Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

FOUL MURDER OF WILLIAM A. JOHNSON

Portland, June 21.—Jesse P. Webb and Mrs. William A. Johnson were arrested at the Willamette rooming house early today on suspicion of having murdered the husband of the woman, William A. Johnson, at the Grand Central hotel yesterday afternoon.

Johnson's body was discovered in a trunk at the Union depot, from which blood was seen trickling. The trunk was opened and the body of the man discovered. His head had been terribly battered and he had been shot and choked to death.

The expressman who took the trunk to the depot was found, and took the detectives to the Grand Central, where the room occupied by the Johnsons was broken into and showed signs of a terrible struggle. Blood was everywhere.

The detectives then started out to locate the woman and Webb, who had registered at the hotel under the name of Powers. They were traced to the Willamette rooming house, where a little son of Johnson's was found. At daylight this morning Webb and the woman rode up to the place in an auto and were taken into custody. The woman had $1900 on her person.

The woman held as Mrs. W. A. Johnson, the supposed wife of the murdered man, has confessed that she is Mrs. D. W. Kersh, the wife of a city employe of Seattle named Bert Kersh, whom she left a year ago to run away with Webb. They have been traveling in many places during the interval. She states that she knew Johnson in Seattle, and later met him in Spokane, where he promised her if she would leave Webb he would set her up in the lodging house business in Portland. She agreed and they left Spokane Sunday night. She did not know Webb was on the train until they all boarded the same hotel bus at the depot. The hotel register of the new Grand Central hotel shows that Webb registered under the name of "Powers," and Johnson and the woman registered as man and wife.

The woman says she knows nothing of the murder. According to her story the men patched up their differences and began drinking. In the afternoon Johnson went to his room to sleep off the effects of the liquor, and she and Webb devoted their time to packing Johnson's trunk, he having announced he was going to Seattle last night. After the trunk was packed she took her son Willie and went to the Willamette roominu house, but does not explain why she changed her place of abode.

At 10 o'clock Webb called for her in an automobile, and they went for a joy ride. She supposed Johnson had gone to Seattle, and says she knows nothing of the murder.

The boy is 6 years old and says the woman is his mother and Webb is his father, and he has been taught to call Webb "father." The little fellow says Webb and Johnson had a serious quarrel yesterday afternoon, and later he was forbidden to enter Johnson's room because Johnson was sick.

So far as the police can ascertain there is no Mrs. Johnson, and they have ascertained that Webb is a victim of the chloral habit. He tells conflicting stories, but insists that he knows nothing of the murder.

"I never hurt anybody in my life," he declared, "to say nothing of having killed Johnson."

He professes to recollect nothing of his doings since arriving here from Spokane, and declares he has been on a drunk for several days.

When arrested Mrs. Kersh had in her possession $1900, which she declared Johnson gave her yesterday afternoon.

Webb in Spokane

Spokane, June 21—Jesse P. Webb, arrested in Portland on suspicion of connection with the murder of Johnson, left here Sunday, after having lived here for two months. He worked as a compositor on a local paper, and during one month's stay here he lived with a blonde woman he introduced as his wife. He said he had been seperated from her and living in Alaska for many years, but had met her by accident here. Quarrels between the two were frequent, and a week ago Webb gave up the furnished house the two had occupied, saying his wife had left him. This house was at 315 Wall street, the same address given as that of "Miss May Webster," on the cards found on the body of the murdered man.

BACALAUREATE SERMON BY DR. DYOTT

(From Monday's Daily Guard.)

What is considered by many as the best bacalaureate sermon that has ever been delivered to a graduating class from the University of Oregon was the address of the Rev. Luther R. Dyott, of the First Congregational church of Portland, in Villard hall yesterday to possibly 1500 people. The hall was crowded to the outside halls, where many stood trying to hear the splendid address. The speaker's voice was clear and everyone heard, and although the room was slightly warm the audience sat spellbound for nearly an hour. The commencement music was wonderful. The strains that reverbrated through the hall, from combined chorus and orchestra under the direction of Professor I. M. Glen, was spell-binding, and at the end when the prelude from Mendelsohon was played the audience seemed loath to leave the building. The soprano solo of Miss Stinson and the orchestra accompaniment was something that will long be remembered.

The subject of Dr. Dyott's address was a practical appeal to the graduates who are now going out into the world to make use of the gifts or talents which they own, and he showed that neglect of a natural ability is a crime against the world. He opened his sermon by the remark that he believed with many others in the statement that Oregon spends no money that is better spent than that which goes into the University of Oregon. His sermon was exceedingly practical, and by showing the united relation of the commercial, religious and educational, he won the attention of every member of the audience. One broad statement on this line that he made was that "it may be so that some day electricity may have something to do with spiritual revelation."

"Education is not the end, it is not the power, or a material possession. It is something above all these. It is a medium that can establish the relation or connection between all other things. It is not the end, only the medium to attain the end." And so he went on to show the real purpose of an education. It is something that makes the man confident of his own abilities. "The man of today must be natural, must live to be himself. One must, for an example, be naturally religious because he is religiously natural. The man who says 'I am, I can, I ought and I will'; he who thinks he can, all other things being equal, can. The individual man is strong, not in arm but in heart. An ideal is not an ideal when it just formulated; it is really an ideal when it is practised.

"There is no separation between materialism and spiritualism. Every life is a supreme gift—an ethereal gift. Life is nothing without some gift or talent, and this must be developed. It makes no difference what this is. If one has the gift of making money it is a sin not to do it if it can be done. If you are given to be a successful man you cheat the world if you are not." Then turning from this subject the speaker took up the matter of the modern commercial tendency and implored the youth who is now going into the world to correct the evil of the growing tendency to place the money and power into a few hands as the modern trusts are doing. He said:

"You cannot have the wealth of the nation in the hands of one person any more than the blood of one man can circulate in one portion of the body. The day will come when you can count on your fingers the money owners of the nation. It is your call, it is the duty of the young man now going out into the world to reform this. But the reform must be careful, it must be slow and not radical. It is a condition that has slowly developed and cannot be readily overthrown. It started with ten mills. Ten mills made one combine; ten combines made one trust; ten trusts made one merger; ten mergers made one magnate and the magnate makes all the money.

"It is not so much what one does, but how he does it. A man's education must begin with his grandparents. It must be trained in him, for education is only an aid to mental culture. The pure education alone serves only as a teacher. Its real function is to train so that in life the man may make use of his facilities.

"We are living in a world of unlimited and unused power. There is no more limit to the possibilities of the youth going out into the world than there is in the water power of the Northwest. One competition leads to another. One development opens the field for another, in the same way that one course does not finish an education but makes it possible to begin on another. In this way, in everything, there is the continual overlapping. It may be possible that electricity may open the way for the revelation of the spiritual.

"It is not simply enough for a man to say that 'I am an educated man,' but 'that I am a match for anything I meet because I am an educated man.'

"There is no place in the world with better opportunities for you than in America. There is no place in America that is better than the Pacific coast. There's nothing better that you can do than to work on and for the Pacific coast. Stay home, young man.

E. M. WARREN HOME FROM HIS TRIP TO CANADA

Was Gone a Month and Glad to Get Back — Visited in Ontario Province

E. M. Warren returned home Sunday from a trip to his old home near Ottawa, in Ontario province, Canada. He left Eugene on May 16, going by way of Seattle, passing through Montana and Nebraska, Chicago and Michigan. He spent a very pleasant few weeks at his old home, but found the country greatly changed, almost all of his early manhood friends having come to the Northwest since he left there.

The only farming industry in the vicinity of where he formerly lived is the manufacture of cheese, the entire output being shipped to liverpool. On a farm of 100 to 110 acres from 25 to 30 cows are cared for. The conditions there were found to be bad on account of the young men leaving for the West and Northwest.

Mr. Warren says the weather was cool all the way back there, and he encountered no warm weather coming home, either. In Canada the spring was very backward, and there has been no warm weather there to speak of at all. He returned home over the Canadian Pacific railway, and found farming conditions in the northwestern part of Canada very unfavorable on account of the drougt. Conditions are mulc better on the American side, he says.

He is glad to get back and says he saw no part of the country that can equal ours for diversity of products and pleasant climate.

Vancouver Barracks, Wash., June 19.—First Lieutenant Condon C. McCornack, connected with a well-known family of Oregon and a graduate of the University of Oregon, has been ordered to his post for assignment to Alaska, probably. Dr. McCornack graduated among the first ten in the Army Medical School at Washington, D. C. He is a grandson of the late Dr. Thomas Condon, of the department of geology at the Oregon University.

When the Spanish-American war was declared young McCornack, then attending the University, joined the Second Oregon Volunteers and went to the Islands, and he was then only 18 years of age.

PUBLICITY OF THE MONEY SPENT FOR VOTES

Washington, June 20.—President Taft decided today to make an issue of the passage by congress, before the adjournment of the present session, of a bill providing for the publicity of contributions in all campaigns affecting federal offices.

The president sent for the party leaders of both house and senate and told them his views regarding this piece of legislation. He said he had made a personal pledge during the last presidential campaign to do what he could toward furthering the enactment of a publicity bill, but had hesitated to add this bill to his program, however, while congress was devoting itself to those measures to which the party had definitely committed itself in its platform. Now that the program had practically been completed, he has decided to bring all his influence to bear in behalf of the publicity bill.

The bill will soon be called up and members of both houses are inclined to the view that adjournment will be had between Thursday and Saturday of this week.

Statehood Bill Signed

Washington, June 20.—At 12:30 o'clock today the vice-president affixed his signature to the statehood bill, which is the last step in the progress of legislation before the measure goes to the president for his approval. At 1:40 p. m. the president signed the bill.

The Lorimer Case

Washington, June 20.—Senator Borah today offered an amendment to the senate resolution directing an investigation into the charge of bribery in connection with the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois, to require the investigation to be prosecuted at once. The amendment was rejected and the senate then agreed to the resolution.

SWELL WEDDING OF TEDDY JR. OCCURS

New York, June 20.—Weather typical of the month of brides and roses attended the wedding today of Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander and Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., whose nuptials at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church furnished one of the most notable society events of the season. The church was beautifully decorated and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Gordon Russell, of Cranford, N. J. The bride was given away by her mother, Mrs. Henry Alexander, and Kermit Roosevelt, fresh from his exploits in the African jungles, was his brother's best man. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Former President Roosevelt was almost as great an object of interest as the bride and groom.

The young people will go to California for their honeymoon.

Young Mrs. Teddy's trosseau was entirely of American make. The wedding gown was of white satin of the softest variety, not the old-fashioned kind brides once affected, but more like what the French call "satin souple." The suit was very simple and depended on its long, graceful lines for much of its charm, although some wonderful old family point lace, which her mother, Mrs. Henry Addison Alexander, treasures very highly because of associations and tradjtions, adorned it. The lace was used on the bodice and sleeves.

Following the fashion of English brides, Miss Alexander wore a tulle veil, which was fastened with the usual orange blossoms, but noting stiff or conventional was attempted with the flowers—just a few sprays were used in the most artless and natural manner.

Her attendants were Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock, who was her matron of honor, and Mr. Roosevelt's sister, Miss Ethel Roosevelt; the Misses Harriet and Janetta Alexander, the bride's cousins; Miss Jessie Millington Drake and Miss Jean Walters Delano served as bridesmaids.

As described by a recent interviewer, young Roosevelt is the antithesis of his strenuous father, but, withal, is a manly man. He has large blue eyes, an honest countenance, is broad shouldered and deep of chest. He is only twenty-two, but has a quiet manner that typifies the student more than the soldier. He is a good talker and, apparently, democratic. His hands bear signs of hard work in the Connecticut carpet factory, where he learned wool picking, carpet designing and the heavy employment of a factory hand, taking a turn at every phase of a great industry. But the things that appear most prominently when the young man stands before you is that he has a very broad forehead, and an expressive look in his large and honest eyes. This look seems to signify that the brain in that head is a thinker's brain, and one that some day may direct great accomplishments.

In the course of a recent interview Theodore, Jr., deprecated the public interest in his love affars, saying:

"Miss Alexander and I are just two young people who are going to get married. We have known each other many years. We will do what thousands of others have done, and when we went to the city hall for our license we followed in the footsteps of thousands of others. We are not elopers, and there is only one thing that causes this public comment, the fact that I am the son of my father."

"Does this prove a handicap?"

"No, by no means. But it makes one spend his life in a shadow. I intend to work hard, but I realize I am a man of destiny in one way—I will always be known as the son of Theodore Roosevelt, and never as a person whose name means only himself."

"Why was it you did not go into the army?" Roosevelt, Jr., was asked. "The people always associate men of the Roosevelt family with the man on horseback."

"No Roosevelt ever served in the regular army. In every war there has been a member of the family in the volunteers, but only for the period of danger to the nation. At other times the family follow vocations that are peaceful."

TRIAL CASES BEGIN IN THE CIRCUIT COURT

Circuit court convened in regular quarterly session this morning and jury trials were at once begun. No grand jury has as yet been called, but this matter will be attended to in a day or so. The old grand jury pretty well cleared the docket of criminal cases, but there are others to be investigated yet, and it is probable that there will be another indictment or two.

The roll of jurors was called this morning and the following were excused for valid reasons. Fred Fischer, Andrew Brund, Jas. Tallafero, Henry Loehner, Chas. Kolbert and Marion Veatch. A special venire was called to fill their vacancies.

Medicine Case

The first case to come up for trial this morning was that of the Blue Bell Medicine Co. vs. O. J. Hull, a local druggist, to recover money. The medicine company shipped the druggist some patent medicines, but the latter returned them without selling any, claiming that the contract was that the medicine company should advertise them in the local papers, but failed to do so. The jury in the case was as follows: Oscar Jackson, J. B. McNutt, R. B. Bond, G. W. Knapp, H. B. Dunlap, P. N. Laird, Geo. Betts, J. J. Winn, G. M. Bonnett, W. T. Jones, Ellis Gulley and Jas. Calvert. The jury went out at 11:20 o'clock this forenoon and returned a verdict at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in favor of the plaintiff in the sum of $196.

State vs. Emmons

Following the completion of this case, that of the State vs. Albert Emmons, the cleaner and presser, charged with larceny by bailee of a suit of clothes belonging to Walter Stafford, was called and a jury consisting of the following chosen: John M. Cook, J. C. Jensen, Herman Bjerke, E. R. Copenhaver, Albert Erdman, M. L. Perry, J. S. Magladry, C. E. Harwood, M. N. Gent, O. Casperson, M. C. Bond and E. E. Awbrey. The jury went out some time after 4 o'clock this afternoon.

O. J. HULL.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the heart or kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Tha old fashioned method is all wrong Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demanstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days' test will surely tell. Try it once and see! Sold by Yerington Drug Store.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?
Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments every where in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the cause of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the key note to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering sick, Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours.

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.
