

SPLENDID FEAT OF OF CURTISS DRAWS WORLD'S ATTENTION TO SUCCESSFUL AVIATOR

New York, May 30.—Glenn H. Curtiss' marvelous feat of aviation in flying to New York, 137 miles, in 152 minutes, compelled the attention of the entire world today. His flight from the state capitol to Governor's Island, off the Battery, breaks all speed records in distance contests.

Curtiss rested quietly at his hotel today and received the congratulations that were showered on him. He made it clear that he believed still greater feats in flying would be accomplished, and these in the not far distant future.

His flight at the state capitol began at 7:03 a. m. yesterday, and only two stops were made before his biplane glided on the beaches of Governor's Island. The first stop was at Poughkeepsie, where an hour was spent by Curtiss in going over his engine and refilling the oil tank. The second stop was at Inwood, where he made his official landing.

New York, May 30.—The aviator remained at Inwood an hour and seven minutes and then proceeded to Governor's Island. Between Albany and Inwood, the biplane, which is the smallest that has ever figured in the greater aviation contests, made an average speed of 54.06 miles an hour. For minutes at a time Curtiss' machine skimmed through the air sixty miles an hour and the special train which was following the flight, was hard put to keep abreast of the flying machine.

GLENN H. CURTISS.

Curtiss' feat wins for him a $10,000 cash prize from the New York World. The latest revised figures of the flights are: Start from Albany, 7:03 a. m.; arrive at Governor's Island at noon. Total time trip, four hours 57 minutes; elapsed time of two stops enroute, two hours and eleven minutes; actual time of flight, two hours and 46 minutes; distance covered 150 miles; average speed per mile, about one minute six seconds.

This record is for the flight as a whole. The prize flight ended, as staged at Inwood, with a record for 137 miles to the point as previously given.

FUNERAL SERMON LASTS FOUR HOURS; GRAVE IS TOO SMALL THE REASON

Cottage Grove, Ore., May 28.—The funeral services over the remains of Harley Queener, held at Saginaw yesterday, were the most lengthy in the pastorate of the Rev. W. A. Elkins, who preached the sermon. The hour of the service was fixed at 2 o'clock, and from this time until 6 o'clock the minister was forced to hold his auditors because of the fact that it was found necessary to enlarge the grave. The undertaker could not lower the casket box, and workmen had to go several miles distant for dynamite and blast away the solid rock until the grave was given proper dimensions.

DUD CLARKE SIGNS WITH TACOMA TEAM

Dudley Clarke, the premier batsman of the University of Oregon baseball team and the all-Northwest champion football fullback, is to don a Tacoma uniform as soon as he graduates in June.

In securing Clarke, Manager Quinn has slipped something big over every Northwest League manager. It is known that Walter McCredie of Portland has had his weather eye on Clarke ever since the big fellow was attending the Portland Academy. At that time "Big Dud" was playing right field because he couldn't catch a ball, but he was leading the Intercollegiate League in batting, and P. A. practically won the pennant on his stickwork the last year he was in preparatory school.

Four years ago he entered the University and since then he has been a leading all-round athlete as well as a high-standing student. He has won points for his track team by juggling the weights and he has won both football and baseball games through his terrific power in booting the pigskin and clouting the horsehide. Instead of continuing to play right field Clarke developed into one of the fastest shortstops in Northwest collegiate circles and for three years the big fellow cavorted around that position. This year, however, Oregon needed his speed in the outfield and Dud has played center.

There is no doubt that Clarke could go to Manager McCredie and sign a contract any day after he graduates if he wanted to, for he is as popular with the fans as sunshine in June and there isn't a sportsman in Oregon that isn't proud of the big fellow and what he has done.

He it said here, though, that to E. Quinn goes none of the credit for landing D. Clarke. Curtiss Coleman, Quinn's crack young third sacker, is also a University of Oregon man. "Curt" played second to Clarke's shortstop and both of them are members of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

"Coley" joined the Tiger bunch and the same "Coley" put the bug in Quinn's ear that will bring Dud Clarke to Tacoma about July 1. Clarke has steadfastly refused to sign a contract for fear he would be barred out of college athletics this year, but he has promised his old pal Coleman, and "Coley" says the promise is as good as a bond.—Spokane Herald.

BODY OF CLAUDE GABY NOT YET FOUND

(From Monday's Daily Guard.)
As far as can be learned this afternoon the body of Claude Gaby, of this city, who was drowned in the Willamette river near Beuna Vista Saturday afternoon, has not been recovered. A part of Eugene men, including Ralph Weed, Archie Briggs, William McCormack, Bud Kompf, Harry Graham, Hal Wood, Frank Hyland and others, went to the scene of the drowning early Sunday morning and are still working in an endeavor to locate the remains in the water.

Charles Nadeau returned from there last night and tells of the drowning, as he learned it, as follows: The launch in which Gaby and Lester Luckey were riding down the river from Harrisburg to Salem struck a log or something in the river and upset a short distance from Beuna Vista. Gaby, who was steering the craft, was thrown out near a stump that stood out of the water five feet and he landed safely on that, while Luckey got to the boat again and worked his way to the shore. He went to a farm house for help and when he and some other men returned they learned that Gaby had waded to the nearest shore, but had attempted to swim clear across the river to the other shore where Luckey had landed. He was unsuccessful and drowned.

C. Fisk, who is with a logging camp near the scene of the drowning, saw Gaby enter the water. He started to wade and seemed to suddenly sink out of sight, evidently coming to a "jumpoff" unexpectedly. That was the last seen of him. Fisk says he could not swim a stroke, or he would have attempted to rescue Gaby, but he could do nothing but stand on the bank and see him go under and never come up. Gaby was a fair swimmer, but the suddenness of his plunge in the water over his head probably strangled and frightened him and with his clothes tied to his back, as it was reported, he was unable to do anything to save himself.

Luckey set out for Salem, where Mrs. Gaby and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hess were waiting for their arrival down the river in the launch. When Mrs. Gaby was appraised of her husband's death she swooned and it was with difficulty that she was revived. She arrived home on the 12:32 train that night.

Grappling for Body.
Chas. Nadeau says that one of the members of the party that looked for the body all day Sunday thought that he had caught the body on one of the grappling hooks, but it got loose before it reached the surface.

The party left Eugene on the train Saturday morning for Salem, where they intended staying several days. Luckey and Gaby got off the train at Harrisburg and proceeded down the river from there in Luckey's gasoline launch. They went along without mishap until the boat overturned near Beuna Vista. They had intended reaching Salem about the middle of the afternoon and would have done so had it not been for the fatal accident.

Brady, the Portland diver, who has been successful in recovering bodies from the river in many cases of drowning, was sent for yesterday and it is presumed that he is working at the scene of the drowning today.

Was Eugene Plumber.
Claude Gaby was aged about 29 years and besides his wife, formerly Miss Rena Hyland, who he married about five years ago, he leaves his parents, Attorney and Mrs. Gaby, somewhere in Washington state, and a brother, Will, of this city. He was a plumber, being engaged in that business for himself. He was of a jovial disposition and had numerous friends, all of whom were greatly shocked at the news of his untimely death.

Gifts Presented.
Memorial exercises were held in Central school Friday evening, May 27. After a short program by the four lower grades, Prof. Buchan of the University, made a brief but appropriate address. He was followed by Mr. Goodman and J. F. Gates, the latter being a veteran of the civil war. A program was given by the four upper grades and Mr. Goodman and Mr. Gates made excellent addresses, which were well received. Mr. Gates, in a few well-chosen remarks, presented to the school a facsimile copy of the Declaration of Independence, a history of the flag, and a book of patriotic songs, which were the gift of the W. R. C. to the school. Principal J. E. Patterson received the gifts for the school and in behalf of the school, thanked the donors for the valuable gifts.

An unique feature of the occasion was the presence of a confederate soldier, and the hearty good will in which the exercises were entered into, gave promise of the disappearance of the differences which caused each to oppose the other on many bloody fields.

TELEGRAPH LINEMEN HELD UP BY FARMER

J. R. Cartwright of Harrisburg Objects to Wires Going Through Place.

Harrisburg, Ore., May 26.—A crew of linemen working for the Postal Telegraph Company was held up here in its work by J. R. Cartwright while stringing two wires through his 1000-acre ranch adjoining town. He had warned the foreman the night before not to proceed with the work. The advice was not heeded, however, until Mr. Cartwright appeared on the scene with a gun.

It seems Mr. Cartwright doubts the right of the Postal people to cross his ground, saying they have no legal title. The line was built through here about 25 years ago and follows the Southern Pacific, the poles being placed just outside of its right of way. No one in this section has ever before made any protest. However, now that Mr. Cartwright has given cause for bringing the matter into the courts, property owners all along the line will watch with keen interest the final result.

A representative of the company was sent here to confer with Cartwright in hope that some settlement might be made. It is understood, however, that owing to the value which he placed on his land as a right of way no agreement was reached. It is intimated that Mr. Cartwright may be placed under bonds to keep the peace while the linemen proceed with their work.

HOUSE ON INDIAN CREEK BURNED

The dwelling house of William McLean on Indian Creek was burned last Saturday afternoon. Considerable bedding and clothing was saved from the building, but most of the furniture, including a cook stove and other articles, was destroyed.

The fire started on the roof and probably was caused by a spark from the chimney.—Florence West.

FLORENCE ITEMS

It is expected that a farmers' institute will be held in Florence on or about June 23, at which some of the leading instructors on farm and dairy topics will be present.

The camps of Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors at Acme are arranging for their annual memorial services in honor of deceased members. The exercises will be held at Point Terrace on Sunday, June 5.

Mrs. William Smith, of Hecla, fell from the porch of J. A. Leverage's house in Florence Tuesday evening and hurt her back. She was taken home yesterday, but the extent of her injury could not be ascertained then.—West.

CHEMAWA RUNNERS DEFEAT Y. M. C. A.

For the fourth time the Chemawa Indians defeated athletes from the Portland Y. M. C. A. in the Salem-Portland relay race, finishing the long course Saturday afternoon at 2:30:25, 13 minutes ahead of the last Portland runner, and demonstrating beyond all doubt their superiority as long distance runners over trained white men.

Ben Berchid, bearing on his back the banner "Chemawa's Fourth Victory" concluded the relay for Chemawa. He is only 15 years old, but acknowledged to be one of the speediest Indian runners ever turned out in the Northwest.

MANY OLD AUTO RECORDS SMASHED

Indianapolis, May 30.—In desperate struggles for supremacy among drivers of the most powerful American cars, records were down for all distances between five and 200 miles at the Indianapolis speedway Saturday, and in the merciless grind only two men were injured.

Herbert Lytle, the driver, and his mechanic, William Clifton, were hurled from their car, an American, when a front tire burst as they were turning into the home stretch in the last lap of the 10-mile free-for-all handicap. Lytle's left leg was broken and Clifton was badly bruised.

Harroun's Drive Sensational.
Harroun, driving the Marmon, achieved a sensational triumph when he won the 200-mile race in 2:46:31, breaking the record which had been held by Chevrolet, who won the distance in 2:46:48 at Atlanta. The performance of Lynch, in a Jackson who was second, was hardly less brilliant, for he did not stop once, while Harroun paused at the end of the 100th mile for gasoline.

The five-mile record for cars of 451 to 600 cubic inches piston displacement was broken by Barney Oldfield and his Knox. Time 4:03. The old time was 4:32.

Aitken (National), broke the record for ten miles for cars of 301 to 450 inches displacement. His time was 8:08, breaking the former record of 8:17. Harroun (Marmon) and Merz (National) were close second and third.

S. S. S. THE REAL CURE FOR SCROFULA

Scrofula is a blood disease manifested usually by an ulceration of the glands. It is almost entirely hereditary in its origin, being the seeds or dregs of some specific blood poison which has been transmitted, in modified form, to the offspring of diseased parents. When the blood is specially vitiated scrofula attacks other portions of the system beside the glands, and we see its effects frequently in weak eyes, poorly developed bodies, running sores and ulcers, skin diseases like scaldhead, catarrhal troubles, etc. While the young are the usual sufferers from scrofulous troubles, it is true that it is sometimes held in check until middle life is reached, or passed, and then, as the physical system begins to decline, older persons are attacked by the disease. S. S. S. is the one real and certain cure for Scrofula. It is a blood purifier without an equal and it cures this destructive blood poison by removing the germs from the blood and so enriching and building up the circulation that the disease can not remain. S. S. S. searches out every taint and impurity from the blood; it gives to the blood the richness and power necessary to the healthy growth of children; and it strengthens and invigorates the constitutions of older persons, by its fine tonic effects. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable medicine, perfectly safe for young or old. Scrofula being a blood disease can only be cured by a blood purifier like S. S. S. Book on the blood free to all who write and request it.
