The prison officials say he sleeps very well and eats heartily. He spends much of his time reading. Miss Leneve has visited him in prison three times.

BOWERMAN GIVES REPUBLIC TODAY MAN PROMISE OF POSITION IS MONTH OF AGE

A. E. Parsons Urges Votes for Bowerman So He Can Get Job of Game Warden

One E. A. Parsons, of Portland, has the effrontery to ask voters to elect Bowerman so that he (Parsons) may be appointed state game warden. Following is a copy of a portion of a letter received by G. G. Gross, of this city, and other members of the various hunt clubs here: Portland, Ore., Nov. 1, 1910.

Dear Sir: For many years past I have been much interested in our game and fish, and especially so in our game laws and their enforcement. Perhaps no one subject of equal importance has been more neglected in the past, not only by the people but by our state and national government, until today many states have been depopulated of both game and fish. In the East, rapid progress is being made toward remedying this condition, not only in securing better laws and their enforcement, but in establishing game preserves and operating state game farms to propagate game for restocking.

Another project that I will advocate is a state game farm to propagate birds to liberate, bringing in not only new blood but new species. This is being done successfully and at a nominal expense in other states. Another will be a state trout hatchery to restock our streams besides securing all the trout fry possible from the national government. Another condition that needs to be remedied is the feeling between the farmer and the city sportsman, which, at present, is the feeling deplorable with wrong on both sides. To repair this, I shall ask for a more strict trespass law, that the rights of the farmers must be respected and the courtesy that is his due is extended.

That I may put these ideas into effect, and I am sure improve our conditions, I shall, after election ask Mr. Bowerman for the appointment of State Game Warden. If my plans and enthusiasm meet with your approval, I ask you to write to him as soon as convenient after November 8th, assisting me in securing the appointment. In the meantime, I want to ask you to do all in your power to secure Mr. Bowerman's election, not only yourself but your friends and sportsman and friend. I urge upon you, as a personal favor, to assist in selecting Mr. Bowerman as our next governor.

Sincerely yours, E. A. PARSONS.

STUDENTS THINK THEY CAN CONTROL AFFAIRS

Corvallis, Or., Nov. 4.—The students of the Oregon Agricultural college aim to handle all infractions of rules hereafter, if the right to do so is given them by the faculty. They propose creating an organization for the complete self-government, and will ask the faculty to abolish all faculty organizations covering matters except those of a scholastic nature. The students think that if self-government were granted, they would be able to prevent outbreaks such as the faculty has had to contend with. The plan, it is thought, will include a student court to try members charged with violating regulations.

HERE FROM SCENE OF DIETZ AFFAIR

U. L. Briggs, formerly of Ashland, Wis., a new arrival in Eugene, who is now visiting at the home of W. B. Rivers at 85 Washington street, lived only a few miles from the scene of the recent Dietz shooting affair where Dietz defied the law and officers until the lumber company was forced to grant him his rights. Mr. Briggs says that there is a general sympathy for Dietz in this affair and he thinks that it is quite probable that the former outlaw will win out in the courts. He expects to hear a great deal of this affair because of the feeling there. Dietz's daughter, who is now in the hospital, was very popular there. In a popular voting contest held some time ago by a Superior, Wis., newspaper, Miss Dietz was far in the lead of all rivals and was expected winner until she withdrew at the request of her father.

WESTERN UNION TO DOUBLE CAPACITY OF TELEGRAPH LINE

Crew of Men Now Working in Vicinity of Eugene Making Many Improvements

Preparing to double the capacity of its telegraph lines, the Western Union Telegraph company has a force of 15 men working out of Eugene. The poles are all being reset and are being fitted with eight-pin crossarms instead of four. There are two arms which, with four additional lines on each, will give a capacity of eight new lines. The workmen declare that they have had no instructions to string additional wires but are sure this is what these improvements mean. They also say it would not be necessary to go to this expense in order to put up only two or three wires. It is also seen that they are not only local improvements in that the construction crew will go all the way over the line. There are ten through wires and two local wires on the line at present.

Besides changing all the cross-arms, the men dig up every pole cut it off at the bottom where it shows any tendency to rot, and then drop the pole back into the hole again. In some cases they have put short poles at the base of the pole for a brace.

WENDLING IS FAST REBUILDING

New Buildings to Replace Those Burned Better Than Ever Before

Wendling, destroyed by fire only a few months ago, is twenty days in the same condition that it was previous to the terrible fire, or really in fact a greater town than ever before. The carpenters who have been rushing the work for the past two months, will be through by the last of this month and the great fire will only be a matter of history. At present the small mill town is alive with bustling activities. Four contractors have their men rushing to completion the employees' homes. At present there is complete the lodging house, the store, the hotel and about six residences. Work has begun on the additional thirty houses and they will stand complete within a fortnight or so. The cold weather is rather hard on the families living in tents, and the completion of the houses will be appreciated by those who lost homes in the fire. The houses are all of the same pattern and when they are completed and painted the town will have a very pretty appearance in all its freshness.
