The Shakespeare Club met with Mrs. P. K. Hammond at her home, 518 Olive street, on Monday afternoon of this week. This club meets every two weeks to read different plays of Shakespeare and is thoroughly literary in character. The members are: Mrs. J. W. Buoy, Mrs. Frink, Mrs. Hammond, Mrs. E. N. Smith, Mrs. J. S. Maglady, Mrs. Dillon, Miss Nellie Loomis, Mrs. McMorran, Mrs. Henry A. Tromp, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. E. M. Duryea, Mrs. W. F. Gilstrap, Mrs. M. D. Beals.

Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock the Central Endeavor Society of the Central Presbyterian church departed for Hendricks' Park, where a bonfire was held and a picnic supper served. After supper a business meeting was held, after which several enjoyed stories and singing, coming home at about 10 o'clock.

Summer school this year has been most pleasant, besides the regular routine of work there have been many pleasant social affairs for the students. Mrs. P. L. Campbell opened her home on Tuesday evening to faculty friends and students of the University. Receiving with her were Mrs. Young, Mrs. Schmitt, Mrs. Douglas and Mrs. Alderman. Mrs. W. B. Dillard also helped Mrs. Campbell during the evening. At the door Miss Clara Wold greeted the guests, while Miss Edith Prescott introduced the guests to the receiving line. The decorations for the occasion were beautiful, the reception room being in Shasta daisies and maple boughs, while the library was a bank of nasturtiums. Sweet peas and tasselwood made the dining room most summery. During the evening Mrs. Douglas rendered a piano solo, Miss Clara Wold favored them with a soprano solo, Miss Murphy played and Miss Moran and Mrs. Carmichael each sang. After the music lists were served by the Misses Irma Campbell, Eleanor Allen, Cora and Clara Wold, Ruth Dunaway and Gertrude Holmes. This affair proved to be very pleasant and those enjoying Mrs. Campbell's hospitality speak highly of her ability in entertaining.

Mrs. Cloran and Mrs. Gray were hostesses to the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church on Tuesday afternoon. The afternoon being spent at Mrs. Cloran's home, 315 East Fifteenth street. During the afternoon needlework was the pastime, followed by refreshments, which were served by the hostesses.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church spent a most delightful afternoon with Mrs. Foster on Tuesday at her home on College street. The ladies met at the church and were driven in carriages to Mrs. Foster's residence. A quilt was tackled during the afternoon and later sandwiches, coffee, gelatine pudding and cake were served. Every one had a delightful time.

Friends of Miss Margaret Cundiff will be interested in her marriage on Wednesday of this week. Mr. Nathaniel Wither was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Cundiff, of this city, by the Rev. Emery, of Oakland, on Wednesday at high noon. The bride wore her traveling suit, the wedding being a very quiet one. Mr. Wither is a promising civil engineer of the Bay City, and is to be congratulated for taking away one of Eugene's most accomplished girls. The couple will reside in Oakland for several months and will then probably move to the city.

The Gamma Phi Beta girls entertained the Kappa Alpha Theta girls at luncheon Wednesday noon at the Portland Grill. Present were: Gamma Phi Beta—Miss Ruth Hanson, Miss Helen Beale, Miss Mildred Bridges, the Misses Alice and Caroline Benson, Miss Blanche Huston, Miss Javina Stanfield, Miss Ward, Miss Ward, Miss Potter, Miss Vivian Holmes; Kappa Alpha—Misses Helene Robinson, Jessie Beebe, Hazel McNeil, Frances Oberhauser, Frances Nelson, Winnifred Cockerline, Susan Hayes, Lela Goddard, Adele Goff, Ione Lambert and Mary DeBar.

Miss Hazel Humphrey gave a dinner on Wednesday, Mr. George White being the honor guest, that day being her birthday. Shasta daisies with favors carrying out the same idea were used. Present were: Miss Grace Tomlinson, Miss Mildred Learned, Mr. Oscar Gorell, Mr. George White and Mr. Harold Hunt.

Miss Caroline Benson entertained informally on Wednesday afternoon at her home on Eleventh street, Portland, asking the Gamma Phi Beta girls.

Miss Neva Ware, of Walla Walla, was honor guest at a party given by Miss Edwina Prosser on Friday afternoon. The girls brought their sewing and spent a most delightful afternoon together. Miss Genevieve Elspass assisted the hostess in serving a dainty lunch. Miss Prosser's guests were: Misses Frieda and Margaret Goldsmith, Grace Woods, Barbara Booth, Neva Ware, Carrie and Genevieve Elspass, Grace Hobbs, Mary Roach, Cosby Gilstrap, Nancy Patterson, Valene Eastham, Lucille Abrams, Neura Richardson, Enola Wells, Mabel Mannering, Hazel Humphrey and Hettie Davis.

The Dorm parlors were the scene of much merriment on Thursday evening, Miss Edith Prescott having invited a few in for an informal dance. Punch was served during the evening. A novelty dance, a mixture of the two-step, waltz, three-step, barn dance and rye waltz was a feature of the evening. This is the last of a series of dances that Miss Prescott has been giving, which have proved most delightful.

On Thursday evening Mrs. L. N. Roney had a musicale for a few of her friends. Light refreshments were served.

Thanks are due Hill's gun store for the beautiful musical numbers their Columbia phonograph rendered on last Saturday evening at the W. C. T. U. social in the park. The selections were indeed beautiful and much appreciated.

Needlework kept Miss Ray Woodruff's guests occupied on Friday afternoon, she having invited a few of the Allen, Floyd Haley, Frank Stanley, Tom Haley and Flaude Daniel.

Last Wednesday evening at their home on East Fifteenth street, Dr. and Mrs. Cloran entertained informally at dinner. Their guests were Superintendent Cooper, of Seattle, and Dr. and Mrs. F. G. Schmidt.

Society Personals
Miss Elizabeth Graves, of Chattanooga, Tennessee, is to be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Geo. O'B. DeBar, for the rest of the summer.

Mrs. M. L. Kelly, Mrs. J. W. Geary and son, Woodbridge, are visiting at Mrs. Buoy's cosy home on West Tenth street.

The Misses Eva Allen, Lueta Campbell and Mary DeBar are home from Portland, where they have been visiting for some time. Miss Mary DeBar spent some time at the seashore while gone.

MRS. J. N. SUTTON, MOTHER OF DEAD LIEUTENANT OF MARINES

The sensational inquiry into the death of Lieutenant Sutton of the marine corps at Annapolis was the direct result of nearly two years' determined effort on the part of the mother of the dead officer. Mrs. Sutton never believed that her son died by his own hand, and she was not satisfied with the military inquiry made at the time of the tragedy. She tried for many months to have the war department order a second investigation and only succeeded in her efforts after Mr. Taft became president. After the second inquiry was ordered three months were occupied in assembling the witnesses from distant parts of the world.

girls in to spend the afternoon with her. Those enjoying Miss Woodruff's hospitality were: Miss Nell Murphy, the Misses Jessie and Lila Prosser, Misses Clara and Cora Wold, Miss Cosby Gilstrap, Miss Segins, Miss Grace Maglady, Miss Etha Snodgrass, Miss Blanche Hughes and Miss Georgia Dillon.

Dr. and Mrs. Prosser entertained on Wednesday evening with a dinner for Superintendent Cooper, of Seattle. Superintendent Cooper has given the most interesting set of lectures at the University this week and has made many friends in Eugene during his short stay here.

Mrs. Green and Mrs. McCrady took a crowd of young people back of the butte on Friday afternoon for a neighborhood picnic. Those enjoying this affair were: Mamie and Albert Gillette, Lula Green, Helen and Howard Green, Mildred Vandayn, Dorothy Collier and Esther Rohrer.

A picnic for summer school people including the faculty and friends, will be held on the river bank on Monday afternoon, the crowd leaving the campus at 5 o'clock. Every one bring their lunch and come prepared for a good time.

On Monday evening the friends of Mr. Fred Haley gave him a surprise party in honor of his birthday. Music, conversation and games made the evening seem short. Refreshments were served toward the close of the evening. Those present were: The Misses Helen Graham, Lora Adams, Vera Burkhardt, Ethel Graham, Edna Hurd, Essie Haley, Hazel W. Kown, Conifred Hurd, Mrs. Imogene McKown, Mrs. M. J. Messers, Earl Atkinson, Mrs. Charles Allen, Loretta Adams, and a good time and large crowds in attendance. Those enjoying Miss Woodruff's hospitality were: Miss Nell Murphy, the Misses Jessie and Lila Prosser, Misses Clara and Cora Wold, Miss Cosby Gilstrap, Miss Segins, Miss Grace Maglady, Miss Etha Snodgrass, Miss Blanche Hughes and Miss Georgia Dillon.

W. Kyes and family are visiting with their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Sharp, at London this week. Alfred White, of Cottage Grove, spent Sunday with his cousin, Alf Whitney, at the Springs.

Mrs. B.D. Paine of Eugene, and her niece, Miss Elsa Paine, of Glencoe, Minn., arrived in this week for a vacation.

C. J. Napper, of Creswell, and A. M. Armstrong, of Oakland, are recent arrivals at the Hotel Calapooya. Mr. Prewett and family, of Coos Bay, are among the campers who came in this week for an outing as well as for Mr. Prewett's health.

W. B. Dennis and Levi Geer returned yesterday from a business trip to Eugene.

T. T. Geer is home from a short trip to Idaho, where he went on business.

Work will soon begin to place the new bell on the church.

Alf Whitney left for Eugene and other valley points, where he intends to visit before returning to his home in Medford. He spent several weeks at the springs for his health.

Don't forget that this fine weather is excellent for camping. Make the Calapooya camp grounds a visit.

FADS AND FASHIONS

By Catherine Mann-Payzant.
New York, July 29.—Truly, with all these charming summer fabrics before us, placed at such reasonable prices, too, the temptation to buy is one that can hardly be overcome by the daughters of Eve. Never before were there so many attractive materials provided for the summer wardrobe as a ready-made woman; indeed, where we once had but one gown we now have several. Nearly every variety of silk and wool goods and the linens have been copied in design and color and weave in the cottons, while the silks and satins have been cleverly imitated in the mercerized goods, thus in colors and patterns obtaining the same general effect as with a more costly fabric.

Last week I saw a good illustration of this at one of the counters of a large department store where they were showing a fine lot of goods which at first glance looked like the softer foulards, instead they were of a soft cotton beautifully woven and mercerized well deserving the name of "mercerized foulards."

They were to be found in all the colors and patterns peculiar to the foulards; for instance, there were the dark blues with coin and polka dots, crescents, and wavy lines. There were greys, light blues and browns with many designs, also white and black effects and a very pretty cream ground having broken lines in brown.

A dainty little frock of this last goods was prettily developed in a design consisting of a surplice waist and skirt laid in groups if tiny plaits. This is one thing that must be remembered in the making of the thin dresses—the desirability of which we see so many, having scant skirts are not possible in such goods, there must be a certain amount of fullness to make them fall as they should.

A surplice waist is always a good design for the flouncings and the border materials in the soft or even the heavier goods. The waist both back and front was laid in two plaits over the shoulders, the border of whatever trimming is to be used being placed at the center of the front and back. The V opening was filled with a fine tucked cream chiffon with a high collar. The leg-of-mutton sleeve may be tucked in groups to match the skirt, or it may be in three quarter length finished in points and the trimmings with an under sleeve to match the chemisette that fills the V opening.

The skirt of this dress is cut with five gores, the fullness around the hips fitted by clusters of fine tucks stitched down over the hips and the whole fastened to the bodice-stay beneath. It was made in clearing length and measured three and a half yards round and had two wide tucks at the bottom following the outline of the hem, which gave the appearance of another tuck. This design would be very suitable for crossbar muslins, cotton voiles and the thin summer silks that make such charming evening dresses.

Some of the chevists and surges have been very cleverly imitated in cotton goods; those in black and white effects are especially smart. Of course, they are heavier than the first-mentioned materials, but for traveling, dull or cool days in the summer and evenings on the street they are fetching gowns when made up with a bit of bright trimming and black satin or satin collars and cuffs, belts and perhaps reerers; in nearly every case they are found decorated with black silk-covered buttons. One gown of this order was noted the other day with buttons down the left side of the waist, which was not an innovation, but in the back was a similar appearance of closing and on the right side. It was a striking though not an ugly idea.

A cotton chevist check in black and white was made by the three-piece plan and the gown proper has a panel at the center, front and back, and two short gores at each side, terminating in rounded outline at the hips. These gores are lengthened by three gores attached and shaped to the upper portion and under the seams in a small inverted plait which gives the needed extra width at the bottom. The neck opening collar of black silk on the corners of which and on the black silk cuffs were embroidered tiny little flowers in red with a few leaves in green silk. The sleeves were long and two short gores at each side, finished with the black silk cuffs. Buttons covered with black silk and ornamented with just one flower and leaves outlined the front panel on each side. The neck was filled in with a white lace yoke of Valenciennes.

The jacket was long, half-fitting and of the cut-away order. A big black silk collar in shawl shape and cuffs of the same material gave a smart finish to the costume. Black raglanette shoes, black suede gloves and bag were added. The hat was of black horsehair trimmed with a huge fold of black silk, three small willow plumes of different sizes and a large jet buckle.

A pongee suit would also make up beautifully in this mode trimmed with black satin or of deep brown as best liked, but the idea of putting black with the natural pongee shade is a smart effect that has taken many women's fancy. A mohair would look well in this style and a black suit could be trimmed with some of the very lively bandings that come for such purpose. The coat could be further decorated with a set of the white embroidered collar and cuffs.

A very pretty repp that almost takes the place of the linen or one of new goods that is part linen and part cotton and costs just half the price of a linen would make an attractive street or boardwalk gown for a seashore resort. One made up for this purpose the other day was of pink repp trimmed with fine embroidered swiss lace and insertion. The gown was of the semi-princess mode with a full length panel, while the rest of the skirt and waist are arranged as blouse waist and six

Disease Germs

Cannot harm healthy human bodies. We cannot have healthy bodies unless we have pure blood, —the kind of blood that Hood's Sarsaparilla makes.

This great medicine has an unequalled, unapproached record for purifying and enriching the blood. It cures scrofula, eczema, eruptions, catarrh, rheumatism, anemia, nervousness, that tired feeling, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, general debility, and builds up the whole system.

Get it today in the usual liquid form or in chocolate tablet form called Sarsatals.

A new silk that promises to become popular is the Shantung serge, which although woven from spun silk is yet made to imitate the lines of serge and to be about as heavy. It is an admirable material for a traveling suit or indeed for a more elaborate gown.

Cloaks are draped to the shoulders over dolman sleeves and caught up in the back and because of their resemblance are called butterfly wraps.

Lezhorn hats are being made to match the gowns and they take on the most charming shades, the original color seems to be such a good foundation. Big loose scarfs and folds and willow plumes seem to be the favorite trimming.

Black for evening gowns seems to be fashionable even for the young woman and tulle embroidered in long trailing vines done in delicate colors is used effectively over colored slips.

NEWS OF JUNCTION CITY AND VICINITY

Mrs. A. M. Pitney, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Buehler, left this week for Spokane to register in the great land drawing. They will visit friends during their stay and will be absent about a month.

The Bushnell farm five miles southeast of here on the River road, consisting of 248 acres, is to be subdivided into ten and twenty-acre tracts. The land will be surveyed in a few days and plotted to the best advantage for purchasers.

The Dane gasoline thresher has been at work during the past week threshing vetch for G. C. Millett. This is about the first thresher to commence work this season. The seed is turning out about an average yield. Mr. Millett will have 1000 bushels.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hess, of Garrettsville, Kansas, arrived here Sunday. They are old friends and neighbors of E. J. Miller and are looking over this section with a view of locating. Mr. Hess is a farmer but prefers to rent for one year before purchasing.

Claus Jensen, of Eugene, has purchased the Jas. Milliron farm of 160 acres some three miles south of town, consideration $45 per acre. There are some improvements on the place and Mr. Jensen will build a house and barn as soon as he can get the material ready. Jensen & Milliron made the sale.

Dr. Kuykendall, G. C. Millett and others, including Mr. Nielsen, a civil engineer, who went out to Triangle Lake Saturday to investigate the water power at the lake with a view of installing a power station to convey electric light and power to this city, do not make a favorable report. The estimate of water power must be made at its lowest stage in order to ascertain the minimum pressure, and it was found that about only 500 horse power can be developed at the present stage of water. This would not be sufficient, as a good deal of power is lost in transmission, and as far as Junction capital is concerned, the enterprise will be dropped.—Times.

A deposit of prehistoric bones has been found at Los Angeles, a giant sloth, huge mammoth, horse, lion, tiger, wolf, bear and other birds.

LIEUTENANT ADAMS, CHIEF WITNESS IN SUTTON CASE, AND HIS ATTORNEY.

Lieutenant Robert E. Adams of the marine corps was the first witness called before the board of inquiry at Annapolis when the second investigation into the death of Lieutenant James N. Sutton began. Lieutenant Adams was represented by counsel and was allowed to hear all the other witnesses who followed him in the inquiry. His story was to the effect that Sutton had picked a quarrel with him and other officers on the way to the barracks on the night of the tragedy and that the bullet which killed Sutton was from Sutton's own revolver. The fight which preceded the shooting of Sutton was described in minute detail by Adams.

BANKER SAYS COOS BAY WANTS ROAD TO EUGENE

Walter McFarland, cashier and manager of the First National Bank of Marshfield, Oregon, told a close personal friend while in Eugene today that Coos Bay's only real hope of a railroad was to the interior, via Eugene.

"If you people build to the mouth of the Siuslaw," he said "we will be there from Marshfield to meet you when you get there."

Mr. McFarland went on to state that all the surveys out of Marshfield, including the one now in progress under Engineer Harris, show an expensive route, because of mountain ranges to cross. This fact has convinced the leading men of the Coos Bay country that a railroad to Eugene is really their only hope. For this reason they are watching the movement to build to the Siuslaw with great interest and as soon as active work begins here will start a movement at that end to meet the Eugene line when it reaches the Siuslaw.

This new light on the Coos Bay situation, coming from a man of prominence, will do much to dispel the discouragement caused by the report that the government will not assist the people in improving the Siuslaw harbor. I. B. Cushman has written Attorney L. E. Bean and Vice President Eakin, of the First National Bank, that the government expert sent to investigate the proposed work, will report adversely. Regardless of this view, those most familiar with the Siuslaw harbor still have faith in it and will keep up the fight for its proper recognition.

Railroad to the Siuslaw and extended to Coos Bay would command the business of three ports, the Siuslaw, the Umpqua and Coos Bay.

WELCH SENDS RAILS TO CENTRALIA

Centralia, Wash., July 29.—A carload of streetcar rails is in the Northern Pacific freight yards here, and another car is at Chehalis. They are consigned to the Twin City Traction Company, which holds franchises to operate a streetcar system in Centralia and Chehalis and between the two cities.

The arrival of the rails has put new confidence into the streetcar project, which many people in Centralia and Chehalis had begun to fear had gone by the board. The holders of the franchise are A. Welch and W. J. Patterson, of Portland, and Theodor Hoss of Centralia.

COTTAGE GROVE BUYS QUARRY FOR STREETS

Cottage Grove, Or., July 29.—At the last council meeting it was decided to buy the Cochran rock quarry, located one mile north of town, for the purpose of street and road improvement, as this rock is of excellent quality and perfectly adapted for crushing. The quarry contains three acres, and will furnish material for years to come, and is of easy access. A first-class rock crusher and steam roller are soon to be installed and street and road improvement will be begun in earnest. Cottage Grove will soon rank with the first-class towns with model roads.

STEAMERSCHOONER LUMBER LADEN LOST ON ROCKS

Point Arena, Cal., July 31.—The steamer Winnebago, bound from Eureka, Wash., to San Francisco, went ashore early today off the Mendocino coast and will prove a total loss. Captain William A. Treanor, his wife and four children and 23 members of the crew reached the shore unharmed in the schooner's two boats.

She was laden with 1,500,000 feet of lumber and was groping her way through a dense fog at 2:30 this morning when she struck. Immediately she began to settle at the stern, and orders were given to clear away the boats. Within a few minutes the schooner went down by the stern, settling until only her bow was above the water. When daylight came it was seen she had went ashore on Wash Rock, scarcely a quarter of a mile from shore.

BAKER SELLS INTEREST IN LAUNDRY TO FISHER

One of Best Known Laundrymen on Pacific Coast Retires From Local Firm

J. W. Baker has retired from the Fisher Laundry Co., selling his interest in the big plant on South Willamette street to his partner, E. L. Fisher, who will now be sole owner. Mr. Baker has been associated with Mr. Fisher for nearly a year. He is one of the best known laundrymen on the Pacific Coast, having been identified with a number of the biggest laundries in California and Oregon during the last 14 years. Previous to coming to Eugene he had charge of all the steam laundries in Southern Oregon. From here he will go to Prince Rupert, on the coast of Canada, where he will probably engage in the same business. "Jack" is a good business man and his many friends regret to see him leave.

TWENTY-CENT OFFER FOR HOPS PENDING

Salem, Or., July 29.—Hop men report that 20 cents for 1909 hops is being freely offered. Julius Pinchus today offered William Percival, an independence grower, 20 cents a pound for 50,000 pounds, and the offer is still open, with the probability that it will be declined.

It is reported that Jim Meyers, of Dallas, has been offered 20 cents by Klabor, Wolf & Meador, of Portland. Conrad Krebs today refused 14 cents for two carloads of 1909 hops. Eighty has been quoted at 15.

One of the experiences of life up in Nome and other Alaskan cities, far northward, is that of twenty-four hours of sunshine. One can attend to business at midnight and lights are not needed during the long days; but this is made up for at the other end of the season when it is dark most of the time.
