President of Wrecked Bank Testifies in His Own Behalf

Portland, Or., March 30.—Within 24 hours the fate of Walter F. Moore, ex-president of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank, will rest with the jury, his counsel announcing that the financier's recital of the wrecked institution's affairs yesterday virtually closed the case.

Called to testify in his own behalf

Mr. Moore occupied the stand throughout the day. Features of his testimony were:

Blaming of W. Cooper Morris for the bank's fall.

Admission that he and Morris had paid for their stock and created a $50,000 surplus with the bonus telephone stock received with the telephone bonds.

Flat denial of testimony of E. E. Lytle concerning the Board of Trade building venture and the Pacific & Eastern Railroad deal.

Denial of knowledge of Golden Eagle store transaction until he found by accident that the establishment had overdrawn $21,000.

Asked to explain entries on the books on December 15, 1906, when his own and Morris' notes for stock were wiped off the books and the surplus for the bank created, Mr. Moore replied:

"Morris stated to me one day that the bank had in its possession $200,000 worth of telephone stock which had not been entered upon the books and suggested that we write them up and take off our own stock. He said the stock was worth 50 cents on the dollar and that it would be a legitimate transaction for us to enter into. I wish to state now that I do not believe that it was the proper thing to do. I know it was wrong but I felt that I was behind the bank with everything I possessed and in one way it seemed as though it would not make any difference whether I had any notes in the bank or not."

"Morris suggested it and I permitted it. I did not take my note out of the bank, although I allowed the entry to be written off the books."

Wrong Act Admitted

"Morris stated to me one day that the bank had in its possession $200,000 worth of telephone stock which had not been entered upon the books and suggested that we write them up and take off our own stock. I know it was wrong but I felt that I was behind the bank with everything I possessed and in one way it seemed as though it would not make any difference whether I had any notes in the bank or not."
