PORTLAND MARKET REPORT

Portland, April 29.—The strength of the Coast potato market is daily becoming more evident. There is a demand in the south for all the spuds the growers of this state can spare, and at prices materially better than prevailed a month ago. At the same time the surplus in Oregon has been so reduced that it is relatively small, and on the whole the trade here is little if any more than enough left for the actual wants of the Northwest between now and the new crop season.

The aggregate of stocks now in the hands of growers is altogether a matter of conjecture, but there is no question that it is relatively small, and on the whole the trade here is little if any more than enough left for the actual wants of the Northwest between now and the new crop season.

Local buyers are operating in a limited way, buying chiefly for the southern markets, and but for the fact that some of the Oregon growers are inclined to be bullish on the prospect for the future the surplus in this state—if there really is a surplus—would disappear within a few days. Latest reports indicate that slightly better than $1.50 has been paid producers this week for fancy stock, but the available lots are generally small and scattered, and some of the growers are still disposed to hold. The result is slow trade.

In the south home products are for the most part out of the way, and a further favorable market factor is that the early crop in California this year will be at least two weeks later than usual, which will naturally make a demand for Oregon at a time of year when usually there is little call for the Northern product.

Contracting Wool
 The wool season is opening at strong prices in all parts of the West. In Montana crops are being bought on the sheep's back whenever obtainable at 21 to 22 cents, but it is authoritatively stated that nothing above 22 cents has been received by the growers since 23 cents was realized a few weeks ago for one exceptionally fine clip. It is said that the test wools are about all bought in the state, and the growers are inclined to part with the remaining clips except at full prices.

Of the new Utah wool fully 95 per cent has already been sold on contract. In Wyoming very choice wools are being held by growers in spite of recent bids of 21 cents, but this action by the sheepmen of that state occasions no surprise, for they are usually willing to take a chance on the future market, as well as are the dealers. Cold weather is delaying shearing in the state, Western Idaho wools, which are generally excellent, are being contracted for at 29 cents.

Wheat Market
 The change yesterday for the better in the Eastern wheat market, like the decline of last week, had little or no effect on the local market. Prices here, because of the strong demand and evident shortage, are on an exceedingly firm basis and are likely to part with the remaining clips except at full prices.

Barley maintains its former strength, while oats sell fairly well at unchanged quotations.

Decline in Butter
 The decline in the city butter market to 27 cents was acceptable to some of the creameries, but others were still short of the necessary supply. Outside creamery was weak on Front street, fresh stock being offered as low as 24 1/2 cents.

There were no receipts of cheese and the market was strong at last prices. Eggs were firm on the street, with most sales reported at 25 cents. Some of the larger operators are withdrawing from the market, considering the price too high for this time of the year. The poultry market showed more of a dragging tendency, and 16 1/2 cents was quoted as top on hens.

Local Hops in California
 A California letter tells there are 9250 bales of 1908 hops still in the hands of growers in that state. There is some pressure to sell Sonoma, and sales have recently been made at 7 1/2 to 7 3/4 cents. One year contracts at 9 cents have been made and 150 tons and one 11 have been paid for three years.

Brief Notes of Wholesale Trade
 Eastern package coffees are down 1 1/2 per hundred pounds because of the lower freight rate with the opening of lake navigation.

Some interests are quoting bananas 1/2 lower.

Rus' salmon in the Willamette continues good. Price the same owing to the liberal demand from the outside.

Supplies of rhubarb are too plentiful, and some ordinary stock is selling down to 1c a pound, while some cannot be sold at any price.

Strawberries are lower, with better supplies from Florida.

Old onions are getting very scarce.

Dressed meats remain with high prices in effect. Demand liberal for both veal and hogs at top figures.

PORTLAND STOCK MARKET

Portland Union Stockyards, April 28.—Just a sufficient number of cattle came into the yards today to allow the trade to know to a certainty that this specie of animal was not entirely extinct in the state of Oregon. Nevertheless the trade is much more disappointed over the showing of arrivals because a fair run of select quality might bring forth a higher price range. The expected importation of cattle from Montana has not yet materialized, and some of the sellers as well as the shippers consider the report of a big bunch coming forward in this direction as nothing but a bluff of buyers who by this means want to scare Oregon holders into letting go of what few marketable cattle they still retain.

Hogs and Sheep Holding
 Prices in both the hog and sheep market are considered very good at this time. Hogs, especially, because of the rather poor showing in the volume, are firmer, with former values in effect. The best that came brought $7.

Run of sheep in the yards was somewhat better and indications point to increasing arrivals as the shearing progresses. The expected California sheep killers were unable to successfully use this as a club to hit quotations.

The following is the general range of values on stock ruling in the yards for late shipments:

Hogs—Best east of mountains, $1.50; good, $1.25; blockers, $1 to $1.25; stockers, $1.50 to $1.00.
 Cattle—Best steers, weighing 1200 pounds or over, $5.50; medium steers, $5.25; poor steers, $3.00 to $3.15; best

HONOR REMAINS OF MAN WHO LAID OUT THE CAPITAL CITY

the growth of the "Federal city," now called Washington. "A revered name," wrote another Frenchman, Chastell, when visiting in 1782 at another earlier town of the same name in Connecticut: "a revered name," whose memory will undoubtedly last longer than the very city called upon to perpetuate it."

As has been the case with innumerable celebrities in all ages and all countries, the services of Major L'Enfant were poorly appreciated and still more poorly recompensed during his lifetime. The Government records show that he never received all that was promised him for his services in laying out the seat for the Federal government, though the amount in question was but $3,000.

Born in France in 1755, L'Enfant came to America with Lafayette and entered the Continental army as an engineer in 1777. He was made a captain in February, 1778, and the following year he was severely wounded at the siege of Savannah. Through the remainder of the war he served under the immediate command of Washington, and in 1783 he was made a major. He was one of the founders of the Society of the Cincinnati and designed the "order" or jewel of that organization.

In March, 1791, he was commissioned by the secretary to proceed to what is now the District of Columbia and lay out the site for the capitol. Standing on a wooded hill on the Carroll farm, L'Enfant chose the site for the capitol building. He completed the contract with the Brent quarry on Aquia creek for supplying the stone of which the original part of the capitol is built. It was L'Enfant, too, who selected the site of the President's home. He also directed the clearing of the land and the laying of the foundations for the capitol and White House.

L'Enfant did not boss the construction of the buildings, however, for on February 27, 1792, he was dismissed from the service of the government because he refused to act under the authority of the commissioners, Thomas Johnston, David Stuart and Daniel Carroll. Then arose a dispute as to the compensation L'Enfant should receive. The government paid him about $1200, and in settlement of the remainder made him an offer of an additional sum in cash and a lot on what is now Pennsylvania avenue. This offer L'Enfant declined to accept, and the claim was sent to congress, which body finally threw it out. Later the matter was compromised.

In 1812 L'Enfant was appointed professor of engineering at the West Point academy, but he declined the position. His closing years were spent quietly on his estate in Prince George's county, Maryland, where he died June 14, 1825.

DIVIDED THEIR CHILDREN LIKE FLOCK OF SHEEP

A resident of the lower Siuslaw valley, in the city today, tells of the separation of a man and his wife at Mapleton a few days ago. They had lived together a good many years and have nine or ten children, the oldest of whom is not yet grown. Something was wrong in their household, though, and they agreed to disagree. The separation took place one day last week. They divided the children equally between them, like so many sheep, and then went their own way, the woman coming out to Marcola with her part of the family, and the husband staying at Mapleton with his.

EAGLES WILL BUILD ON THEIR WILLAMETTE STREET PROPERTY

At a meeting of Eugene aerle, fraternal order of Eagles, last night, the matter of erecting a building was finally decided upon, it being the decision that a two-story brick block should be erected on the aerle's lot on Willamette street near Fifth and immediately adjoining L. N. Roney's new block, now under construction. The building will have a frontage of forty feet and will probably extend back to the alley or nearly so.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES. A Woman Finds all Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Eugene women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's the proof of it in a Eugene woman's words:

Mrs. L. E. Abbott, 484 Pearl St., Eugene, Ore., says: "Last winter I was taken down with a bad spell of kidney complaint and my back became so weak and lame that I could hardly move. I took various remedies but did not derive any benefit. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by a friend and my husband procured a box at De Lano's drug store. They proved to be all and more than is claimed for them. As I used them, the pains and weakness left me and my kidneys were strengthened. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills the best remedy of its kind on the market."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
