to the placing of handcuffs on their wrists. They were brought to the city and placed in the county jail. A large crowd of men and boys, hearing of the capture of the holdup- artists, were waiting at the jail to get a glimpse of the embryo Jesse Jameses at close range. They are ordinary looking boys. From the fact that they had no revolvers it appears that they were new to the game of hold-up and burglary.

Admitted Their Guilt

To the officers after the arrest was made McClure and Yerger admitted that they committed the hold-ups last night and were the men who entered Dr. Smith's residence Monday afternoon. They were disgusted at the small amount of money they secured from their victims last night, saying they only got a little over a dollar from Cecil Henderson, who says he lost $4, and only 35 cents from Burke Williams. They declare they went to bed after robbinig Henderson, which was about 9:30 o'clock, an ddeny any knowledge of the attempt to rob Bert Vincent about 11:30 o'clock.

Would Have Killed

When the posse entered the farm house where the youths were captured they found Dr. Smith's rifle cocked and ready for use. The thugs declared that if there had only been two men in the posse they would have killed them. Charles Evans covered one of them who started out of a door in the house and was told ofterward that had Evans not had the drop on him he would have shot.

Articles Identified

Dr. Smith went to the sheriff's office after the arrest of the men and identified his rifle and other articles stolen from his residence. McClure and Yerger had inlaid the stock of the rifle in several places with imitation of pearl. Dr. Smith remarked that he was much obliged to them for the work, as it was done quite neatly. Two small valises were found among the effects of the young desperadoes. One which was stolen from the Smith residence contained nothing but foodstuffs, while the other contained the remainder of the articles stolen from Dr. Smith and numerous other articles which they doubtless stole at different places. Among them were Burke Williams' gold watch, which he identified as the one stolen last night. A shot had been fired from the rifle, accidentally, say the youths, after one of the hold-ups last night. This was the report heard by Chief of Police Farrington near his residence.

Last Night's Hold-Ups.

According to the reports to the police, McClure and Yerger held up five men, but they declare they only stopped four. Burke Williams, son of C. S. Williams, who is employed in the Merchants' Bank, was on his way out Hilyard street, near East Ninth, shortly after 8 o'clock, when he was stopped by two men with a rifle and ordered to throw up his hands, which he did in quick order. They then relieved him of his watch and 35 cents in money, besides a fountain pen. Williams then ran down town and informed the police.

A little before 7 o'clock William Nichols, who is employed at Rude & Brauner's East Thirteenth street meat market, was stopped by the thugs. He held up his hands, but as he had nothing of value in his pockets he was told to get out of sight as quickly as possible. This occurred on East Thirteenth street, near the market.

Jesse Anderson was help up near the corner of East Fourteenth and Oak streets. The robbers found nothing in his pockets, either, and let him off. Shortly afterward the report of a gun was heard. This was when the rifle was accidentally discharged and was what aroused Chief of Police FGarrington.

Cecil Henderson, one of the city mail carriers, was the last victim, according to the robbers' story. He was held up near his home at the corner of West Ninth and Lawrence streets. He says he gave up $4 in cash, but the robbers say they only got $1.35 from him. After that, they say, they went to bed in the Yates lodging house on East Seventh street and deny any knowledge of Bert Vincent's hold-up.

Mr. Vincent, who is employed in the Marx barber shop, says he was going to his home on Hilyard street, near East Ninth, having ridden from down town on a street car, getting off on Eleventh street at Hilyard. After crossing the mill-race bridge two men sprang at him from the shadow of the big hedge in front of C. Hanna's residence. He was struck on the head with a club, but was not injured, his stiff hat preventing injury. Having heard of the hold-ups earlier in the evening, Bert was prepared and grasped one of the thugs by the wrist. Before the other one could reach him he jerked away from his assailant and ran home. He then reported the circumstance to the police.

May Be Two Bands

The theory is advanced today that the hold-ups of last night were committed by two bands of criminals. Three men are supposed to have attempted to rob one or two men, or to be implicated in one of two of the hold-ups last night. The street car men also report that there is a bunch of men in the little house on the Walker hop farm east of town, who have acted ver ysuspiciously.

Farmers also have reported that they fear there is a band of thugs there who are living off the country. The house is inhabited by tramps, who are seen to go back and forth, and the police will again be on the lookout tonight for more trouble.

Chief of Police Farrington, Deputy Sheriff Hammond and Deputy Sheriff Croner drove to the old Walker house this afternoon but found no hobos there. They then drove to the house where McClure and Yerger were caught to further search the building in hopes of finding other articles that may have been stolen. They found nothing but the masks worn last night by the holdup artists.

ROBBERS ARE ONLY BOYS OF FEW YEARS

Talking the slang of the city, taking more pride in their exploits than the heroes of yellow-backed novels, Elmer Yerger and Harry McClure, the two boys who held up a number of people last night, after robbing the residence of Dr. O. E. Smith, are enjoying themselves like monkeys in the city jail, apparently caring not whether they go to the penitentiary or are hanged.

McClure, the eighteen-year-old boy, not over five feet four, impulsively said, "Aw, they can't kill me more than once, I guess, and we'll get a good long rest, and then get out and have another time."

Both are plainly products of the city criminal class—moral perversions. McClure appears much like a monkey. His forehead is rather high, but his head slopes downward toward the back. It is in the features that the resemblance is noted, however. His nose is much like that of a negro, though the hair, complexion and eyes are light. He is an acrobat and turned backward somersaults on top of the iron cage in the jail, as one of his hold-up victims looked at him through the bars.

Elmer Yerger is a much better specimen of humanity. On his face is apparent an intelligence, which cannot be denied. His actions are more simple and he seems far more shrewd, for he would say less to the point than his companion. His hair curls in a fashion that many a country swain would envy, and his complexion is clear and fresh. He, too is active, but he is two inches taller than his partner. When asked where they had come from, both the boys nodded and said, "Back East."

"Chicago", was asked. "Further than that," McClure contemptously answered.

"New York?" was again asked. "Still farther," was the only reply.

Police Easy.

"Aw, but these Eugene police are easy," McClure exclaimed in classic slang. "Hain't never seen anybody so easy. Do you know, we passed the whole squad by the Bell theatre last evening, had our gun and satchel in plain sight, and they hardly looked at us."

Officer Croner asked, "Been turning any other tricks, boys?"

"That's all right," Yerger broke in, "but we can give lessons to you police all right. Great lot of Pinkertons they be."

Sid Smith, the genial cigar store man who lost a gun, a razor and a lot of apparel, then asked:

"How did you come to leave my shot gun? It was worth a hundred dollars."

The boys both sank to the floor and then ran to the other side of the house in disgust. In explanation they told how everybody they had held up had been nearly broke. "Got two dollars from one man, and a ten dollar cheap watch."

They then told that they had slept in Yates' lodging house last night, had eaten breakfast at the Eugene restaurant, and had gone to the house on the Irving road, buying some meat on the way.

Yerger said, "We have been in town four weeks, only a couple of days at the old house. Piled wood part of the time. Got tired and went after the dough. We would have fought when all those officers surrounded us this morning, but we only had three cartirdges in for the 25-20." The clothes that the boys wore were almost altogether stolen from town people.

As they talked and ran around like children, they gradually let out more and more of their life story. They said they had been on the coast for five years, wandering wherever they could, living off of the country. As their ages are 18 or 19 they must have started when they were thirteen and fourteen. In every action and in every word they betray their criminal training, and however guilty, most certainly deserve all the sympathy that can be given. Boys who have not learned any better than they have with all their acuteness of the things of the underworld, are made just what they are by the neglect of their elders, and in nowise can be blamed for their careers.

To watch their utter fearlessness for the future, to hear their statements that they will turn more tricks when they serve their terms, however, is to insure the opinion that they are irredeemable from their manner of life.

They watch the papers like hawks for their press notices, and take far as much pleasure in the comments, as an actress does in the criticisms of a newspaper or a mazaine.

DELICIOUS BANANA CREAM

This recipe is highly recommended by one of our correspondents; try it for desert tomorrow.

Peel five large bananas, rub smooth with five teaspoons of sugar. Add one teacup sweet cream beaten to a stiff froth, and then add one 10c package of Lemon Jell-O dissolved in 1½ teacups boiling water. Pour into mold and when cold garnish with candied cherries. Serve with whipped cream, or as a good pudding sauce. Jell-O is sold by all grocers at 10c per package.

RANKIN MUSIC STORE ROBBERS ARE CAUGHT

The two men who entered Savage & Lawrence's music store, formerly Rankin's, a few nights ago and stole a number of musical instruments, have been caught at Starbuck, Wash. and an officer will leave here tonight or tomorrow for Olympia, where requisition papers for the men will be secured, and they will be brought back.

It will be remembered that a small panel in a side door of the store was broken out a few evenigns ago and a very small man or a boy entered the place and carried away the instruments. Deputy Sheriff Hammond and Chief of Police Farrington searched the city for several days for the criminals but failed to locate them here. Chief Farrington found that the cleaver with which the door panel was knocked out had been stolen from a restaurant on West Eighth street, but further than that, no trace of the thieves could be found here. Deputy Sheriff Hommond then communicated with the chief of police in the principal cities of the Northwest and succeeded in locating the goods in the O. R. & N. express office at Portland. They were shipped there under the name of Jackson. They were then shipped from Portland to Spokane under the name of McKay, and Deputy Hammond wired to the officers there to watch out for anyone who would call for them. The express agent at Spokane received a telegram from Starbuck, Wash., to ship the goods to that place. The officers allowed them to be shipped and waited at the express office at Starbuck, arresting the men as they called for the goods. They gave their names as Joseph Brown and F. G. Lawrence. A telegram to Deputy Hammond, apprising him of their capture was received this morning.

The thieves were shrewd and showed that they were experienced in their line of business. They boxed the instruments up and took them to the Eugene depot at midnight on the night of the burglary and shipped them to Portland by express, Henry Kissinger, the night messenger, making out the papers. This was not learned, however, until the goods were located in Portland.

About $400 worth of goods were stolen. In the lot there were a number of mandolins, guitars, violins, talking machines and two cornets.

CHRIS MARX, SR., HAS PASSED BEYOND

Christian Marx, Sr., died at his home at the corner of East Ninth and Pearl streets in Eugene last night at 9:40 o'clock, after quite a long illness of arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arterial walls. He was taken to a sanatarium in Portland only a short time ago in hopes that the treatment there would benefit him, but he continued to grow worse and was brought home only two or three days ago. He continued to decline until death came.

Decedent was born on Nov. 1, 1851, at Newark, N. J. He came west to California when 18 years of age and lived for a time at Yreka. He came to Portland in 1870 and was married on May 10, 1875 to Miss Caroline Hochisen. They came to Eugene in February, 1879. Besides his wife, he leaves three sons, George, Chris, Jr., and Ralph, a brother Martin Marx, at Etna Mills, Cal., and a brother, August Marx at Newark, N. J. There is another brother, George Marx, whose whereabouts are at present unknown.

Chris Marx was a man of genial disposition and was well liked by all who knew him. He was engaged in the barber business here for years, selling out only a year or two ago to his son, George, and retiring on account of poor health. He was a member of the Elks lodge of this city and always took an active part in its affairs. The funeral services will be conducted by the Elks Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in their hall. Friends are invited to attend. The remains will be taken to Portland for cremation.

HANDS AND FEET ITCHED 12 YEARS

Suffered Terribly from Eczema which Made Hands and Feet Swell, Peel and Get Raw—Arms Affected, Too—Gave Up Hope of Cure.

USED CUTICURA AND WAS QUICKLY CURED

"I suffered from eczema on my hands, arms and feet for about twelve years, my hands and feet would swell, sweat and itch, then would become callous and get very dry, then peel off and get raw. I tried most every kind of salve and ointment without success, only get temporary relief. As soon as I would leave off using them I would be as bad as ever. I tried several doctors, took arsenic for two years and at last gave up thinking there was a cure for eczema. A friend of mine insisted on my trying the Cuticura Remedies but, supposing they were the same as other 'cures' I had tried, I did not give them a trial until I got so bad that I had to do something. I secured a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and by the time they were used I could see a vast improvement and my hands and feet were healed up in no time. I used several bottles of Cuticura Resolvent. This was over a year ago and have had no trouble since. I think I am entirely cured. Charles T. Bauer, R.F.D. 65, Volant, Pa., Mar. 11, 1908."

It seemed to J. A. Stone, a civil war veteran, of Kemp, Tex., that a plot existed between a desperate lung trouble and the grave to cause his death. "I contracted a stubborn cold," he writes, "that developed a cough that stuck to me, in spite of all remedies, for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds.
