TWO NEW STAMP MILLS IN BOHEMIA MINING DISTRICT

Five-Stamp Plant at Mayflower Group and Two Stamps at the Sweepstakes

Perry Elk, of the Mayflower group of mines in Bohemia, was in town Saturday putting in supplies. A fine new five-stamp mill is being installed in the Mayflower mines to replace the cyanide plant, which did not prove the desired success, but the fine prospects in this mine fully warranted the extra expense of installing the new stamp mill, and the Mayflower group will yet become a producer.

Two-Stamp Mill

S. J. Brund has just installed a two-stamp mill to be operated by a five-horse power gasoline engine in his "Sweepstakes" mine on Elephant mountain in Bohemia mining district. Mr. Brund has a large quantity of fine ore in sight which he will proceed to run through his new stamp mill this winter. Some of this ore is a long string of gold, which demonstrates its richness. Andrew Brund, of the firm of Metcalf & Brund, has been assisting his father in the work of installing this plant in his mine the past two weeks—Leader.

MRS. MCKINLEY ADMITS FRAUD IN 7-11 CASES

Portland, Sept. 23.—That she had full knowledge of the fraud in the famous "7-11" land cases, and received $50 from S. A. D. Pater for joining in the conspiracy was the admission yesterday in federal court of Mrs. Horace G. McKinley, formerly Marie Ware, land commissioner at Eugene, Ore.

Mrs. McKinley proceeded to testify that all the names as witnesses on papers made out to secure the land were fictitious and that she knew at the time they were signed and delivered to her to be sent to Washington, D. C. No attempt was made to hold back this information and admission after admission of fraud in big land steals came from the witness.

While acting as land commissioner she had a splendid chance to assist in putting the deal through for Pater and used all authority of the office in doing so. The arrangement to do this was made with Pater and McKinley and a short time previous to May, 1901, when the first affidavits were made in the Roseburg office in the case, she said.

Equity Cases.

The hearing was on the equity cases to reclaim title to the lands near Eugene and Cottage Grove, which had been secured by Pater and others, and an effort is being made by the district attorney to again turn the land back to the government.

Mrs. McKinley also admitted the names of the fictitious persons were signed by Pater on all the original filing papers, proofs of public notices and the later conveyance of the property.

Pater was called to the stand, and corroborated her testimony, and also admitted that all witnesses' names and to G. B. May and fraudulently signed. He further admitted entering into the scheme with Mrs. McKinley whereby she received $50 and that the deeds later conveying the property were fraudulent.

Mysterious Watkins.

The complaint filed by the United States district attorney charges that some person represented to be W. H. Watkins, applied in May, 1901, to the land office at Roseburg and made affidavits that he had settled 160 acres near Eugene in 1892, and had made the improvements required for homestead. Applications for final proof were also made in which Joseph Warwick and F. H. Herna were signed as witnesses. Under this fraudulent representation government patents were issued to Watkins who in turn is supposed to have transferred the lands to G. B. May and several other large tracts were secured in a similar way.

The proceedings so far show that all this was done by Pater and others who have been charged in the criminal cases, upon which convictions have been secured. Ex-Senator Fulton is representing McLeod in an attempt to retain title to the lands. Many of the witnesses used in the criminal proceedings are being used in this proceedings.

BURRO TEARS AT GAPING WOUND OF DYING MINER

San Bernardino, Cal., Sept. 28.—With a burro tearing at a jagged wound in his leg for blood with which to moisten its parched throat, Jacob George, an old prospector of the Mojave desert, was found unconscious and near death by a party of miners returning from the "Furnace Regions." George was brought to Lone Willow Springs.

The aged prospector was lost for two days on the edge of Death Valley. In attempting to inflict a flesh wound on his pack animal to secure blood with which to moisten his swollen tongue and throat, he accidentally shot himself through the leg. Falling helpless beneath the desert sun, he lay unconscious. The burro, crazed from lack of water, viciously attacked the fallen man and had torn a big wound in his leg when the rescuers found him.

This done the boys were invited until they were invited to work for awhile until the boys built a fire in the stove of the office. They no more than got it lighted, when an explosion took place which demolished the chimney and stove and set fire to the real estate office. ## BRAVE FRENCHMAN DIES IN POWERY IN CALIFORNIA

San Rafael, Cal., Sept. 28.—Chevalier August Chalmot, hero of the Boxer rebellion, an adherer of fortune and scion of a noble family, died of consumption this afternoon in a tiny, two-roomed cottage at Larpur, peninsula.

When he practically died only his wife, a bride of a week, and one friend stood by his bedside.

Chalmot's life had been one of adventure. During the siege of Pekin he saved over 1400 white persons within the walls of the city from starvation by procuring provisions for them at the risk of his life.

Following the capture of the city, the man's heroism was rewarded by half a dozen governments, who decorated Chalmot.

After the Boxer troubles Chalmot, with his wife, came to the United States. He was wealthy. In addition to having the decoration of the Legion of Honor conferred upon him, the French government had presented him with $200,000.

In New York his wife procured a divorce and, through unlucky investments and his own generosity in giving away his wealth, Chalmot lost his fortune.

Shortly afterward he was taken ill. He came to California and married a week ago. At the time Chalmot had but 20 cents to his name. He came to his sister in Switzerland of his condition, and she is now on the way to America to lend assistance that will come too late.

NEW YORK CITY BEGINS GREAT HUDSON CELEBRATION

New York, Sept. 25.—Assailed by the representatives of thirty-eight nations and nearly a million visitors from various parts of the United States and Canada, New York began today its long-planned celebration of the discovery of the Hudson three hundred years ago by Henry Hudson and the plying of the first steamboat up the same historic river by Robert Fulton one hundred and two years ago.

Perhaps the most spectacular feature marking the beginning of the celebration was the assembling of eighty American and foreign war vessels in New York harbor preliminary to a most naval parade up the Hudson River. It was the largest fleet ever assembled on this side of the Atlantic, or as a matter of fact, anywhere in modern times, except recent review of the British navy. There were fifty-three American naval vessels in the parade, while England was represented by four armored cruisers, under the command of Admiral Sir Edward H. Seymour. Germany sent four also, with the father of her navy to command them. He is no less distinguished a personage than Grand Admiral Von Roeder, whose flagship, the Victoria Louise, France's colors were carried by three French cruisers under the command of Rear Admiral Jules L. M. Le Poer, while Italy had two, the cadet school ship Arona and the Etruria, under Capt. Mar Oesa. Filippo Bagia Duranes, the ranking officer of the Italian representation, the Netherlands, Mexico, Japan and Cuba were also represented, as well as Argentine. Raw's did not send a warship, but was represented by the naval attaché of the embassy here, Capt. Wassiloff.

Japan has outdone all other foreign countries by sending a prince of the royal blood, Prince Kuni, as her official representative.

When the foreign and American naval vessels had taken their stations, three productions of the little old Half Moon and the Clermont entered the river and were received with fitting ceremonies and much noise as they took the place of honor in the line.

It was 10:30 when the escort squadron assembled with the replicas of the Half Moon and Clermont off Constable Point in the Kill river. Kill and maneuvered with the escort Staten Island and Half Moon along the shore. The formation of the escort squadrons was completed at 12:30 and 1 o'clock the parade between the Hudson and the East River, the Jersey shore, and continued up the river to 125th street. Then it crossed the river and headed downstream on New York side up to 11th street. There the official reception, celebrated a fitting appropriate ceremony.

In the evening the same parade will be repeated, starting at 7:30 o'clock, and a brilliant display of fireworks will be given by the city.

For the two water pavilions ten squadrons besides the war vessels were formed. The first consisted of sailing and coastwise merchant vessels; then came steamships plying in inland waters of the United States, including ferry boats; steam yachts, commanded by W. Butler Duncan, Jr., next in line followed by motor boats under the command of J. Adolph Mollenhauer. The fifth squadron was made up of tug and launch sailing, followed by the six and seven squadrons.

Police boats and the coast development of the war department, decorated with flags, and other property were not regularly enrolled would be included in the Hudson river between 125th and 130th streets during the parade.

The Hudson Fulton Commission has planned to turn night into day during the first eight days of the celebration. Even conservative estimates put the number of lights to be used, in addition to the number regularly used for lighting the streets at between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 incandescents, 7,000 arc lights, 3,000 flare arcs, one battery of four search lights of 100,000 candle power each, and another battery of twelve search lights with an aggregate of 1,700,000 candle power, making a final total of approximately 2,500,000 candlepower.

Some idea may be gained of the volume of light which will flood the streets while the celebration is in progress when it is understood that these estimates do not include the hundreds of thousands of separate lights which the vendors are exhibiting, displaying advertising and other forms have contracted for. All this, of course, for this city alone, not taking into account the lights along the New Jersey shore and other places adjacent to the city but just outside the corporation limits.

The preparation for the plying of the crowds during the parade of the

SOAKING RAIN PUTS OUT ALL FOREST FIRES IN LANE COUNTY

Statistics Will Be Compiled on the Loss by Fires in Oregon This Year

(From Saturday's Daily Guard.)

The soaking rain of last night has put an effective stop to all forest fires in this section of the state and when the sun comes out again the atmosphere will be clearer than it has been at any time during the past three or four months. All summer long there have been small fires in the mountains, causing the smoke to settle over the valley and the atmosphere always has a hazy appearance on that account.

The Oregon Conservation Association and the Oregon and Washington Lumber Manufacturers' Association, working with the Oregon Forestry, will now endeavor to have compiled complete statistics of the fire loss this year. Hundreds of reports have been mailed during the summer and fall to various agencies and districts, with a great letter to chronicle every fire in the area burned, and the timber loss, together with information as to the origin and other statistics that will aid in solving the fire problem.

This is the first year an effort was made to have these statistics used upon any state more complete and accurate, and often estimates were of the long-range variety. When all of the reports have been made, state wardens, private patrol and United States forestry officials, it will be possible to see very closely what the Oregon fire loss has been in what is considered the most fire-prone season known here for years. The same work is to be systematized, with the present year, as an example, and for the succeeding years made more complete and accurate.
