Unless It's a GOOD Store It Will NOT Pay To Advertise It!

Unless you know a person—unless that person comes into your life in some way—you are not greatly concerned about whether he is good or bad, desirable or objectionable. It's so with a store. The people who never visit it care nothing about it one way or the other. It doesn't exist—for them. But when they are persuaded to patronize it—when they come to turn the spotlight of their attention on it—when it comes to have a part in their lives, as some stores must have in all lives—then it's different; then it does matter whether it thrives to win confidence; it does matter whether or not its price concessions are genuine, dependable.

If it meets all tests that a good store must stand when it is advertised—when it thus incites the critical attention of the people—then advertising will "make" the store. If it fails in most of the vital things—if it proves, under the light of publicity not to be much of a store, THEN ADVERTISING WILL NOT PAY—for it will emphasize the shortcomings as well as merits.

For these same reasons it is generally assumed that the store which does not advertise is seeking to avoid close inspection and comparison; and that the store which does is courting them.

PORTLAND MARKETS

Portland, July 29.—Oregon's hop yield this year will amount to about 80,000 bales, according to A. J. Ray, a well-known grower and dealer, who has been investigating the results of the late rains. Before the showers of the past week the yield was figured at between 60,000 and 70,000 bales, but the warm showers have given the vines new life and added at least 10,000 bales to the total.

"Last year's Oregon output of hops amounted to 90,000 bales," said Mr. Ray, "and the heaviest yield of hops was in 1906, when the total reached 140,000. This year's total would be a great deal larger than it is were it not for the fact that a great many yards were neglected on account of the low prices."

He thinks the advance in the value of the hops will do little good to the growers, as about two-thirds of the farmers raising hops have contracted to sell at 10 cents and thereabouts, and so the profit will go into the pockets of the dealers instead of to the men who bore the brunt of the low prices last year.

Mixed Values in Butter Penmanship galore is being issued out to various creamery men by others of the craft who are thereby punishing themselves. The market price for creamery butter is badly mixed, all sorts of values being quoted by the makers. Some of them are still maintaining the market at 23c, others are asking 30c, others 30 1/2c, and still another 31c a pound. Those holding back at 19c are making an effort to punish those who put the market to 30 1-2c. Some claim that the latter are bringing in Eastern butter and are boosting the local price merely to allow them to sell their outside product at a more favorable price but the 30 1-2c men say that the advance to that price was fully justified because of the shorter supply and the better demand. Then, again the 31c men state that there is the only real market, so today you can buy butter at your own price. Conditions are likely to adjust themselves during the coming forty-eight hours.

Some Quoting Cheese at 17c More firmness is shown in the cheese market at this time. The situation is daily improving and some of the wholesale growers advanced their quotations to 17c for flats this morning, but along Front street prices are generally unchanged at 16 1-2c.

Fruits Raspberries are higher by at least

10 cents a crate in the local market. Some sales are being made at 20c above those formerly quoted. Receipts were better this morning, but the quality was good.

Loganberries are showing mixed quality, some very leaky stuff coming forward. Sales are being made today at $2.25 a crate.

Blackberries are slightly lower with receipts somewhat better.

Wheat Steady

Although the market was weak, local wheat prices were not quoted lower yesterday, but business was not extensive. Some of the larger buyers are out of the market entirely, now, and the others are operating on a rather cautious scale.

Eggs Drop

There is considerable difference of opinion among handlers of eggs as to the right market price. Some interests assert their ability to secure 23c quite easily for supplies, while others are offering all they have at 27 1-2c. Receipts are better than expected, and as some supplies are being brought out from the East the situation is not nearly so good as a week ago.

Good Demand for Livestock

Good demand and light arrivals characterize the condition of the Portland livestock market today, and hogs are particularly needed. Prices of live hogs cannot advance any further, in the language of one commission house, "unless they go through the roof."

Several hundred sheep from Willamette valley points are among the receipts today. The animals were gathered in small lots from the various farms, and no big flocks were secured in any one locality. Sheep are now in good condition in the valley on account of the abundance of grass.
